ANNOUNCEMENTS

PROSPECT OF BETTER BUSINESS

Intelligent business men are beginning to realize that business is likely to be much better during the last half of this year, than they anticipated, according to Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Company.

"It's a great thing to be a prophet if you guess right," says Jordan, "and its a painful thing if you guess wrong.

"The fact of the matter is that the whole situation hangs upon the health of Mr. Calvin Coolidge.

"Right now it looks as if the ratification meeting at Cleveland would consist of a unanimous endorsement of the man who is now bigger than the Republican party, and unquestionably has the confidence of the majority of the people in the United States.

"Five things have created among business men a feeling of caution, now rapidly being dissipated.

"First: Some business men used to think that Ford didn't know very much. They were not smart enough to be guided by his wisdom and judgment.

"Now that they see the marvelous spectacle of a man turning out approximately 200,000 automobiles a month on an eight day inventory they are beginning to realize that he is a pretty good man to imitate.

"Second: Nobody who experienced the pain of liquidating big inventories in 1921, wants to have the same experience again.

"Third: We had a so-called buyers' strike in 1920 when prices were going up inordinately. Now we have what might be called a retailers' strike.

"Fourth: No many months ago when the railroads were just emerging from the experiment of government ownership it took two weeks to have merchandise delivered from the manufacturer to the jobber and the retailer.

"The railroads are now operating with high efficiency and you can get deliveries in two or three days.

"Fifth: General Dawes, whom you may hear more about at the Cleveland convention, did a good job over in Europe. He did a lot of real work and a lot of people in this country have found out that it takes a Republican man rather than a politician to settle an economic question.

"Things will improve in Europe.

"People who have sold short in the stock market are covering.

"With the nomination of Coolidge a more confident opinion will exist regarding the future."

BREED THEATRE

The "Pee" triumvirate has produced another joy picture! Lauretta Taylor, who won her way into the hearts of movie fans in her first film for Metro, J. Hartley Manners, who wrote Peg O' My Heart and practically all of Miss Taylor's plays in which she became the most loved of American actresses, and King Vidor, who directed "Pee" and without whom the star refused to proceed further in her film career, have combined again—this time to make a sparkling film version of Miss Taylor's second great stage success, Happiness.

Happiness, which is a Metro picture, adapted for the screen by Mr. Manners and photographed by Chester A. Lyons, will come to the Breed theatre for three days, beginning Sunday.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

Today's bill consists of John Bowers in When a Man's a Man, Ruth Roland in Ruth of the Range, the Pathe news and an Al St. John comedy.

Palace Thatre

Strange as are the adventures recorded on the screen of today, Donald Crisp, who directed Ponjola, a First National picture showing this week at the Palace theatre, has experienced a few real thrills that will compare most favorably with any thing ever caught by a camera.

Crisp has been managing a big American studio in England during the last two years and quite incidentally he knew the ins and outs of Scotland Yard. When the British Intelligence Department desired to get some first-hand information regarding conditions in Russia, Crisp was assigned for extremely dangerous espionage work which carried him out into the nest of Bolshevism.

Twice a week for more than five months he flew across the German border into Russia. And twice each week an airplane crossed in the darkness, picked him up and whirled him back to a spot where he could communicate with London.

His wide knowledge of South Africa was invaluable in the filming of Cynthia Stockley's story of that locale, which is interpreted by a most unusually talented cast inculding James Kirkwood, Anna Q. Nilsson, Tully Marshall, Ruth Clifford, Claire McDowell, Claire Du Brey and Bernard Randall.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Charles H. Pellett, veteran among the automobile dealers of eastern Connecticut, and one of Danielson's best known citizens, died Friday afternoon at his home on North Main street after an illness that had been severe for the past month and really had extended from about the first of the present year. A month ago Mr. Pellett entered the Day Kimball hospitals at Putnam for treatment and for a time there was every hope that he with his exceptionally strong constitution, would recover, but during the present week, he having been removed from the hospital to his home here, became critically ill. Practically all hope of his recovery had been abandoned since Wednesday.

Mr. Pellett was born in Jewett City, a son of John and Harriet Robbins Pellett, and would have been 68 had he lived until June 26th. Having obtained his education he was for years engaged as a farmer and for a long time lived in the town of Canterbury, where, January 30, 1877, he was united in marriage to Miss Flora Smith, who was a member of the first class graduated from Killingly High school.

It will be 27 years the coming summer that Mr. Pellett moved with his family to Danielson and he has ever since been recognized as one of the most active and progressive of this town's citizens. During the early years of his residence in Danielson Mr. Pellett was engaged in trucking and did much of the work involved in drawing stone and other heavy material from the railroad yards here to the Dyer dam, where the trolley company built the lines now owned through this territory by the Connecticut Company. With the coming of the motor age Mr. Pellett was the second resident in this town to buy an automobile and operate it, and since that day, in 1904, he has driven automobiles probably more miles than any man living today in this part of eastern Connecticut. Physically he was a marvel and seemed to be as tireless as any person can be. Hours never seemed to have any effect upon him. Miles were a mere incident. He knew every nook and corner of New England and adjoining territory, as a result of years of service in a business that involved selling cars, renting them and taking his patrons wherever they happened to want to go.

Those who have memories will not soon forget that Mr. Pellett was the man who stood in the breach when a trolley strike came in this territory a few years ago and left all the communities in this part of the state without other transportation than that supplied by the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., and be it said that was not enough by any means to meet the demand of the public for getting somewhere more often than three times a day.

Within 48 hours he had established a bus line between Danielson and Putnam and similar lines of service to other points to the south and west. He invested thousands of dollars in this enterprise, only to have the public utilities commission rule against him and in favor of the trolley service when the showdown came, a long time afterwards and following a terrible winter period during which the trolley line between Danielson and Putnam was ice-bound for weeks and no effort was made either to open the line or operate trolley cars. Had it not been for Mr. Pellett and his indomitable courage hundreds of people would have walked all winter or depended on the infrequent train service to get anywhere out of Danielson and for that demonstration of pluck and service to the public he will be remembered long after many others who have passed on before have been forgotten.

Mr. Pellett was a typical American of the old school. He would bet a million on his judgment. He was a good business man, a great worker, a fine man to know. Danielson, as a whole, will miss him. He was of the people and his friends were legion.

Mr. Pellett leaves his wife and the following children: Clinton, Ray, Everett, Ella, Helen, Myrtis. He also leaves brother, Albert, of Canterbury, and two sisters, Mrs. Lydia Bennett of Central Village and Mrs. Elmer Bennett of Plainfield.

Frank LaRose, 48, a native of Danielson and for a number of years engaged in business here, died Friday morning in Norwich. Mr. LaRose had been in poor health for a long time. The body, in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy, was removed from Norwich to Mr. LaRose's home in Moosup, where he had been engaged in business for a number of years, being proprietor of a drug store in that place. Mr. LaRose is survived by his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre LaRose and a brother, Wilfred LaRose, all of Moosup.

GUARDING THE HEALTH.

From time to time much thought is given to the Chinese custom of paying the doctors to maintain health instead of paying them to regain it. It comes back to the important subject of prevention, and there is an endless number of things that can be prevented if there is the proper disposition.

At a recent convention of surgeons [illegible] assistant director of the American College of Surgeons, was directing attention to the preventive possibilities in connection with cancer and tuberculosis, or at least the possibilities of preventing the diseases from getting to the stage where curative efforts are limited, and stated that "if every human being would have a physical examination on [illegible] we would get the diseases in their incipiency and arrest them before they assume menacing proportions."

There are a few who follow the Chinese custom of paying the doctors to keep them well, and there are some who indulge in the practice of having a thorough physical examination at least once a year, but the number is not large. Somehow there is a great deal of faith placed in insurance of other kinds but little attention is paid to the benefits to be derived from the early discovery of ailments, which may seem to be nothing but may be laying the foundation for serious troubles.

It is of course only human to dread any discoveries in connection with the physical condition. But a little thought must make it clear that it is far preferable to do a little preventive work, in case it is needed, when it is possible to get quick and desired results than it is to wait until the time has come when precious little can be done, and it is a matter of making a persons comfortable instead of curing them.

The idea of a thorough physical examination is based upon the important question of prevention, and certainly disease is one of the things that most human beings would prefer to keep to the minimum.

FERRYING THE AUTOS.

Years ago the steamer Shinnecock used to be a familiar sight in the new harbor at Block Island, when making its run between Greenport and that summer resort. It has been off that run for a considerable period now but its usefulness hasn't expired if we may judge by its utilization between New London and Long Island for the purpose of handling the increasing volume of automobile traffic during the summer.

Where the number of autos that could be ferried across at that point was decidedly limited in the past, the new service just inaugurated should cater to a large traffic in both directions. It is evidence of the steamboat [illegible] desire to better its facilities and to endeavor to open up an automobile route that has hitherto been more or less restricted.

With the steamer filled to capacity much through traffic over the shore road to New York, or from New York east, will be diverted and an opportunity to take in the delightful drive the length of Long Island will be opened to an increased number without the delays which are incidental to an inadequate ferry service.

The problem of transporting automobiles is getting to be quite as staggering a one as the carrying of passengers has been. Prohibitive rates due to inadequate facilities have been the means of curtailing such business at numerous points, but the time is coming when special service at such points for the handling of the auto traffic is bound to get the attention which is now being given to the meeting of the demands and the encouragement of more crossings between New London and Long Island.

A MINORITY PRODUCT.

When Senator Borah calls attention to the fact that the present congress was elected by a minority of the voters, meaning that less than 43 per cent of those eligible to vote went to the polls in response to their duty, it discloses a situation that is too often repeated. Instead of meeting the responsibilities that devolve upon them as voters the majority left it to someone else and the result is that there is an absence of the true representation.

If the country needed an illustration of the effects of unassumed responsibility it is to be found in the present congress, and Senator Borah does well to bring the matter to attention at this time. With the evidence that is being displayed of the lack of regard for national welfare, the unwillingness to heed public sentiment, the disposition to invite and cater to class legislation, the ignoring of nationwide demands and the inclination to balk sound policies and to replace them with unsound and unwise ones there is good and sufficient reason for the great body of voters to look well to their duty henceforth.

It cannot be expected that every voter can get to the polls, but it is possible for many more to do so than do at most every election. The present congress being the result of a minority of voters it has produced a lesson to the voters that ought to be sufficient to eliminate the possibilities of repetition in the near future. One experience with a congress like the one now in Washington is enough to spur the voters on to see that there is no such a thing as a comeback.

Spending its time playing politics and making a fizzle of about every thing that it has done it has made a record for itself, inglorious though it is, that will not soon be forgotten.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

If the great south west has been correctly reported, the authorities of Arizona have held up automobiles on the border line that separates that state from California, because of the foot and mouth disease that prevails in the latter place. The object doubtless is to prevent the spread of the disease in the former state. But why hold up the automobile? To be sure along some lines all motor vehicles are sinners. They sometimes have tire trouble; the steering gear is now and then stubborn, and the gas has a strange habit of getting used up before it ought to. More than this, the automobile has been known to carry bootleg whiskey and bandits. But it is quite a new thing to science for it to be afflicted with hoof and mouth disease which hitherto has been confined to cattle and very rarely are cattle smuggled in Packards. The only mouth disease I can think of is on the part of the drivers when halted on their journey, which become so vigorous and general as to impress the uninitiated as being a dangerous di[illegible]

..Monday, May 5 was quite a conspicuous day for Norwich. It was marked by excellent weather for the gathering of the Knights Templar. The parade, the beauty of the uniforms and most of the men were noteworthy. One cannot remember a parade in our city that comprised a greater number of men who stand high in the civic and moral life of the community. It is not orders that make men great, but it is men who make orders great. It is not a crown that makes a king illustrious but it a kingly heart and a princely mind that give lustre to a crown. One could not help thinking when he saw those men how safe our democracy would be if they represented the sum total of our population, or if they existed in sufficient numbers to leaven the entire lump. Such a parade as that must have inspired the ambition of the thinking youth to become identified with such a body of men.

Let it be admitted that the league of nations was not a perfect document — what human document was ever perfect?—at the same time any reasonable person must admit that artificial flaws were picked in it for purely partizan purposes. Still it was a good starter out of which the world court was subsequently established. And if this latter court could be given free play its excellence would doubtless soon be recognized. It is to be regretted that in the United States senate there is a disposition to resurrect, or, at least to continue, the old Hague tribunal. This is the suggestion of Senator Lodge who can see no good in anything that comes out of the league of nations. If one can read the sign of the times the sentiment of the country at large is rather on the side of President Coolidge who would rather see the world court be allowed to function because the new machinery is still in existence.

"At every step we have to take into account others than ourselves. For only in death are we alone." Such is the philosophy of Rabindranath Tagore, the Hindu poet who stands high in the estimation of his own people as a thinker. He is also respected in the occident in so far as the occidental mind is able to understand him. His first statement comes so near to a self-evident truth that no one can dispute him. It is the same as saying that no man is an entity in himself. He is an integral part of that social complex which we call society. We can understand him no more apart from his communal life than we can the eye apart from the light. Tagore and St. Paul are theologically in agreement here for the latter says, "none liveth and dieth unto himself." But one is not quite so sure about his second statement: "for only in death are we alone." This may perfectly agree with Tagore's system of belief, but the Christian would not treat it dogmatically. Do we know enough about death to say that we are alone? Is it more than possible that the soul continues its social relations after death? The writer does not believe in a post mortem isolation of spirit.

At the recent annual meeting of The United Steel Corporation, Judge Elbert Gary, chairman of the board of directors, made the following pertinent remark, "and now the worst thing we have at the present time . . . . .is the American congress." This statement was made in answer to an inquiry as to his opinion of the outlook for business in the near future. It is humiliating to think that he was compelled to make the above answer that the greatest obstacle was our national legislature. There seems to be a growing uncertainty just where the congress is going to break out next. Judge Gary went on to elaborate his point. There are men in congress who are naturally selfish and who act and vote and talk with a view of advancing personal interests." He does not make a sweeping charge against all congressmen, but there are enough of the kind he describes to clog all constructive legislation, and give a note of uncertainty to the country.

It is a tendency of the present age to cut out the useless under whatever form it appears—and it sticks up its head almost everywhere—in religion, science, and the common, practical things of life. The colleges are onto the idea, and are cutting out much which this practical age has voted as useless. Latin and Greek, commonly known as "the dead languages" are not carried to the extent they were once, and may be cut out altogether; the trend is in that direction. We see it in the line of domestic science; the kitchenette is supplanting the pantry in its combination with the kitchen. Why not go a step farther and consign the saucer to the scrap heap? Who uses a saucer in these days when drinking either tea or coffee? However hot the tea or coffee comes on the table, no man would think of pouring out either beverage into the saucer—unless his wife was away. Let us then get rid of the useless.

Many years ago Henry Drummond wrote a book, which was read all over Christendom, entitled, The Greatest Thing in the World. He referred to love but one wonders if it is bigger than faith. The time for plowing has come, and do we realize what an exhibition of faith it is? We put the seed into the ground but do not know whether it will spring up and grow or not. We simply believe (and have good reasons for our belief) that seed time and harvest shall not fail as long as the sun and moon endureth. And so we just go ahead and plant, but we do it on an act of faith. Little business would be done in this world if we did not have faith. Very little of it is built up on positive knowledge.

There is one phase of city betterment that can be accomplished without much expense, and that is cleaning up the litter. There are spots in our city that are a positive disgrace to any civilized community. The term "hog pen" is not very euphonious, but it very well describes many dirty patches within our city limits, and it makes thoughtful people inquire what has become of our former city pride? Is it due to racial changes in the character of our population, or have we allowed our sense of beauty and cleanliness to degenerate? The liberal use of broom and dust pan on most of our streets is quite necessary if we are to retain our epithet of "The Rose of New England." It must be admitted just at present that the rose suggestion is a mere figment of the imagination. Were it possible for Henry Ward Beecher to visit us just now he would probably be reminded of wilted roses.

JULIA MARLOWE'S CHEERLESS GIRLHOOD

From childhood, life was a struggle for Julia Marlowe. As plain Sarah Francis Frost, she was born in Canton, Ohio, her father died soon afterward and her mother married the proprietor of a small hotel in Cincinnati catering to theatrical people.

"I had practically no childhood," she says. "As a child I went to no child's party; as a girl I had no girl friends. The experiences which come to growing children as part of their girl-life came to me only as part of my stage experience. The first long dress I wore was not as a girl, but on the stage as Myrene in Pygmalion and Galatea.

When 12 years old, she played in a juvenile Pinafore company. A tour with Robert McWade, who was playing Rip Van Winkle, and as star in parts from Shakespeare followed.

But she wanted more than barnstorming. The "melancholic, yellow-skinned, high-strung girl" quit the stage and spent three years in rigid training at Bayonne, N. J., under the guidance of an actress who adopted her as her niece.

The training ended, she emerged as Julia Marlowe, ready to star, but theatrical managers were not interested. Finally an old Ohio acquaintance organized a company and she toured the small towns of Connecticut.

New York theater managers would not book her. Hiring a theater for a special matinee, she played Parthenia in Ingomar and made a great success. Other large cities then welcomed her.

But earnings barely covered the cost of living and materials, and she had to make all costumes for stage and private wear. During her third season she was ill for six months and when she recovered her company had been disbanded, her "aunt" had quit as manager and the star had to learn how to handle the business alone.

Her marriage to Robert Taber, leading man of her company, proved unhappy and was dissolved.

Tours of this country proved successful and she went to London, where she won high praise for her Shakespearean portrayals.

MAKING USE OF THE LIGNITES

Economic utilization of the lignites of the northwest, which comprise nearly one-third of the total solid fuel resources of the United States, depends upon the devising of methods for the producing of a maximum yield of solid salable fuel at low cost rather than on the obtaining of long lists of by-products which unduly optimistic promoters have emphasized, states W. W. Odell, fuel engineer, department of the interior, in a report just made to the bureau of mines. Mr. Odell's conclusions are based on the present state of industrialization of the great lignite producing states, North and South Dakota and Montana, which would not provide a market for the gas and other by-products obtained in the treating of the lignite. It is believed that the lignite carbonizer recently designed by the bureau of mines fulfills the requirements of the situation, producing at low cost a fuel, in the form of lignite char, which has a heating value equal to the fine sizes of commercial anthracite and which can be briquetted and compete with domestic sizes.

The total area of the lignite deposits of Montana, North and South Dakota and Texas is so large that the true economic value of this great national asset is seldom realized, Mr. Odell points out. The area of the lignite lands in North Dakota alone is estimated to be approximately 82,000 square miles. Ninety per cent of the country's lignite resources lies in the northwest.

The development of the nation's lignite resources has been slow, partly because the districts wherein lignite is found are not thickly settled or highly developed in manufacturing industries, but also because of the physical and chemical characteristics of the lignite. Lignite is classed as a low-grade fuel and may be considered as imperfectly developed coal which has a more or less woody structure; it may be of the brown type or darker, denser and more homogeneous, approaching subbituminous coal in character. As mined it contains more than 30 per cent of moisture exclusive of the water of decomposition formed when it is carbonized or burned. The heating value is approximately half that of good quality bituminous coal. Upon exposure to the air lignite loses part of its moisture, whereupon the lumps check and split until, after considerable exposure, a large percentage of slack is formed. It cannot be stored in large piles so successfully as some other fuels, and in some instances it is more apt to ignite spontaneously in storage or in transit than the higher grade fuels.

Progress has been made recently in the utilization of lignite as a boiler fuel. It is now possible to obtain a much higher evaporative capacity from a boiler with a given grate area than formerly, by reason of the introduction of a means for drying the lignite prior to its use as boiler fuel by utilizing a part of the sensible heat of the stack gases. This and other improvements in methods of utilizing lignite as an industrial fuel have increased its commercial value so that its worth in dollars per ton, when compared with other fuels, is almost proportional to its relative calorific value.

Various processes have been proposed for treating lignite some of which, it is claimed, will permit the recovery of a large yield of valuable by-products. Some promoters have gone so far as to promise the recovery of perfumes, dyes, and medicinal products, and they bolster their claims by drawing attention to what is being done with tar of various sorts in distant lands. To date these processes exist on paper only. It is a well known fact that carbonaceous materials, such as wood, lignite, coal, or the like, will yield, upon carbonization, a small percentage of condensable products—chiefly water and tar. The nature of the tars so prepared and the percentage yield is dependent to a certain extent upon the method of carbonizing and upon the temperature employed. This affords a fertile field, for promoters with a vivid imagination to work in. The Dakotas, where much of the lignite of the northwest is found, are, however, sparsely settled and relatively undeveloped industrially, hence a high value cannot be placed upon the by-products, gas, tar, and ammonia, or upon the tar distillation products since they are remote from market. There are no refineries in the northwest for handling or "working up" special products from lignite tar. Furthermore, lignite tar is not the same as coal tar, and therefore the crude products from the distillation of the former are not necessarily identical with those from coal tar. Uses for lignite tar in large quantities at a price higher than its fuel value are yet to be found.

In Europe some of the brown coals are of such a nature that they can be commercially briquetted without a binder after crushing and drying the raw fuel to a moisture content of approximately 12 per cent. The lignite found in the northwest does not readily lend itself to treatment in this manner.

For a number of years the bureau of mines has been investigating the possibility of manufacturing, on a commercial basis, a beneficiated fuel. The bureau's investigations have shown that a product having a calorific value equal to commercial anthracite can be made from lignite by carbonization. The carbonized lignite-char consists of small pieces, all of which will pass through a one-half inch screen. The char can be burned efficiently in stoves and furnaces provided with special grates and feeding devices, but it is not suitable for use alone as a domestic fuel in the types of stoves and furnaces now commonly used.

A specially designed kitchen stove is in use in Germany for burning carbonized brown coal, which is much the same as our lignite-char. This stove is giving satisfaction, and reports show that more than four hundred thousand tons of this product were burned in these special stoves last year. The bureau of mines imported one of these stoves and tested it at its Pittsburgh experiment station, using lignite-char as fuel, and very satisfactory results were obtained. With a few changes in the design and construction these stoves can be used to advantage in this country when char is a commercially available product.

A high-grade domestic fuel can be prepared from char by briquetting. The briquetted product has a heating value equal to anthracite, and can be stored, shipped, and handled similarly as the latter. Apparently there is no tendency for the briquets to ignite spontaneously in storage. The briquets can be made with a volatile content varying from a few per cent to more than 20 per cent, as desired.

It is well known that bituminous coking coal can be carbonized satisfactorily in a number of different types of ovens and retorts and it might be assumed that such carbonizers are suitable for treating lignite. It has, however, been found necessary to design a carbonizer especially for this fuel. The natural inclination in designing such an apparatus is to allow for the production and complete recovery of the maximum quantity of by-products, gas, tar, and ammonia; for this is the practice in the design of coal carbonizing retorts for gas works. In the present state of industrialization of the lignite producing states attention should be focused upon the production of the maximum yield of solid salable fuel from the lignite, and the apparatus best suited for this will be the one which will give the greatest daily output of solid fuel per dollar of investment.

The carbonizer designed by the bureau of mines, and tested at Grand Forks, North Dakota, under a cooperative agreement with the University of North Dakota, utilizes the principle of internal combustion as a source of heat. This tends to increase the oven capacity because of the increased rate of heating the lignite in process, minimizes the fuel required, and permits the use of more simple carbonizer construction. No by-products are recovered in the operation of this carbonizer. The oven cost per ton day of throughput was unusually low.

The bureau of mines subsequently designed an improved oven which incorporated the same basic principle of internal heating, but which permitted the recovery of gas, tar and ammonia, if desired. Operation of this oven by the Canadian lignite board, at Bienfait, Canada, demonstrated that gases were obtained during the carbonization of lignite in sufficient quantities to generate more power and heat than is required by an entire carbonizing and briquetting plant. Some tar is recovered which may be distilled to furnish a part of the binder requirements. With the recovery of the gas and tar and their utilization in the process the cost of briquets is materially reduced below that of previous estimates. It is estimated that briquets can be made in an economically operated and correctly designed plant at a cost of $7 to $8 per ton.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE PERFECT DAY

"The path of the just is as a shining light which shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Prov. 4.18. His path will be a light both to himself and to others. It will increase in brightness as he grows older. The full force of this truth cannot be learned in a day, nor is the power to obey it fully acquired by one effort as it takes the child years to learn to understand the will of his parents and what they would have him do under different circumstances, so it takes the child of God years of patient, persevering work to learn His will, and having learnt it to be able to act in accordance with it. It is a slow and steady growth, becoming easier as it progresses till the perfect day when he will know it and love it in all its fullness.

Light shines brighter and brighter on the path of the just because Jesus is the light and He draws nearer to us as we draw nearer to Him in desire and in action.

Zacharias the father of John, prophesied concerning Christ that He would give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, and guide our feet in the way of peace. That is the first thing necessary. We must accept Christ's guidance into the way of peace.

We cannot learn to be just in God's way toward men until we have learned to be just toward God, to give Him His due, and it was to teach us how to do that that Christ came. He made it possible for God to be just and yet to justify all who believe in Christ and the foundation of all righteousness with God and with our fellow men is this. "The just shall live by his faith." Gal. 13:11.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lord Kenyon, who is coming to America soon to attend the centennial celebration of Kenyon college, is a descendant of George Kenyon, Lord Chief Justice of England, who was the first benefactor of the Ohio college and in honor of whom it was named. The present Lord Kenyon, like his ancestor, is keenly interested in educational matters. He has identified himself particularly with the question of higher education in Wales and has served as senior deputy chancellor of the University of Wales. Educated at Eton and Christ church, Oxford, Lord Kenyon, who had succeeded his grandfather in the title at an early age, joined the Imperial Yeomanry and attained the position of colonel commanding the Shropshire branch of that service. He is an A. D. C. to King George V., and was lord-in-waiting from 1900 to 1905.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WHERE MAJOR MARTIN ESCAPED

Port Moller and Chignik Bay, and the mountains between, along the Alaska Peninsula, are described in the following bulletin issued today from the National Geographic Society's Washington, D. C., headquarters, in connection with the escape of Major Martin.

"The Aleutian range, between those points, offers frequent pitfalls for the aviator," the bulletin says, "because it consist largely conical peaks, rising suddenly out of dreary tundras or marshes.

"The entire Alaska Peninsula, extreme west of Alaska's mainland, is a mountain ridge of several hundred miles with spurs and sides sharply descending to the sea.

"The Aleutian Range begins near the roots of the Alaska Peninsula and extends on out to its tip, and beyond into the Aleutian Islands. The highest peaks are near the eastern end, but even at the western tip of the peninsula heights of 4,000 feet and more are attained Port Moller, the community to which the airmen made their way on foot, is only about 150 miles from the tip of the peninsula. This little settlement, consisting for the most part of a salmon cannery, is on the Bering Sea or north of the peninsula. It is close to the point where the 163st degree of west longitude crosses the 56th parallel of latitude.

"A nest of high mountains almost surrounds the deep indentation on which Port Moller is situated, and the main ridge of the Aleutian Range with numerous peaks runs just south. Once having gotten over the land in the fog and struck down this range it was almost inevitable that a crash should occur. Between the peaks in this region are a number of low passes from the Pacific to Bering Sea. Through these blow moist winds from the Pacific which meeting the colder air from the north make this one of the foggiest regions on the peninsula.

"The mountains in this part of the peninsula are devoid of trees but stunted bushes grow in the hollows. No active volcanoes are known in the immediate vicinity of Port Moller, but about 75 miles farther west is Pavlof one of the most striking of the ever-smoking peaks of Alaska.

"Caribou, or wild reindeer, is the principal land animal in the Alaska Peninsula. The palmy days of walrus hunting and other catching are past. Salmon fishing is now the all important industry, and most of the settlements where white men are found are around canneries.

"A phenomenon of the Alaska Peninsula is the mirage—that optical magician which shows headlands and islands in the air, paints snowy ridges where they don't exist, and erects Greek temples for the mind's eye.

"At the entrance to Chignik Bay is Castle Cape, also called Tullumnir Point, which bears a striking resemblance to a castle, with towers and turrets clearly outlined. It is soft gray, tinted with rose. Sea birds circle it, screaming dismally."

A Little Talk on Thrift

SYSTEMATIC SAVING

To provide for your old age and for your days of adversity, or to accumulate funds that may be made of investment and business ways, no plan is superior to that of a steady, systematic saving.

Suppose a young man begins saving at twenty-five. At that time his income and [illegible] his life make it possible for him to save $90 a month. He proceeds on that basis until he is thirty when, due to the increased earning ability, he [illegible] saving $95 a month. At thirty-one he increases his savings to $100 a month. When he is forty he finds himself able to save $150 a month, and at forty-five he still further increases his monthly savings to $200.

By following this plan he will at the age of fifty have $84,000, providing his savings have been compounded semi-annually at 6 percent.

This would not be a difficult plan to follow for thousands upon thousands of our citizens, who now are going through life without getting ahead, and who at the age of fifty will have no more to fall back on than when they were twenty-five.

If a man can save $90 a month during twenty-five years of his life at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually he will have $61,975.

Five dollars a week for fifteen years at 4 1-4 per cent compounded semi-annually will equal $5,500. What better plan could be carried out for the education of one's children?

Even $1 deposited weekly for ten years will amount to $635.32 at 4 per cent compound interest. Start at the age of twenty and save $33.14 per month with interest compounded at 4 per cent semi-annually, and at 65 one's accumulations will be $50,000.

The pathway to independence is thrift.—American Society for Thrift.

AMERICAN LEGION POST WILL DO ESCORT DUTY ON MEMORIAL DAY

With a good attendance of old and new members Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4 American Legion met Friday evening in the rooms on Main street. Commander Herman A. Bruckner in the chair. Usual reports and bills were read and followed the usual course. A communication from Orrin H. Price commander of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., inviting the legion members to do escort duty on Memorial day was accepted and the post will turn out in force on Memorial day. A letter from the New York bonus commission notifying all New York men in this section to apply for their state bonus was read, and all such men are expected to get in touch with Harry House.

An invitation from the Colchester Post, American Legion, for the Norwich members to attend an open night at Grange Hall in that town next Wednesday evening was accepted and it is expected that about 25 will take the trip. There is to be an entertainment, dancing, and a talk by State Commander E. P. Armstrong.

It was also voted to hold a special meeting next Friday evening, May 23rd when final arrangements will be made for participating in the Memorial Day exercises and parade. The meeting will be filled with interest as plans were discussed Friday night to organize a baseball club, and possibly a married men's and singlemens' team for inter-post games, the stake to be a big feed. Plans were also discussed relative to a field meet with other posts in this section of the state and for an outing and clambake during the summer.

It was also voted that the post assist in every way possible, the Chamber of Commerce in its action to make Norwich more worthy of the name Rose of New England, and Harry House was appointed a committee to confer with Secretary O'Rourke and offer the legion's services.

The subject of grave markers was also brought up and it was decided to paint them a deep blue. Fifty of these will be placed on world war veterans graves before Memorial day, irrespective of whether they belong to the legion or not, as the members feel it their duty to care for all world war veterans graves on Memorial day.

A committee was also appointed to procure an electric legion sign to be placed in front of the legion rooms on Main street.

The latter part of the meeting was levoted to a discussion of plans for the good of the order and several suggestions were made all of which will be discussed and acted upon at the meeting scheduled for next week.

All indications Friday night pointed to banner activities in the legion from now on and it is desired that every new member come to the next meeting when there will be plenty of action and fun in store for him and important work to be done in preparation for Memorial day.

GAVE INSTRUCTIVE TALK ON MODERN POETRY

The regular meeting of the Parish House Department of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon at the Osgood Memorial parish house when Miss Louise C. Howe gave an unusually pleasing talk on the New Movement in Modern Poetry, approaching the subject not only with intelligent criticism but with a sympathetic understanding. She said in part:

We are living just now in a very distinctive period in the history of Literature, which has already been christened the Golden Age of American Poetry. Although it is always difficult to judge anything as near to us as this New Poetry Movement for one has to have the perspective of time to make a clear estimate—we cannot but realize, unless we are traditionalists, that something very new and forceful is taking place. It is very young—we can all remember when this Renaissance of individual, vigorous, native poetry dawned in 1912, since which time interest in the New Poetry has grown so rapidly that there never was a time when so many people, not specialists alone, but all sorts and conditions of men, women and children (for we have that gifted little girl, Hilda Conkling), were reading and writing verse. The movement runs the gamut from the work of a conscientious artist like Amy Lowell or a brilliant intellectual poet like Edwin Arlington Robinson to the crude, bizarre poems of Carl Sandburg or the jazz music of some Vachel Lindsay's. But in this heterogeneous company we find one bond that holds them all together one trait in common—a revolt against the immediate past. This, of course is nothing new in literary history, else we would still be writing in the style of Chaucer or even Beowulf.

As we look back through our history we find only two great poets great in the sense of being individual, Poe and Whitman, for we have to admit that though Holmes, Whittier, Bryant, Emerson, Lowell, and Longfellow wrote good poetry, it nevertheless lacked originality for they show strong influence of the English poets, Wordsworth and Byron, Rosetti and Swinburne. The Mid-Victorian, or with us Post-War, period was one of bad taste, a time of imitations when our architects were placing miniature copies of the Parthenon on village greens and putting French Mansard roofs on our dwelling houses. Our artists were copying masterpieces from the galleries of Europe and our poets were translating the classics.

Into this academic atmosphere Walt Whitman flung his dynamic "Leaves of Grass," that was to influence future generations so profoundly both here and abroad. A pioneer and a prophet, he opened the doors and let down the bars. Of course he shocked the conventional, but he made a profound impression on the few. For years Robinson and Frost, Carl Sandburg and Amy Lowell had been writing, fitting themselves to become masters of their art. A storm had been brewing, unrecognized by the laity. Even the great literary magazines ignored this seething revolt against the stilted, artificial diction, the moral platitudes, the conventions of the former poetry. But suddenly the storm burst in 1912. The time was ripe the psychologic moment had come and for several years there was an outpouring of strong original poetry unlike anything we had ever known.

The new poetry became popular, its success was sweeping, its sales unprecedented. Edgar Lee Master's "Spoon River Anthology" became a best seller, Robert Frost, who had received his first literary recognition in England came home to find himself famous. Instead of ridiculing Amy Lowell, the critics became suddenly convinced that she was a great poet. One of the sponsors of the new movement perhaps the greatest, was Harriet Monroe, because in her little magazine she gave the young rebellious poets a place to publish their insurgent verse, when the older conservative magazines would have none of them.

The new poets, unlike their predecessors, are not anxious to escape from their own times. From Walt Whitman they have learned the glory of the commonplace. We no longer have to refer to a Bulfinche's mythology to understand erudite references. Where once the poets sang of princesses and goddesses, today they write passionately of the man at the hoe or may be the sweeper of a Chicago slaughter house. Robert Frost is writing heart breaking stories in verse of the lonely woman on the New England farm and there are those sordid scandals of Spoon River. They see the Madonna at the washtub and knighthood in the doughboy in the trenches. One cannot help but admire the fine ardor of these young pioneers, starting out away from the beaten path to blaze new trails in their dauntless quest for self-expression.

One of the charms of this great adventure is experimenting with different forms of verse, especially with free verse which is always associated with the movement. There are people who still seem to think that it is a form of prose cut up into irregular lengths, but when we come to study the technique we find it more complicated than that. Miss Lowell explains that it is verse based on cadence, upon organic rhythm of the speaking voice with its necessity for breathing, rather than upon a metrical system. To care for or understand free verse one must give up all desire to find singing rhyme or the rhyme of metrical feet, but one must allow the lines to flow as they will when read aloud by an intelligent person.

It is rather amazing to note that there are 500 professional poets listed in this New Movement who have published volumes. Of these there are many groupings, the lyricists, the ironists, the Impressionists, the vorticists, the cerebralists, the imaginists, and that most insurgent group who call themselves "The Others."

Miss Howe spoke at length of some of the more prominent poets and Miss Helen Marshall and Mrs. William B. Birge read selections from their poems which made a delightful feature to the afternoon's entertainment.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB GIVES OPERETTA IN FINE FORM

Departing from the usual custom for concerts by the Girls' Glee club of the Norwich Free Academy, the club Friday night at Slater Hall demonstrated before a large and appreciative audience that there are greater possibilities for a club of the type of the type of the Academy Girls' Glee club.

Under the leadership of Miss Alma Bowman, the club gave a most praiseworthy presentation of The American Girl an operetta, which gave the members a chance to display excellent individual talent and demonstrate their ability in chorus singing, the usual method of presentation.

The operetta was based on the life of Eva Hope, an American girl, traveling in England with her father, and who accidently lands in Belford House, a school kept by Miss Carew who is expecting a new pupil from Ireland. Miss Hope plays the part of the girl from Ireland and this leads to many amusing incidents as Miss Carew was completely deceived by the false part played by the heroine.

The lead was played in admirable manner by Eunice Taft and every member of the cast and chorus carried her part with ease and grace, showing a most thorough study and preparation for the presentation of the operetta.

The solo numbers by the leading members of the cast were charmingly rendered and added greatly to the beauty of the play.

The presentation of The American Girl, brings more credit to a club which has always stood high among Girls Glee clubs in any High school in this state and by their presentation last evening they have gained a place in the hearts of music lovers in Norwich never enjoyed heretofore, by an Academy club.

It was the consensus of opinion that no happier selection could have been made for the 1924 concert by the club and there was nothing but praise for every member.

Address on Mental Hygiene.

Mrs. Bard then presented the speaker of the evening, Miss Betsey Mitchell, psychiatric social worker of the Norwich Neuro-psychiatric Clinic. She spoke on the topic, Community Responsibility in Mental Hygiene.

Miss Mitchell said that personality traits, the basis of mental hygiene, are worthy of as much attention as germs. Sunlight is considered of the utmost importance in the cure of constitutional diseases, she said. We have just learned that glass absorbs the violet rays of the sun, therefore if we are going to use sunlight right in the cure of disease we must come out of our glass houses.

Mental hygiene has the same aim we have had in the past in home training, school training and in our churches. Mental hygiene in this country began the day the Pilgrims landed. Emerson, in 1848, did practically the same thing the Pilgrims did when he stepped out and began to look at the religion of the day in a practical manner. It is not yet 100 years since the time when physicians in Vienna and Zurich started to study the workings of the human mind. It was about the last of the 19th century that they began to make progress.

All the new ideas in education have for their aim the same aim as mental hygiene, the development of the virtuous and the destruction of the vicious traits of character. An engineer figures for months on a bridge before he even attempts to build it. He also figures with care all the building material he has available. That is somewhat different than we have been in the habit of treating the feebleminded, and the delinquent. In the old days we used to call delinquents criminals. We no longer call them delinquents for we are now calling them unadjusted and we are studying the traits of the unadjusted.

Speaking of the great cost in caring for the feeble minded, delinquents, etc., Miss Mitchell said it costs from $8 to $14 a week to keep the thousand of persons in our 192 state institutions. The laws of Connecticut, she said, are based on the assumption that nothing can be done for insanity or crime until after it has happened. The cause of the trouble, she said, really started years before its appearance.

Miss Mitchell devoted most of the remainder of her talk in reading government statistics, explanations and comments on births, deaths, insanity, delinquents and mental diseases in general.

Charts illustrating the activities and aims of the mental hygiene clinic were on exhibition.

Pastor Compliments Guild.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United church, spoke briefly to the meeting. He complimented the guild on the fine work it is doing and spoke of his appreciation of the guild activities. He said the church should be the greatest agency in the community for community life. Rev. Mr. Abbott also spoke briefly of his impressions of mental hygiene.

KENTUCKY DERBY GETS START TODAY WHEN 20 HORSES GO TO THE BARRIER

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—(By The A. P.)—With Black Gold the outstanding favorite for the $50,000 Kentucky Derby to be run at Churchill Downs tomorrow afternoon, indications tonight were that the fiftieth renewal of the historic race, in which twenty dark three-year-olds will face the starter, would be witnessed by more than 75,000 spectators.

Louisville, rich in the lore of horseracing, was jammed with the largest pre-derby crowd in history. Every room in every hotel was occupied by from one to eight persons and the last hope of strangers arriving without reservations was private homes with a place to sleep. Before nightfall, seventeen special trains all loaded to capacity were parked in railroad yards.

It was a jovial, holiday seeking crowd, ready to submit to discomforts to see the turf classic of the year. The race at the gruelling distance of one mile and a quarter is regarded by experts as an "open" one, since the withdrawal of Wise Counsellor, St. James and Farazen, leaving Black Gold the favorite with Mad Play and Bracadale, owned by Harry F. Sinclair, whose Zev raced to victory in the 1923 derby.

Black Gold, the lion-hearted son of Jack Toney-Uncelt, was made the favorite because of his triumph in the Louisiana derby at New Orleans and by showing in winning the "derby mile" here last Tuesday. Over a track not very fast, Black Gold ran a mile in 1.37 4-5, within one and two-fifths seconds of the track record and was pressed galloping at the finish. The margin was small, but he has convinced admirers of his ability to carry 9 pounds, the weight tomorrow, and still retain speed.

Mad Play was made tonight the mount of Earl Sande, regarded as the nation's premier jockey, would be astride Bracadale rather than Mad Play tomorrow. The impression prevailed that Sam Hildreth, veteran trainer for the Rancocas stable owned by Sinclair, plans on having Mad Play set the pace, if possible, leaving Sande, who is an excellent judge of pace, to come from behind with Bracadale, for the finish.

While the experts are dividing their choice on Black Gold and the Sinclair entries, Transmute, which finished second in the Preakness a week ago is attracting considerable attention. Harry Payne Whitney, owner of Transmute, each year sends his best entry out to capture the derby, but he has not been successful since Regret, the only filly to win the classic, captured it in 1915.

AMERICAN LEGION TO TRY TO STOP CARPENTIER

New York, May 16.—The New York State American Legion was a silent spectator of Billy Gibson in his efforts to arrange a Carpentier-Tunney light heavyweight bout and will appeal to Governor French of Indiana to prevent the Carpentier-Gibbons show at Michigan City on May 31, Gibson announced today.

The legion intended to devote its share of the proceeds to its national child welfare and veterans' mountain camp in the Adirondacks and supported the cable negotiations which led to the contract for a Tunney-Carpentier match in June, Gibson said. The matter was now out of his hands, he added, and further steps to force Carpentier to fight Tunney before he meets Gibbons would be taken by the New York state American Legion.

Commander Edward B. Spafford of the state legion, confirmed Gibson's statements and said the legion had agreed to match Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, who served overseas as a marine, with Carpentier, "the soldier of France", in a colorful military setting. He attacked the Carpentier-Gibbons match as a prize fight and a violation of the Indiana state law, which permits only boxing matches.

BULKELEY HAS GOOD CHANCE FOR STATE TITLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 16. — Bulkeley's High school baseball team has a good chance for the state high school title. To date the wearers of the Orange and Black have a clean slate this season, with six victories. A tougher shedule has been drawn up by Manager William Reeves, Jr., for the state champions to play this season than has ever been played by a team representing Bulkeley on the diamond. Bulkeley has not yet clinched the state high school title this year. There are games to be played with New Britain High, Torrington High, Bridgeport High, Crosby High of Waterbury. These teams are the real contenders for the title and in order to get a clean cut title to the state high school crown a victory over these teams must be gained. Besides the above named teams who will meet Bulkeley on the diamond this year, Springfield Technical High of Massachusetts will be met twice with the first game coming on Thursday of next week at Springfield. Besides the intersectional game with Springfield, Bulkeley will travel to Palmer, Mass., on Saturday, May 24th. Yale Preparatory school will also be played next week.

The race for the state high school honors to date, shows that Bulkeley with New Haven Commercial High and Bridgeport occupy the top position in the standing of the high school teams. Torrington High has also a clean record for the year to date and is but one game below the three teams mentioned above. There has been several upsets for teams aspiring the state title during the past week. Crosby High, the runner up for the state title to the Bulkeley nine for the past two years and champions for the seasons of 1920-'21, received a setback at the hands of New Haven Hillhouse nine on Tuesday. The score was 6 to 5 in Hillhouse's favor and although Crosby outhit the Elm City athletes two to one, lost. This defeat for Crosby will stand against this outfit for the remainder of the season. Bridgeport High, by winning over New Haven Commercial at New Haven yesterday made it the fifth straight in games played in regular high school matches. Hartford High has yet to be defeated and gained a victory over St. Thomas' seminary yesterday. But this game will not count for the state title because St. Thomas is a prep school and not a high school team. New Britain received a defeat at the hands of Crosby High a week ago and will meet the undefeated New Haven Hillhouse nine on Friday of this week. The other important high school game for this week is the Bulkeley-Torrington game scheduled at New London on Saturday, May 17th.

Negotiations are under way, whereby Bulkeley will engage Haverhill High school nine of Massachusetts for the New England championship, providing Bulkeley wins at least one of the two contests scheduled against the Springfield Toch. A trip to Philadelphia to engage the Central High school of that city in a series of games and then journey to Camden, N. J., to meet the winning high school team of that city is also being planned. Games are being scheduled by the Bulkeley management to have the Bulkeley team busy at least three days a week and possibly four.

The game with Naugatuck High which was won by Bulkeley after ten innings of play recently was the first game of significance won by Bulkeley this year. On Saturday when the Orange and Black oppose Torrington High at Morgan park, the Bulkeley team will receive its second real test of the season. The records of Bulkeley and Torrington are unblemished to date. The visitors will have to use a new means to stop the hit making of the Bulkeley nine if they expect to keep the locals under subjection. There are several players on the Bulkeley nine who have batting averages of .700 and over.

GREB'S APPLICATION IS REFERRED TO MASS. COMMISSION

New York, May 16.—The New York state athletic commission today referred to the Massachusetts commission the application of Harry Greb for reinstatement so that he might fulfill his contract to meet Jack Delaney at the milk fund show, June 27.

The Bay state commission recently suspended Greb for six months. The New York commission followed with similar action. Chairman Brower told the middleweight champion and his manager, Jimmy Mason, that the New York commission could not intercede before the Massachusetts board reinstated him. Greb said he would appeal to the Massachusetts commission.

The local board passed a new ruling regarding knockouts to avoid repetition of the confusion that resulted last Friday from the ringing of the bell at the count of ten after the knockout in the Romero-Johnson bout at Madison Square Garden.

The new ruling prohibits use of the gong at such times and instructs the referee to pick up the count from the timekeeper at eight and continue to ten. The referee must then raise his hands as the signal of a knockout and call "out."

OLYMPIC TRACK TEAM LOSES TWO STARS

New York, May 16. — American Olympic track and field hopes were hit a hard blow today when Richmond W. Landon, who won the running high jump at the 1920 Olympics, and Willie Plant, national indoor walking champion, informed the Olympic committee they would have to withdraw as candidates for the team because of business reasons.

Both have been regarded as certain point winners for the United States at the Paris games in July. Landon, a former Yale athlete, qualified his position, however, by announcing he would enter the tryouts so that he would be ready to go if his affairs permit. He displayed old time brilliancy during the indoor season and shared with Harold Osborne and Leroy Brown, the principal hopes of Uncle Sam in his specialty.

Plant's withdrawal leaves a further gap in the ranks of walking stars. Joe Pearman, who finished second in the 10,000 metre walk at Antwerp four years ago, also has decided not to try for the team.

BOSTON COLLEGE BLANKS PENN STATE TEAM, 4 TO 0

Newton, Mass., May 16.—Boston college today continued its winning streak shutting out Penn state, 4 to 0. Wilson knocked out a home run in the first inning and in the third a series of singles brought in two runs. Penn state batters made six hits but McCreehan kept them scattered. Score by innings:

Martin Saves New Haven

Pittsfield, Mass., May 16.—Pittsfield staged a ninth inning rally scoring four runs and were only forces to accept defeat from New Haven, 6 to 4, by a wonderful one-handed catch by Gene Martin. Earl Webb, pinch-hitting for Mills, hit the ball to left field and Martin, after a hard run made a dive and gathered in the ball with his gloved hand an inch from the ground and clung to the sphere although he turned a somersault. New Haven scored four runs in the seventh after an error by Wacha on a ground ball which was perfect for a double play to relieve the side. Score:

GREENEVILLE WINS OPENING GAME IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

In a one-sided game at the Academy campus Friday afternoon the Greeneville grammar school defeated the Broadway school team 17 to 10. Broadway used four pitchers in an attempt to hold the hard hitting Greeneville team. Greeneville used Ferguson in the box and he held the Broadway team with ease. Two home runs and a triple featured the game.

AMERICAN RUGBY TEAM IN FINE SHAPE

Paris, May 16.—The American rugby team which will face the French team on Sunday had only a light workout today and will rest tomorrow. All of the players are in fine fettle and are eager to show the Frenchmen the battle of their lives. There is not a single strained tendon or charley horse in the camp.

Brascos Trim Coal Heavers

Worcester, Mass., May 16.—Manager Bransfield brought his Waterbury leaders to his home city today and defeated the Coal Heavers 10 to 8 in a free hitting game. Ulrich checked the Worcester three run start and then the Brascos made seven runs in the second by a combination of hitting and passes. Kamp forced two runs with the bases filled. Roser's long hitting was a feature, a homer over the right field fence and a drive to deep left center for a triple. Score:

Waterbury	0	7	1	1	1	0	0	0	0	—10

Canavan Pitches Good Game

Hartford, May 16.—Hard hitting by Hartford in the second and fifth innings defeated Bridgeport today, 3 to 1. All the champions' runs were made off Nemetz. Except in one inning, Canavan kept Bridgeport's hits scattered. Cosgrove, who had hit in sixteen consecutive games, went hitless today. The score:

Hartford	0	1	0	0	2	0	0	0	x	—3

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Freakish weather, the mercury jumping from 20 degrees to 90 degrees gave Norwich a backward spring in 1874, and killing frosts as late as May 13th were experienced in Danielsonville.

Monday, May 11, 1874—A large boiler for the steamer Ella made by the Woodruff Iron Works of Hartford, was shipped from that place yesterday on a locomotive platform car. The boiler weighs 16 tons and required 10 horses to draw it.

The predictions of an exceptionally dry season this year were in undisputed honor yesterday, the mercury and the air being hot and suffocating enough for July.

One of Bailey's peripatetic land steamers ran into a market wagon on Water street Saturday nearly demolishing the latter vehicle.

Coup If Murray's circus gave an exceptionally fine exhibition here Saturday. In connection with the circus an enterprising Main street merchant placed the first issue of ice cream on sale and did a thriving business.

C. T. Clark had on exhibition a very fine string of eight trout Saturday, the largest of which weighed one pound and 6 ounces.

Tuesday, May 12, 1874—The spring of 1874 will long be remembered as an unusually backward one. In this county up to May 10th not a fruit blossom had been seen, though the peach and cherry brought some out. Cherry trees blossom the last of April, peach trees about the same time, pear trees during the first week in May, apple trees about the fifteenth.

The stall on Market street has been a very convenient arrangement for boiling lobsters. A large wire basket, capable of holding 50 pounds, is swung above a large kettle, and by means of a pulley lowered or elevated as the fire requires. A number of local dealers have taken advantage of this labor saving work.

The West Side has begun to blossom. This is the season that this gentleman claims the palm for first honors in line.

Captain Thomas Hunt Appleby, of Newport, arrived at this port with a cargo of fur seal skins. They had been taken in the Behring Sea.

Wednesday May 13, 1874—The Connecticut Farmer, the Plough and the Dime Savings Bank, recently published show that the deposits are in a flourishing condition.

The report of the Thames National Bank shows that the resources on Jan. 1 were $1,044,97?; those of the Thames Loan & Trust Co. $1,?19,?19 and those of the Norwich Savings bank to be $?81,186.50.

Sheriff E. H. Beckwith is advertising for work at the Norwich jail to include upholstering, bottoming chairs, making carpets, burring wool and anything else that is necessary. Deliveries will be made to all local houses in less time than any other house.

The delegation from Sedgwick Post G. A. R. will attend the annual reunion of the Twenty-first regiment which is to be held in Willimantic next Saturday.

The recent action of the Baptists in Putnam, in dedicating their house without debt seems to have aroused their Congregational brethren. About $6,000 has been raised on condition that the whole sum, $10,000 can be raised to make the church free from debt.

Danielsonville yesterday a heavy frost was visible severe enough to injure fruit trees that were very forward.

Comstock the lessee of the Ferry offers to sell to the people of Groton, the ferry boat Underwood and assign his lease to the town in consideration of the payment of one half the cost of the boat and appurtenances thereto.

Thursday, May 14, 1874—It will be remembered that some difficulty arose between insurance companies and the Crouch Suspender Co., following the burning of their factory. The insurance was $45,000 and companies refused to pay on account of difficulty has been settled at 50 per cent basis.

Mr. R. G. Daley, Captain, made a trip from Norwich to Johnson and back late Tuesday, one of the fastest trips on record.

The meeting of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter Tuesday in Hartford. Hall, Lloyd M. Cobb of Norwich was elected grand royal secretary.

Major Ruger has been inspecting the troops at Fort Griswold, having in view the advisability of rifling and using the heavy guns at that fort.

MRS. ISABELLE HARDING GAINS 35 POUNDS ON TANLAC TREATMENT

Well Known New England Lady Gives Medicine Full Credit.

"My case had been given up as hopeless, so I do not hesitate to give Tanlac credit for saving my life," is the far-reaching statement of Mrs. Isabelle R. Harding, esteemed resident of 22 Lynwood St., Brookville, Mass.

"Furthermore," she continued, "Tanlac did not stop at saving my life for it increased my weight from ninety-seven pounds to one hundred and thirty-two and left me enjoying the best of health.

"Five years ago, while living in Seattle, Washington, I was taken so ill that no one thought I could live. Complications resulting from stomach trouble brought me down to my bed and I could not even walk two steps. In fact, I was so far gone that I thought my end had come, and I even went so far as to bid my husband and children good-bye. Nobody will ever know what I went through, for words just can't discribe it.

"One day, after I had been in bed [illegible] I purchased [illegible] a bottle of Tanlac. I finished this bottle feeling some better, so I got more and kept on improving until I had used ten bottles and then I was a well and happy woman. My recovery was so miraculous as to astonish those who knew how bad off I was. I am now enjoying the best of health and while I am sixty-nine I really don't feel over forty. I will be glad to have anyone, who is looking for something to bring back their health, call on me or write me. To me Tanlac is the grandest thing in the world."

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Minnesota Junction, Wis.—"I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and I was run down and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pains in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, thought it must be good, and brought it home to me and advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I was doing my own work, which I hadn't been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and a good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPINK, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

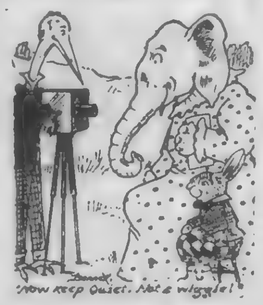
Now let me put on my thinking cap and my memory spectacles. Did we get the little rabbit to Carrot City in the last story? Well, I guess we did. And Photographer Crane, too, with his three legged camera.



Well, once again, all of a sudden, a kind voice exclaimed: "Gracious me, if this isn't Little Jack Rabbit from the Old Bramble Patch, Rail Fence Corner, Rabbitville!" and there stood the Circus Elephant.

"Come along with me. I'll introduce you to Alice, the nice lady elephant!" he said.

Away hopped the little rabbit with his kind elephant friend and nice Photographer Crane with his three legged camera.

Now Alice, the kind lady elephant was taking a gun bath out in her yard. But as soon as she saw who was hopping over to see her she came up to the gate and invited the little rabbit in.

And do you think he was afraid? Well, I guess not three times and a half. He hopped in as brave as a lion and took two big carrots out of his knapsack for Lady Elephant Alice. And what do we here them he told her all about the Yellow Dog Tramp who had bit him when a boy to become a hound dog.

"Now keep still, Alice," said the big Circus Elephant. "Photographer Crane is going to take your picture with Master Jack Rabbit. You'll see it on the Burnable Bugle if you're a good girl and don't wiggle."

Imagine me. Just then a beautiful [illegible] something by her [illegible] and spread out like a fan. Why don't you take my picture? The Lady Elephant [illegible]

She makes the little rabbit
Look like a tiny pig!"

Dear me! Wasn't that a disagreeable thing to have said about you? "Don't mind her," said the kind Well, I just guess it was.
Lady Elephant Alice to the bunny boy. "She's jealous, that's what's the matter with her!"

"Now keep quiet, not a wiggle.
Lady Alice, please don't giggle.
Hold your ears up, little rabbit,

shouted Photographer Crane from beneath the black cloth, pressing a small rubber bulb, and—well, here's the picture right close to the story. You can well believe that the little bunny is going to take it home to his mother rabbit, who, I know, will have it framed and hung up in the parlor of her little house in the dear Old Bramble Patch near the Sunny Meadow. And in the next story you shall hear how the Hippppotamus smiled at Little Jack Rabbit.

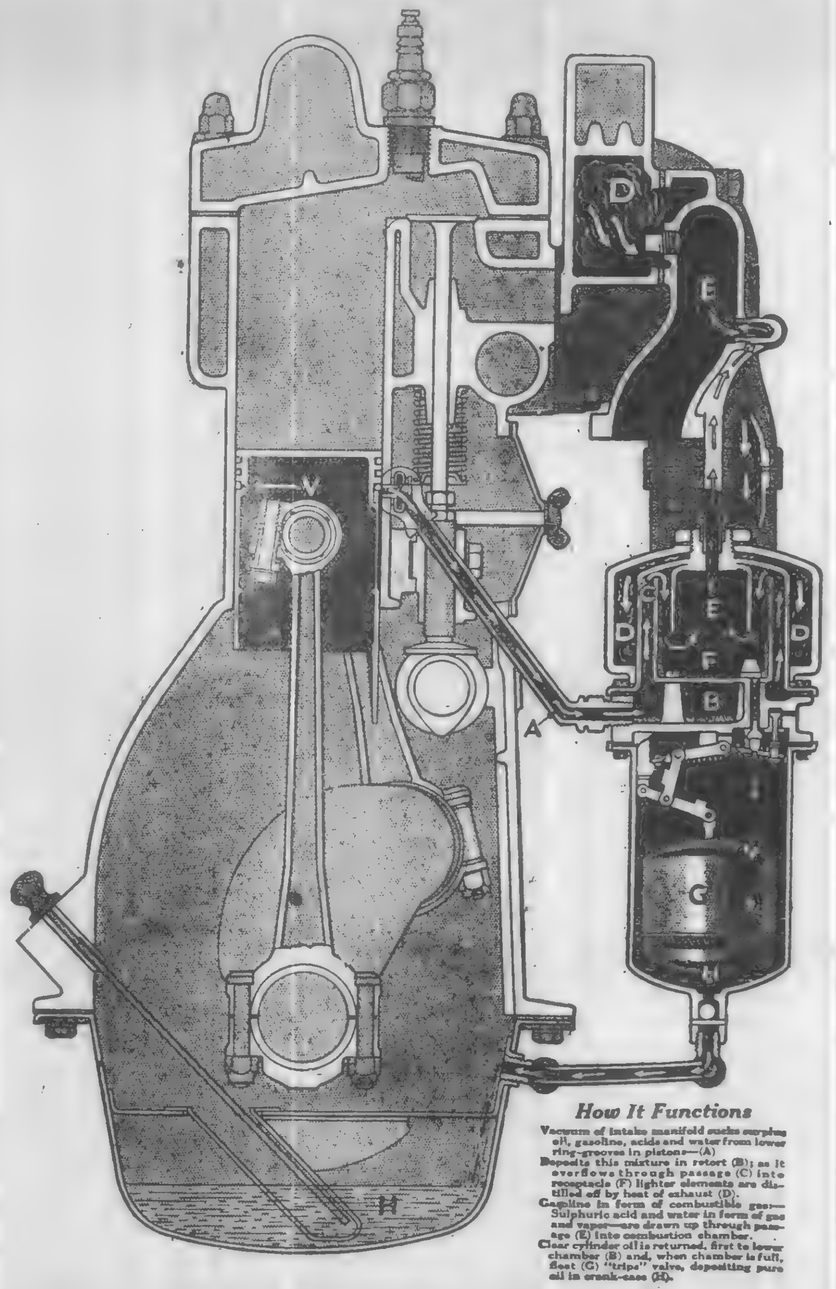
Again!—Rickenbacker Leads

Announcing the

"9th Fundamental"

This is the New Fuel and Oil Rectifier (licensed under Skinner patents) which totally Eliminates Crank-Case Dilution—greatest improvement in a motor since "Tandem Fly Wheels."



How It Functions

Vacuum of intake manifold sucks surplus oil, gasoline, acids and water from lower ring-grooves in pistons—(A)
Deposits this mixture in retort (B); as it overflows through passage (C) into receptacle (F) lighter elements are distilled off by heat of exhaust (D).
Gasoline in form of combustible gas—Sulphuric acid and water in form of gas and vapor—are drawn up through passage (E) into combustion chamber.
Clear cylinder oil is returned, first to lower chamber (B) and, when chamber is full, float (G) "trips" valve, depositing pure oil in crank-case (H).

You have learned to expect from this progressive organization the most advanced engineering discoveries and inventions.

Your confidence is again justified by the incorporation in this motor of the greatest improvement since Rickenbacker "Tandem Fly Wheels" eliminated all violent "Periods of Vibration."

This device we term the "9th Fundamental" improvement pioneered by Rickenbacker in a period of less than three years—and that is more than has been done by the entire industry in the last ten!

"RECTIFIER"—look the word up in the dictionary. Webster says, "to refine or purify, by repeated distillation or sublimation, by which the fine parts of a substance are separated from the grosser."—"to correct from a wrong, erroneous or false state—to rectify errors, mistakes and abuses."

All cars selling over $1,000 must eventually have this. But as usual, Rickenbacker has it first.

Rickenbacker policy is to give the buyer the benefit of inventions and discoveries just as soon as we are sure of their desirability.

Others wait until public demand forces them to add the extra cost.

Rickenbacker is always a year or two ahead.

"What does this Rectifier do?"—you ask.

It does so many things—by correcting the primary cause of most motor troubles—that a mere enumeration of them makes a formidable array.

Yet the principle is so simple—after a five-minutes' examination you will clearly understand.

It prevents "Crank-Case Dilution."

That is to say it prevents the mixture of gasoline, water and Sulphuric Acid with the lubricating oil in the crank-case.

Having done that, the Rectifier accomplishes the following amazing results:—

(1) Guarantees pure oil of full viscosity to all bearings.
(2) Prevents "blow-bys." (3) Prevents "Oil Pumping."
(4) Maintains full compression.
(5) Maintains full power of motor after long service.
(6) Prevents scoring of cylinders.
(7) Prevents excessive wear of piston rings.
(8) Prevents piston "Slaps."
(9) Prevents leaking past rings. (10) Prevents carbon.
(11) Prevents fouling of spark plugs.
(12) Prevents pitting of valves.
(13) Prevents sticking of valves. (14) Prevents pitting of cams.
(15) Prevents etching of link pins—"stretching" chains.
(16) Prevents etching of piston rings, pins, bushings, etc.
(17) Results in great increase in gasoline and oil mileage.
(18) Unnecessary to drain crank-case every 500 miles, as formerly. Depending on speed you drive, you may expect 1,500 to 2,000 miles per gallon of oil.
(19) Permits use of lightest grades of cylinder oil at all times.
(20) By using gasoline formerly wasted adds about 15% to mileage per gallon.
(21) Vaporizes water from fuel, feeds steam into cylinder where it acts to dissolve carbon and prevents detonation—"knocks."
(22) Prevents forming of Sulphuric and Sulphurous Acids.
(23) Relieves pressure in crank-case, takes place of "breather."
(24) Valves will not require frequent re-grinding.
(25) Cylinders good for 50,000 miles without regrinding.
(26) Piston Rings good for at least 50,000 miles.
(27) Prevents wear of valve stems and guides.
(28) Conserves oil formerly drained from crank-case.
(29) Should reduce motor upkeep 75%.
(30) Will double life of motor.

NOTE: A Rickenbacker car has been driven 30,000 miles without draining crank-case.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
THESE DELICATE WOMEN

His mother was so delicate she had to
Be protected
By every means we could devise—she
Was a fragile creature!
I dared not show her his report last it
Should be detected
He'd sadly fallen down at school and
Bunked with every teacher.
I knew that it would break her heart
And give her a relapse
To know just what a woeful mess
Our son had made of school.
I knew that she expected he could do
What other chaps
Were capable of doing—heaven knows
He's not a fool.

Yet somehow to her knowledge came
The contents of his paper
Which stated how, beneath my care,
He'd up and spilled the beans.
It told her how, in other words, he'd Cut full many a caper
Instead of grabbing value for our Freely squandered means.
Then did that invalid collapse and Throw a fit or two
Else I could call the doctor? You
Don't know a sickly wife!
She turned our laddie o'er her knee
And spanked him black and blue
She gave that squirt the lacing of his Young and wasted life.

She said to me with withering scorn:
You both deserve a medal!
He's got away with murder underneath
Your coddling sway!
My whimpers, and you promptly get a
Case of frigid pedal—
He reads his mother's tender care,
Beginning with today."
She's delicate as ever; I'm as husky
As a mule
And yet our laddie walks the chalk
And minds her every whim.
He's marking like a Trojan, getting
Handy marks in school—
[illegible] mother to be strong

ONLY WAITING

I am waiting till the shadows
Are a little longer grown.
I am waiting till the glimmer
Of the day's last beam is flown;
These from out the gathered darkness,
Holy, deathless stars shall rise
By whose light my soul shall gladly
Tread its pathway to the skies.

SHOULD ALWAYS REVERE MOTHER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: I must we wish to thank the editor for the yellow paper which we received with much surprise. It will be used as a reminder of the many good features of the Social Corner.

Chatham Rambler: Many thanks for the Easter card. Yes, I saw thousands of calla lilies on my trip in California, the land of flowers. I think you well remember in the early days of the Social Corner Sunday, May 11th was Mother's day, a day every man and child should respect and honor. While some have mother with them yet many have had aways the most precious friend that man ever had. The life of the home, the success of the community depends largely upon mother. Those who are fortunate and have mother with them should give her all the comforts of life possible, for you cannot overpay her for all she has done for you.

This is the time of year when the Corner sisters are looking tired and sad from housecleaning. Just bring in a market basket of cowslips and it will put a smile on the face that won't rub off.

Twice Twenty: The roll call will be fine and when the book is completed it will certainly be some book.

May the writers keep right on the job with no regards to sex or age, with the chuck full of pep to fill the [illegible] Kennel page.

RURAL DELIVERY.

A VISIT TO THE COUNTRY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Two weeks ago I passed through Norwich on my way to visit Prairie Chicken over the week end. Found her real busy with her farm work and making strawberry plants to be boxed and shipped to many states in New England. I enjoyed the trip going from the city to my country home and at this season of the year every thing looking so fresh and green. A friend had a bouquet of arbutus, the most beautiful I think I ever saw. She had gathered it the day before

Country Sister: I think your daughter and my daughter both of the same town had a nice little talk on the Norwich bus not long ago about their mothers. It is interesting to know who is who. I had a pleasant surprise last Sunday. My son came and took me into the country in a direction I had never been before. We left the city by bus, passed many nice farms but as our friends lived off the bus line we had to walk a mile or so. I enjoyed it though we returned to the city in the evening by auto.

I haven't seen any answer to the sister who asked what would clean zinc. My mother always had one under her kitchen stove and she went over it with a clean woolen cloth wet in kerosene. Try it. I can say to Kingston Brown I lived in those good old days, have made cheese, dipped tallow candles, gather Balm Gilead buds for liniment and put to a bottle of alcohol. I have gathered walnut bark to color a gray, also huckle berry blossoms when steeped and set with alum made a pretty light yellow. Other plants like choke berry were used to color old faded dresses or any garment after it had been washed for bright strips in the rag carpets that every housewife owned in those good old days. I have made two of 25 yards each and one is doing duty now in the old farm house in the country.

It's a good idea to have the Social Corner roll call.

Stranger in the City.

PLANNING FOR PICNIC IN JUNE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: When I looked at the Saturday Bulletin and found so few letters I felt like sitting right down and writing a few lines, if no more. I want to say first that at last I got to the May meeting. Have been trying for some time to attend one. I enjoyed it very much every one was so cordial it made me feel at home. I saw quite a few new faces and got somewhat acquainted. It does one good to have something new to think about. One sister met us at the door when we got there and gave us a hearty welcome. I think it was Betsy Bobbet and then we had a nice dinner, and how good everything tasted after our ride of about 20 miles! I wish it was so I could attend the meetings often but it isn't always convenient.

We are planning to have a picnic at Central Village in June. I will find out about the hall and have it put in the paper so anyone that would like to come can. Will tell more about it later. What dreary weather we are having now, but you know during these days I always think how we will enjoy the sun. When it does shine it seems that it shines a little brighter. Some of the sisters spoke about bobbed hair. I read in the paper about one old lady 90 years old who had just got her hair bobbed. I think that if she had been nine instead of 90 it would seem more sensible. I for one wouldn't part with my hair and I am not 90 yet. I think it is a shame to cut off beautiful hair as some have. They never will have as good again but fashion takes the lead. I think Ma of Greene Gables was pretty smart in writing her letter last week. She did better than some of the rest of us. I like her letters. There is always some thing good in them.

I don't know who Kochie is and have been wondering who I saw out berrying. Whoever it was I hope will come again this year as we have plenty right in our own pasture.

I think the editor is pretty good in printing the Social Corner roll call.

Am still working on bed quilts. Have got one all ready for the frame ready to tie.

I hope Free Air will give us more air and drive the clouds away. We are hoping for the sunshine.

Salad Dressing: Four tablespoons vinegar reduced if very strong, a little salt, pepper and 1-4 teaspoon of mustard, a piece of butter size of a walnut, 3 tablespoons sugar. Put on stove and when boil— add 2 eggs and 1 tablespoon flour well beaten. Reduce with cream or milk if too thick. This is good and not expensive.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

RURAL AUNTY.

WHY WE LIKE THE NORTH

Dear Corner Members: I saw by Saturday paper that I did not reach the waste basket and after reading E. M. R. C. P.'s wonderful letter of the sunny south, speaking of their wonderful weather and explaining to those who do not understand why oranges are always so high in price here in the north.

I have a friend who, a number of years ago, went to Orchard, Florida and has several orange groves and would be more than pleased to sell them and return north again. So it is not always gold where the sun shines the brightest. Also I have a cousin now in the north visiting relations. She is located five miles from the town of Boomer, West Virginia, and teaches among the colored and Italians in the coal mining district. She says the soft coal which is used to run our plants and trains is sold at the mines there at one dollar per ton, or two dollars per ton if delivered, some difference here. Transportation answers why. She also states that cottages are built of three and four rooms among the side hills, upon spiles and it is nothing to hear in the dead hours of the night any number of razor back hogs, under your cottage grunting. In that section they still roam at large. Also they say the sun only shines there a little while daily, so last week she saw her first sun set which she had not seen in many months.

Is it any wonder why we like our dear old northern states, even if we do have to plod around in show knee deep, and face the bitter winds, which are bound to hang in the northern section most of the time, and grumble how cold and late our spring is?

Well Ma of Greene Gables, I am glad you and Bug, got down to the Rose of New England, and saw The Covered Wagon. I know it did your soul good.

I will close and give the rest of the members space. So here are best wishes to all of the members.

KOCHIE.

GIVING AND RETURNING FAVORS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: There are different kinds of favors and flavors. "Valentine favors" for instance consists of sentimental heart shaped cards booklets and "Easter favors" are lily decorated cards and novelties sent out so as to remember Easter day and there are other favors which are neither novelties nor cards —business favors or kindnesses or the favors of the charitably inclined. A favor extended grudgingly is not a favor at all. It is more or less given under compulsion or it is extended in such a way that it loses its flavor.

The only way to give favors is to "come clean." That is to give and take in the proper spirit. Don't down a man with faint praise, if he deserves praise for a good act or for favors shown: be outspoken and credit him his dues. In return [illegible] show that you appreciate them. Don't take it for granted that she do[illegible] cancelled when the like favor is performed. Pay a little interest on the money or do two favors where only one may be expected.

Dr. Crane says in McClure's: Out in the country one day I stood on the hill top and saw the railway track away into the distance. The sun was shining brightly, I could perceive a train many miles away. Towards night I stood upon the same hill and could see the track only a little distance. Beyond that it was swallowed up in the shadows but I knew the track runs on.

There are high moments in life when we can see the far reach of righteousness and there is many a dark hour when doubt and unfaithfulness down all us.

Indeed our moments of visions are comparatively few. Day after day all we can do is keep the revelations of those moments in our memory and plod on through the fog and obscurity, trusting more to faith than to sight.

Dr. Frank Crane says we cant abide on the peaks. Most of our journey is through the valley."

The merchant at his desk must keep in mind his larger plans even when details would deny them.

The sailor must go on dead reckoning when there are no stars by which he can set his course. But he knows the stars by which he can set his course. But he knows the stars are still there.

Even in love we come all too rarely to the mountain's transfiguration and most of the time we must look grimly forward with hope, believing what we have once seen and hoping for what we shall see again.

Underneath the crowding evidences of the power of evil every man must believe in these eternal and far more potent cosmic laws of good. Did you once glimpse a great and beautiful love burning like a shekinah?

However gross may be the present darkness you must believe that the fire still burns. The track runs on.

The soul that will not go forward until he can see every bit of the way to the end will advance but little, most of time we must be stepping out into the dark.

There is a certain class of business firms who have built up a tremendous business by a seeming adherence to the square deal rule or rather the appearance of being absolutely honest when [illegible] only for any honest or just as far as they have to. The man who is honest simply because he knows honesty is the best policy, and is honest only so long as it seems the best policy has a poor quality of honesty for only that honesty is the best policy which is honest in the dark as well as in the light. Only that man deserves to be called honest who is willing to follow the path of honesty even when it seems to lead into the abyss.

None of us can see more than a little way most of the time. Fortunate we are if now and then we reach some height where the great view unfolds and if the darkness seem to close in we can say to ourselves, "The track runs on."

LAUNDERING LINEN COLLARS

Dear Cornerites: The following method will make collars look as well as if done in a steam laundry. Add one fourth of a teaspoon of borax to the two tablespoons of cold starch and into a scant quart of warm water. Dip the collars in this mixture saturating thoroughly, then wring and roll them in a clean white cloth for ten minutes. Stretch them on the ironing-board and rub them very hard with a clean damp cloth so no starch can adhere to them, and iron them with fairly hot irons. If you want to polish them, dampen the right side with a clean white cloth and warm water, and iron over with the blunt end of the polishing iron.

To clean willow furniture apply salt and water with a brush, and rub thoroughly until dry.

An easy method of keeping your fingers warm while hanging out clothes in frosty weather is to heat the clothespins thoroughly in a pan in the oven before starting.

To make a curtain frame take a light piece of planking, measure to fit the curtains before they are wet; then tack together at the corners. Tack brads (that is tacks without heads) into the sides and ends near enough together to slip each scallop of the curtain over. Several pairs of curtains may be stretched at one time.

PETERKINS.

SOME COOKING HINTS

Dear Sisters: For sour milk recipes in place of using all soda I use one fourth spoon of soda added to one level teaspoon of baking powder. I find the ingredients much lighter. I wish some reader would try it please.

When eggs are high I put my cod-fish through the chopper after it is boiled, or chop it in the chopping bowl if not cooked. Then put one teaspoon sugar in one table spoon corn starch with two tablespoons, season with salt and a dash of pepper and make the cakes flat and roll them in crumbs.

When you don't have much milk or if you need quite a little milk to cook with I take one quart of milk and pour off the cream and put one cup of water with it which makes a pint extra. Then I take another pint or the rest of that bottle and take potato water and put with it (one potato in one quart of water) that makes three pints of milk or some times I put one quart of water with the potato water then that makes two quarts of milk it leaves me with two quarts of pure milk, and I make my cakes waffles, bread with the substitute.

HILLSIDE.

THANKS FOR REMEMBRANCES.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: If I don't write I am afraid you will all think I am a backslider.

Oh, What a terrible accident that was in our Social Corner sister's family! Just think, so suddenly. God bless Sister Grace and her family.

I want to thank all the sisters who rembered me on my birthday. I received eighteen post cards. I also thank Gypsy for her pretty gift and Queen Elizabeth for her beautiful present.

Unome, Did you arrive home before dark May 7th?

U. C. E.: Some class to you. Why don't you and Bumble Bee come over. Does Preston City loog good to you? Did you call on Charlene, Unome's daughter?

Best wishes to the Corner.

ANSWERING ROLL CALL

Editor and Sisters:

I'll just drop in and answer roll call and say, that Wednesday was a red letter day. The meeting at Franklin Hall was great. Such a dinner! Enough said, we know who, is who.

After I came home from the Corner meeting, and rested up a minute, we went to a May basket party, do you wonder sisters that I could sing at 12 o'clock last night "The End of a Perfect Day." Dear Grace, words fail me to express my sympathy to you all.

Yours.

All, best wishes, for you as ever

ANONA

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: This week I am sending some recipes, the first of which was requested by Bonie.

Come Again Cakes: 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup shortening, 1 cup molasses, 1-2 cup boiling water, three teaspoons soda (I use two), 4 or 5 cups of flour according to the flour, you can use cinnamon or ginger for spice.

1 cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 1-2 cup shortening, one tablespoonful soda, let cool, then add 4 cups flour, one cup molasses, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Eveready Biscuit: 1 quart milk, 1 cup mashed potatoes, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cake yeast, ½ cup water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup melted fat, 1½ quarts flour. Method: Scald the milk and cool. When luke warm add the mashed potatoes, salt, soda, baking powder, yeast, (which has been dissolved in the cold water) sugar, melted fat and the flour, sufficient to make a soft sponge. Let the sponge stand two hours or until it is light, then add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Knead thoroughly, place in a large mixing bowl and set in the refrigerator or some place where the temperature is low enough to keep the yeast and baking powder from acting and not cold enough to freeze and destroy their action.

Ever-ready biscuit dough is at its best from 24 hours to a week after it is prepared.

A variety of hot breads may be made with this dough as a foundation. When needed, pinch off a portion of it, form into rolls put in a warm place to rise for an hour and bake. With this recipe one may have hot rolls at any time they wish. Following are suggestions for a variety of hot breads made from this dough.

Parker House Rolls: Turn a portion of ever ready dough on a slightly floured board and roll ¾ inch thick. Cut with a round or oval cutter. Grease in the middle with a floured knife, rub one-half with melted butter and fold over. Place one inch apart in an oiled pan and let rise until double in size. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Cinnamon Rolls: Roll everready biscuit dough ¼ inch thick. Spread with melted butter, and sprinkle with a mixture of five parts sugar to one part ground cinnamon. Roll as a jelly roll. Cut in 3-4 inch slices and place in a buttered pan, cut side up, to rise. When light bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Sweet Rolls: Shape ever-ready biscuit dough into a long roll, let rise and bake. When about half baked, sprinkle sugar and shredded cocoanut on top.

Fruit Puffs: Roll ever-ready biscuit dough 1-2 inch thick; spread with a fruit paste made by mixing 4 tablespoons of sugar and the same amount of chopped raisins and nuts, 2 tablespoons of melted butter and 1-2 teaspoon of cinnamon. Roll as a jelly roll, cut in slices 3-4 inch thick and place in a buttered pan, cut side up, to rise. When light bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Date Rolls: Use a date paste instead of a raisin and nut mixture used in Fruit Puffs (above). Cut 1 lb. of dates in small pieces, add 1 cup sugar, ¼ cup water and 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Cook to a paste and cool before spreading it on the dough.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

Dear Editor: Saw my name in the roll call and will answer. Have been going to write for two or three weeks and thank those that answered my call for a corn cure. They say that for every evil under the sun there is a cure or there is none. If there is one find it, if there isn't never mind it, but that last you can't do with a corn. So I have set out to find it. Two cures have been sent in and many reliefs. The cure is what I want but many thanks for the reliefs. I agree with Ma of Greene Gables, "That corns come back." I am pretty sure that cutting your toe off with that chisel would be a cure but really I had rather try some of those doctors that rub your back first and see what they could do.

Lucy Acorn: That is a red spot not pink in that corn. What kind of oil was that you used with powdered Saltpeter? Thank you for the "invite" to the meetings but I don't believe I could forget that corn and I am afraid it would get stepped on. Wait until it is cured. I see that my request has brought two new writers to the Corner. Wasn't that good!

Sympathy and Lonesome were the ones.

The editor wants helpful letters and it will help me to get rid of that corn for it makes me run over my shoe and wear a larger sized one to say nothing of the suffering.

The next time you get stung try putting kerosene on the place and see if that doesn't help and for poison ivy try making a tea out of sweet fern and bathing it with that.

Don't leave out the cooking recipes for we can live without poetry, we can live without books, but civilized men can not live without cooks."

I would like to hear some more about corns. Kitty Lou what would you do if you had,

A. CORN?

ANTICIPATING MOOSUP MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I haven't written in quite a while but I have been very busy just the same. I have made six large rugs since after New Years till the beginning of April.

And then I had some sewing to do, so now I am cleaning house. I have my part all done, but now I am waiting for the painters to do the rest.

Great Grandma: I hope you receive a good many cards on your birthday.

Black Eyed Susie: No, I do not live near Hartford. You will have to guess again. More to the east.

Rural Aunty: I hope you will be successful in your June meeting at Moosup. I hope it will be before the thirteenth so I can go. I expect to work in the mill when school is out and I would like to meet some of the Social Corner sisters. I will close wishing you all the best of luck, and best of health to the sick folks.

ROSY POSY.

WHAT WILL REMOVE PURPLE INK SPOTS?

Dear Editor and Cornerites: Although I have read each page of letters Saturday I have just simply neglected to write. And too, there have been so many changes.

Have any of the sisters any suggestions for removing purple ink spots? What has become of Keturah? Haven't seen anything from her pen for ages.

I will make this letter short so as not to occupy too much space. But knew I must answer to my name on the roll call. Do I, by a letter automatically become a member again

AIRY, (June 26.)

HOW TO MAKE VINEGAR

Dear Sisters: I have found out the proper way to make vinegar.

You can buy the cider from a farmer. Take the sweet cider as it comes from the mill, strain it and put it in a clean cask. If the cask is open cover it with a clean cloth, or lid. If you use cloth it wants to be a heavy one. Add one cake of good fresh yeast for every five gallons of cider, mix each cake well in a quart of cider before putting into the cask. Keep the cask in a dark room of medium temperature, about 70 degrees. In a few days bubbles will arise, due to production of gas. These will be less evident after a few days, and the liquid should be kept three weeks or more in this condition. After three weeks drain the liquor off. Be careful not to disturb the sediment in the bottom of the cask. Place the liquid in a cask that has previously held good vinegar, or put it back in the same cask. After cleaning fill the cask not more than three fourths full and leave the stopper out, or remove cover to admit air. Either is all right but keep the opening screened with cheese cloth. Add one pint of good old vinegar for every five gallons of liquid; but if you have some mother of vinegar it is fine. In six months time the liquid in the cask will be changed to vinegar.

RYE BROCK.

SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY

Dear Sisters: How can anyone look on summer and not make the world a more beautiful place to live? I wonder if there is any one accustomed to thinking about life who does not want to contribute something toward making it a fine experience for the spirit to welcome, and for the body to help carry out. What woman does not remember the days when other women were saying: Bringing up my children, doing my house work, taking my share in the work of the Ladies Aid, seems to be women's ways of service? Bringing up the children is everything to me and they stand first, of course. But as for the other things sometimes I wish—"That is about as far as she ever went." Sometimes I wish—and if she did go any farther, in the days when the children were in school or when they were married, or when it had become possible for her to have a servant for the household work—if, then, she did better the conditions about her, how few ways were open.

Pure food laws she had never heard of. They were hardly in existence. She ate benzoate of soda in her canned goods, fed it to her children and knew only "they came down" sick, or were bilious or irritable and that they died.

Protecting food from dust seldom occured to her. Vegetables were set outside the groceries—sometimes on the sidewalks, and whole beefs were hung outside the butcher shops exposed to the summer dust of vehicles and pedestrians; and she serenely ordered cuts from those things, and fed them and gave them to her children.

Pure milk supply? Why, she had known her milkman all his life, and that was as far as her opinion extended. Perhaps she had known his stables were clean: but as to whether his cattle were tubercular or not, or whether the germ of typhoid or scarlet fever came into her home from the milk pail she had no way of knowing. Epidemics "broke out"—that was all she knew.

Garbage collection? The disposal of garbage consisted of a hole dug in the back yard and used for two or three weeks dumping refuse, and then it was filled in and another hole dug. The fact that flies swarmed about the yard and about the house bore to her no information about that garbage hole. It "called flies"—she knew that. But, then, one darkened the rooms and drove them out of the house. What else could one do! That garbage bred flies by the million was no common knowledge. Playground? Why, any child could play. That there are lessons to be taught by play—just as well as by books was not a thing that was told or believed. Medical inspection of school children? The children's parents would see to that and the fact that many children's parents did not see to it meant nothing to the community.

Clean up days and ally inspection. Nobody was willing to interfere with his neighbor's ally. That was a personal matter regardless of the fact that flies and disease bred in his refuse were not personal flies or personal disease at all, but could spread to a neighborhood or town.

Manual training and domestic science? Those were things for city schools—perhaps never for country schools or the little towns. "There is a good deal of nonsense talked about those things, any way, "women said, just as people are forever saying the things about which they have never found out. Children's gardens and flower shows for the children? Nobody had time. Rest-rooms. Why, nearly everybody had friends—or there were the stores. Public recreations? Oh, that took care of itself. Parks? Well, yes, for cities. Little towns could not afford things like that.

And, just as suddenly, all that great area of people who had another interest, too—the great interest of spiritual development are saying to one another in a tone reverent and happy. "Why, all these things that develop humanity and help it to live its splendid best, are things which will give the spirit room to grow."

And that is true. And so it is a time when everybody can unite in this great new effort to bring to bear on life a hundred influences which will make a better race.

The woman who wishes her chance were wider to perform loving service no longer need wonder what she can do. No longer she need be obliged to satisfy herself with charity the packing and carrying of baskets of food and of old clothes to those who are already miserable. She has a greater task. She can actually have a share in keeping folks from being miserable in body and in spirit. Besides the loving service in her own home. She has a chance for loving service all about her.

Hearts of women all over the country are asking, "What, just exactly can I do in my town to help." The woman who inaugurates such service in her own home town. has done a service just as truly as if she had sent out a message to reach thousands.

GETTING THE WINTER'S POTATOES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Present. I answer to the roll call. I'll tell you how I raised enough potatoes for the winter and yet we ate the potatoes. First I cut off the ends with all the eyes and saved them for a week. Then each week I planted them. I left two and three eyes on each piece of potato and sometimes I pealed them thick and planted the pealings and used the rest of the potato to boil for dinner. You will say, didn't they get dry? Yes, but when I planted them each time I watered them and that started them on the right way and I had splendid luck. They grew fine, every piece sprouted. When the tops showed I hoed them and then when the weeds came I got sick but the boss pulled the weeds and hoed them some more. Then when it was time to dig them I hired a man to dig them. I hired two children to pick them up and help me carry them into the cellar, and I had enough for all winter.

Variety Cake: Two eggs, 1-2 cup shortening creamed together, pinch salt, 1 cup milk, handful currants, handful raisins, handful cocoanut, handful nuts, little citron or orange or lemon peal, enough flour, not too thick, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup sugar. Bake in a loaf. Fine.

As ever your friend,

ARMITAGE.

LIFE AND THE SEASONS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: The thought of spring brings happiness, courage and hope, I think we can say to all persons. The earth is renewed and refreshed after the winter disappears and spring is at hand. The seemingly sleeping and lifeless earth puts forth new life and slowly but surely we watch for the first indications of spring. The peeping of the frogs and the songs of the birds are pleasing to our ears. Blades of green grass creep over the earth until a beautiful green carpet is laid which fascinates the eye of the gazer over the fields and pastures.

The sun increases its heat, soon buds form and later the air is filled with the sweet scent of a variety of beautiful blossoms. When nature is clothed in spring attire one is filled with faith, hope and courage to baffle anew with life's struggles, and we realize fully that there is a time to sow as well as a time to harvest and garner the fruits of our combined efforts.

The seasons and life are similar and can be compared together. Youth is the springtime of life, unfurling and developing the character of the child into. Youth is filled with promise, hope, ambition nad courage.

Summer represents manhood and womanhood where youth has blossomed out, and autumn stands for those in the prime life whose toils and struggles have brought forth fruitful results, but let us not forget that the best results do not represent riches and prosperity alone. If the world or someone in it has been helped or made better for having lived, and if our influence will live on after we have been garnered into the Home Beyond by our Father's hand, then we have not lived in vain.

Winter is a good representative of old age. Maybe before it is gone one's life work will be finished, while many will do what lies at hand to do, waiting and watching for spring to again appear, so that they can see the fulfilment of their hopes, wishes and desires for the younger generation, and to again bask in the sunshine and take on a new temporary lease of life.

I have been poorly the last of the winter but shall soon feel much better I hope. I wish to thank each sister who remembered me at Easter time, and on my birthday, May 7th. It was very kind and thoughtful of you to think of and to remember me. I enjoy the paper as usual, and when I read that sorrow has entered into the homes of some of the sisters I grieve for you and think of you often. Those of your who are sick have my sympathy and hope for a speedy recovery. Best wishes.

DIANA.

GROWING OLD

Mr. Editor and Social Members: In the roll call of May 3d I saw a call for Antique and I said to my self, "Is that editor with that curious spelling trying to call me Ann Teek?" Well he might be so here goes: Present!

I am very glad of the call and a chance to write as I have some questions to ask.

Most every paper you take up has something to say about bobbed hair. One paper puts it this way, "Have you seen Mrs. B. with her hair bobbed? I tell you she looks like a girl and for a while mother will sit by her mirror lifting her locks, shaping them into a bob and eventually there will be another bobbed head among the grandmothers all because it makes her look like a girl." and what I want to know is this, Does it? Can we bluff them that way! Do we look any younger and is there any object in that? There seems to be a great cry over growing old and why? Isn't it just as well to grow old and take pride in our children and grand children as it is to try to be a girl our selves. The years are not empty. As you grow old you can take lots of pleasure with your grandchildren. These flappers, married and single, need mothers so I say let some of us grow old, and not try to be girls!

"Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be the last of life for which the first was made."

ANN TEEK.

ATMOSPHERE OF GOOD CHEER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It certainly was a fine day after the thunder shower or May 7th when a goodly number met at Buckingham Memorial, with visitors from Willimantic, Jewett City, Waterford and other places. One was from Attawaugan. Missed Pa, but "The Lone man" had dinner with us. Windham Blue Bell proved a delightful hostess, with her able helper Guess, and others who served a fine dinner. In place of the Doxology which we usually have we repeated the Lords' prayer. By the looks of the empty plates, think all were favored with good appetites. It is a good place to go if you have the blues, or almost any kind of a pain, or ache. There is such an atmosphere of good cheer you forget all your cares. Our hostess favored us with one interesting reading about the home which was all the entertainment of the kind we had. The criticisms on our harmless jokes at the previous meeting discouraged Chocolate but I think she will be willing to allow "by gones to be by gones" and favor us next time. We call each other sisters, and of course are not supposed to reveal family secrets, as those not acquainted with us might form a wrong opinion of our entertainments.

Long live the Social Corner, and best wishes to every member of each club.

Crimson Rambler: I do like salt pork fried with a cream, or even milk gravy, and with baked potatoes, it is good enough for anyone.

WURDY BELLE.

ACCEPTS SUGGESTION

Sorry if I caused any hard or hurt feelings with any letter, but mean only for the good of the corner. Yes, I know it would have been better to speak at the time (instead of writing afterward) but one's brains doesn't always work quick enough and then I would only have stuttered and stammered if I had tried to.

Chocolate: Hope you will take hold again at our June meeting. You were not responsible in any way for what occurred and don't know of any one who could fill your place as well as you do.

Kitty Lou: Told you I would let you know how I got along with the receipts.

Didn't care for the peanut butter and the corn in camp style, anything extra, but had great luck with the ginger bread and the pie crust was better than any I've ever made.

Chelsea: How is our children's program coming on? Anything new for it? Isn't it about time we got our heads together?

As ever

TRIPLETS

A TRIP INTO MASSACHUSETTS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been so long since I have written a letter or attended any of the gatherings that I feel almost a stranger there The last time I was at the Buckingham many new sisters came in that I had never seen before. They seem to be constantly changing. But here and there in the crowd I see old friends, some whose friendship I value very much, and never would have known had I not met them in "our Corner." Though I feel at times that I must be almost lost to them. I know by some I am not forgotten, and I thank Apple Blossom, Delilah Deal, Black Eyed Susie, Necia and Olga for cards sent me for my birthday April 24.

Now I want to tell you all how my younger daughter and I passed the day with friends Saturday May 3d. These friends have an automobile, and took us with two others to Springfield, Mass., to the dedication of the little Seventh Day Adventists church on Central street, corner of Beech. It was a beautiful day, cool but sunshiny. We started from home about eight o'clock a. m. What a beautiful drive over hills and through country places, and cities that I had never seen, for I had never been that way before. We rode for two hours without a stop, arriving at the church at ten, the hour set for the services.

It was a pleasure to listen to Elder W. A. Spicer who is world president of this denomination. After services were over at Springfield we were all nicely packed in the car again and started for Worcester to the dedication of a new S. D. A. church there. We knew we would be gone all day, so had taken along a lunch with us. After leaving Springfield we drove along the roads till we came to a pretty place where we parked our car, and spread our lunch on the soft green grass in the "shade of the old apple tree." A steady stream of automobiles passed. Everybody looking in our direction with a nod and a smile or a wave of the hand, seeming to say they would like to join us. When lunch was over, we drove on to Worcester fifty miles from Springfield. Though we were late at this church, we heard the latter part of the sermon and at closing a beautiful male quartet.

After this we went out to walk about to stretch ourselves before starting on our long ride home, but believe me I was too tired to stand or sit, so reclined alone on the back seat of the car while the others took a walk. Soon we hit the trail for Home Sweet Home. About nine o'clock we drove through Plainfield passed the home of Free Air, but as it was so late we could not see any of the "Airs." When we reached Norwich we circled around through Thamesville and left two of our company, then over the hill and home. It was about ten p. m. when we arrived, covering about 190 miles that day.

MOLLY MAKE BELIEVE

SPICE LAYER CAKE

Dear Social Corner Sisters.: I think it is about time I added my bit to the corner again, so I am taking the time to write this nice spring morning when I really should be housecleaning.

Wasn't that little poem, "A Woman's If," in last week's corner, just fine? I am very fond of Kipling's "If" and that was surely a good parody on it.

I wonder if any of the sisters have taken the dressmaking course of the Woman's Institute of Domestic Arts and Sciences. I am taking the home dressmaking course—have nearly finished now—and find the lessons very interesting and helpful. It is such a saving to be able to make one's own clothes. And for anyone who likes to sew, it is a pleasure to make them too.

Breeze—Congratulations on your recent wedding anniversary. No, I do not live in Chaplin, nor have I ever been there. Guess again!

Will send in a recipe for spice cake which is very good and economical to make.

Spice Layer Cake—1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lard, 2 tablespoons molasses, yolk of 1 egg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup sour milk 1 teaspoon soda in 2 cups flour. Mix in order given and bake in two layers. Put together and frost top with boiled frosting: 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons water boiled together until it threads, pour into the stiffly beaten white fo an egg and beat until thick enough to spread.

Best wishes

OWAISSA

SOME RUG SUGGESTIONS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Mother and I wish to heartily thank the sisters who so kindly sent cards during illness. Mother said that it seemed just as if she belonged to the "Corner." She wrote one or two letters years ago but didn't suppose that she belonged now. We both enjoy the letters which others write very much.

Mother is better than she was in March but does not gain very fast. She has been thinking of writing to the sisters but hasn't felt equal to doing so yet. I hope that she can soon.

If you wish to make a pretty braided rug use only three or four colors or different shades of two colors to harmonize with other furnishings in a room. A blue and brown rug is pretty with the lightest shades in the center, then the darkest at the edge of rug, the blue and brown mixed all the way or a plain braid occasionally, green, tan and brown makes a pretty rug.

One of the prettiest blue rugs which I have seen has the center of tan, light blue and dark blue mixed. The center strip was sixteen inches long with two rows around that, there were three rows of dark blue then one of medium brown and then one of tan and brown. The next four rows were of medium blue then one or two strands of brown and one of tan again then medium brown two rows, then dark blue to make as large as desired. Instead of going round without cutting each row was joined separately so the edge was very even. The braids were less than an inch in width.

In a room with ivory paint and lavender hangings a braided rug made of lavender, ivory and bright yellow is lovely, using unbleached cotton for the ivory.

With best wishes for the success of the "Corner."

ALBERTA RESPONDS

Dear Social Corner. Noticing my name in the roll call, I hasten to respond lest I be considered among those who are remiss in their duty or gone to another world.

It isn't because I am not interested that I have not written of late. I'll have to charge it up to procrastination and many demands on my time.

We have been having some nice letters of late, and I am glad that the sisters have resumed the idea of sending in recipes. They are a great help and, like the many other housewife suggestions, we need them.

I am happy to answer the roll call, will try and write more often and wish every possible success for the dear old Social Corner.

ALBERTA.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER.

Sisters of the Corner, and Friends: What a goodly number turned out for the May meeting at the Buckingham! I was very much pleased to meet some of our earliest writers and hope they may come again to Club No. 2's meetings in the summer.

Foxglove and Whirlwind: You certainly deserve a prize for coming so far you must be experts at the wheel.

Theoda: How did you make out at the theatre? Could you procure seats? I met the covered "wagon" on the street after leaving you. Some vehicle to be traveling in, and the blush on the shy young maiden's face I am afraid would never have survived a rain storm like we had this morning if she had to be out in the storm.

Queen Elizabeth: Congratulations to you and yours. Glad you are all well.

U. C. E.: Think you must be getting very religious as I saw your name in the paper. Very glad to hear of it. No wonder you were all smiles last Wednesday. Was delighted to see you once more. This is good weather for your favorite little yellow plants. How I did enjoy my visit at your lovely home.

Wurdy Belle: Did you receive my letter? Hope to hear from you soon if you did. How about the White Mule?

Serepta: Was glad to see you and your mother. Hope we can meet again in the near future.

Great Grandma: Hope you may have many more happy returns of the day May 16 and that you receive a goodly number of cards as your shower.

Calla Lily: You certainly have your hands full at the meetings. It is wonderful how you manage such a large number and come out with flaming colors, and no mixups.

Saxville: You, too, are a very busy youngster. You must get up many mornings before breakfast. How was that tiny muscovy? Do you think you could help handle another? What a time we did have.

Balsam Fir: Hope we may receive a surprise visit from you this summer. Do you remember our trip to Saco? And what a gay time we did have. Several changes since then.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

MISSED THE ENTERTAINMENT.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: What a nice dinner we had at our last meeting, and so many there from far and near. Whirlwind and Fox Glove certainly are good sports to come so far. I hope they enjoyed the day.

The only thing lacking was the entertainment, which we have always had. I was so sorry we were misrepresented in one of the Corner pages not long ago. I think bad

Dear Sister Ethelyn, I can truly say I do like to see the young people with bobbed hair. Dont think anything looks so nice as the innocent bobbed curls. It was style when I was a girl If we had our hair done up we were supposed to be married or engaged and sit with our young man in the same pew in church. No, I don't say it because I have a young girl. My girls are all married women.

Calla Lily: I should not be surprised if I had seen Great Grandmother in Norwich and I too, would wear a badge if I know how to obtain one Can you tell me please? I am also a great grandmother but never expect to live to that age. I have a little bit of poetry to send that seems just the thing for this morning because the beautiful sun is with us once more, and is also blossom time again, only they are a little late.

'Tis blossom time! The meads are gay
With fairy flowers; the roundelay
Of birds gets love to limped rime.
The heart beats high; ah, Love o' Mine,
Lips, trembling, taste life's subtlest
In blossom time!

'Tis blossom time! The meads are
The death knell of the passing year
Rings down the winds its mournful chime.
Aye, though the brooding skies be gray,
Within the heart of love, alway
'Tis blossom time!

VOLUNTOWN

Friday evening the dance given by the baseball club in Union hall proved a big success. Notwithstanding the stormy weather one of the largest crowds of the season turned out. Friends of the club from Jewett City, Norwich and other places were present. Morey's orchestra of Jewett City furnished excellent music for the dancing. A substantial sum was added to the club treasury. A paragraph in the Jewett City News in Monday's Norwich Bulletin, in regard to certain happenings at the above dance was very misleading, as it gave readers an impression that the dance was a rowdy affair, which it was not, as the dancing was not interrupted for a moment. The only trouble at the hall was when two young men from Jewett City got into an argument and were immediately ordered to leave the hall and the town, which it is presumed they did.

Monday evening, Unity circle, No. 1250, Companions of the Forest, held a basket social in Union hall, a very enjoyable affair being the result. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs Christina B. Murphy, and by Wilfred Marshall, both responding to insistent encores. Selections on the violin by Louis A. Davis and Ernest B. Dupont, accompanied by Mrs. Christina B. Murphy were well received. After a basket lunch Davis and Dupont played for dancing.

Monday evening Paul Blazeh was brought before Justice of the Peace Herbert Heywood charged with breach of the peace. He was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $17.59, which he paid.

Wednesday evening at the residence of Grand Juror Thomas McDonald, Oswald Koistenen was presented, before Justice of the Peace V. P. A. Quinn, charged with being an alien in possession of arms. He was found guilty and fined $1.00 and costs amounting to $28.31. An appeal was taken, the accused furnishing a bond of $100.

The time was spent in sewing on a quilt and for the social part the members told how they had earned the dollar which they contributed toward the new world movement. Letters were read from those unable to be present at the recent birthday party given by the Ladies' Aid society. Some of the experiences were told in rhyme and were very interesting.

J. Alonson Taylor, 77, died at his home in Waterford, last night, following a lingering illness.

The police tonight received a complaint from a resident of Winthrop street because of the conduct of youths and girls, who congregate nightly at the corner of Winthrop and Lewis streets.

State street is in the worst condition ever known for handling traffic, all because of the repair work in progress. The block between Meridian and Huntington streets, which has been closed to traffic about two weeks to permit the laying of brick pavement, is still a long way from being ready to receive traffic, for the work of laying brick has not been started and will not be for several days to come. The work is slow and at the rate that the labor has continued it will be mid-summer before traffic is resumed the entire length of the street. Between Main and Bank streets, a section of the highway, extending from the southerly turn to a point within a few feet of the trolley tracks, is open to allow pipe connections to the new Patterson building to be made. The excavation daily causes a congestion of automobiles, also creates danger for pedestrians who board trolley cars at that point. Other streets about the city are receiving the attention of laborers, but the progress everywhere is exceedingly slow.

Frederick E., five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Mantz, 18 Chester street, Groton, died today at Lawrence hospital, twenty minutes after being admitted to the institution, with a fractured skull, sustained last night by falling from a velocipede. The child was riding along the sidewalk near his home when a wheel of the vehicle apparently struck a small object, the child being thrown in such a manner that his head struck the sidewalk.

Miss Ruth Harris of Riverview avenue, Miss Florence Firmin of Montauk avenue and Miss Annie Hansen of Cliff street, are in Hartford in attendance of the Christian Endeavor convention.

Mrs. F. Valentine Chappel, is in Washington, the guest of Col. and Mrs. John N. Alban.

Lieut. Com. and Mrs. Gordon Mac Lane and children have gone to Brookline, Mass., where they will remain until fall. Lieut. Com. McLane, who has been stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy, has been assigned to duty aboard the revenue cutter Tampa, stationed at Boston.

Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, who has been acting desk sergeant during the absence of Sergeant James C. Sullivan, who has just concluded his vacation, resumed cycle duty today.

Mrs. Mary E. White, widow of John T. White, whose sudden death occurred a fortnight ago, has qualified as administratrix of her husband's estate.

Leno had been to the rear of a truck that was motionless on the east side of the street and in stepping away from the machine to go to a store at the corner of Hill street walked directly in front of Loevenich's car, which was headed in a northerly direction. Before the driver could bring the machine to a stop although the rear wheels of the machine dragged about 10 feet, Leno was struck by the bumper and knocked to the pavements. He was attended by a physician and because of the severe laceration, Leno was taken to the hospital.

Since the announcement that the prices of practically every attention provided at barbershops would be increased June 1st, it has become known that hardware and other stores are selling more razors and similar equipment than ever before.

An automobile owned and operated by Charles Chapman of Poquonoc Bridge was struck by a Groton-Stonington trolley car near Poquonoc last night. The truck was damaged extensively, but the occupants of the machine, four in number, escaped injury by leaping to the highway just before the collision occurred.

Nurses at Home Memorial hospital tonight informed the police that an automobile had been parked in front of the institution on Pequot avenue since last night.

Joseph Asso, a Willimantic Syrian, drove his automobile into this city and right into that section of State street allotted to the busses which operate between New London and Hartford. There he parked his car for two hours while he was away from it negotiating for a load of furniture he had bought here and which he was to take away to sell again. When Asso returned he found a tag in his automobile directing him to appear in court today to answer for violating the parking ordinances of the city. He drove right between two signs that warned of the restricted section, but he declared he could not read so he did not realize that he was an offender. He managed to read what the policeman's tag said, however, and responded to its request. Judge Crandall suspended judgment in the case, as Asso declared he never was in the city before and said he did not realize that he was violating the city's ordinances.

Walter Pulasky, a driver for Tait Brothers, was fined $5 for parking his automobile thirty inches from the curbing on State street. Pulasky admitted his guilt, but urged in extenuation that he was in a hurry to get into the bank. "Is that a reason for endangering others?" asked Judge Crandall. Pulasky admitted that he was in error when he assumed that he could stop where he did. He said he had been driving a car four years. This brought his fine.

David Banks, a resident of Great Neck, whose father made a fortune in publishing law books in New York, before he was president of the Atlantic Yacht club, got into a jam in Washington street at Starr street yesterday and was warned into the police court this morning to answer. The court waited some time for Mr. Banks to appear, but he did not present himself until an hour after the time for him to be there had passed. Then he showed up and explained that his failure was through no fault of his. He had taken the precaution to telephone the police station as to information as to the hour at which the court session would be held and was told that the court convened at 9.30, standard time. "I'll be there!" said Mr. Banks and closed the phone. He loitered about the Thames club while the time passed slowly and at 10.30 he appeared. Now he must show up in the court again tomorrow when his case will be disposed of. He was mad, but there was no necessity for that. It was a confusion that nearly everyone else has experienced from the vexatious double time.

Mrs. F. C. Pardon, of New York, as communicated with the New London authorities requesting assistance in locating Catherine Blaise, who recently disappeared from home, presumably in company with Everett M. Opperson, a sailor aboard the S. S. S-10, now in port. The girl is described as 19, about five feet, six inches in height, weighing about 120 pounds and having dark brown hair and brown eyes. When the girl left New York she had a brown sport coat and a black hat with red trimming.

An automobile operated by Arthur J. Wigslow, of the Flanders garage, backed against a machine bearing the registration N-900 on State street last evening, the latter being damaged slightly, as the headlights were smashed.

Desk Sergeant James C. Sullivan resumed his duties at the police station today after his vacation of two weeks. Today, Street Sergeant Nelson Smith began his fortnight's respite. During the absence from duty of Sergeant Smith Acting Detective Sergeant Frank Howard will fulfil Sergeant Smith's duties and Patrolman Edward Daniels will do plain clothes duty.

Louis Lubchansky today sold a cottage and small parcel of land on Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, to Hattie F. Stenberg of Norwich. The price paid was $9,000.

An employe of the New London Fruit & Produce company this afternoon lodged a complaint with the police that M. Myerson, of New Haven, was guilty of violating the city ordinance requiring that peddlers of fruit from automobiles be required to obtain a license. The complaint declared that Myerson had a large automobile truck parked on Main street and was selling from the truck in various quantities. Not alone was fruit sold, but vegetables also. Motorcycle Officer George Laboue was assigned to the case and finding the allegation true, arrested Myerson, who will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

COMMANDER BOOTH HERE ON CAPT. WILBUR'S BIRTHDAY

Commander Evangeline Booth, leader of the Salvation Army forces in America, is to be in this city next Friday at 9.10 a. m. and will be accompanied by Capt. McIntyre, of Boston and the New England staff band from Boston.

It is a coincidence that is quite pleasing to Commandant W. E. Wilbur of the Norwich corps that the commanding officer is to come here on Capt. Wilbur's birthday anniversary.

Commander Evangeline Booth, born on Christmas day, has rendered most brilliant service to the Salvation Army and by sheer force of character and ability, has risen to her present high position.

In the early days of the Salvation Army, Miss Booth was placed in charge of the Great Western Hall at Marylebone, at that time one of the most sordid districts in London. Her success was immediate. She shared the hardships of her soldiers, visited the worst haunts of vice and crime in the slums of the city, made friends with the toughs and roughnecks and with the police force and endeared herself to all.

As a public speaker, Commander Booth ranks amongst the foremost women speakers of the world. She is a natural orator and her wonderful world pictures have enthralled audiences from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Sandy Hook to the Golden Gate. The commander has inherited more of the rugged eloquence and persuasiveness of her distinguished father than any other member of the remarkable Booth family, and on the platform, her methods are not unlike those of the old general.

She has a saving sense of humor, and her power as a story-teller is unequalled. She is not only "a chip off the old block" but she is a new and original block, who, in any walk of life would have made high name and place for herself among world leaders.

Her voice is rich and full and well-modulated and her delivery deliberate and effective, and not a word is lost to her listeners. Commander Booth is a musician of considerable attainments and has written and composed a number of the Army's most popular songs.

Commander Booth, was perhaps the first to wear the now familiar Hallelujah Bonnet, which was designed by the "Mother" of the Salvation Army. The Christian Mission had become the Salvation Army. The men had taken to a cap with a red band. Mrs. Booth wanted a suitable hat for the lassies. None of the hats she tried on her daughters were suitable. Taking one of the discarded hats, she began to unpick it, to cut and to twist, to pin and to sew, and in a little while had fashioned a rough model of the famous Bonnet that is now loved and respected the world over.

Commander Evangeline Booth was the original of Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara" in his social play of the same name and she has always stood as the foremost woman Salvationist in the Army's ranks.

In recognition of the service of the Army during the war and its cooperation with the government in its war measures, Commander Booth was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal by President Wilson, and she also holds the Honorary Degree of Master of Arts from Tufts college, Mass.

CHINA'S "WILD WEST"

A vivid picture of chaotic conditions in China's "wild west," and the consternation of the people at an eclipse of the moon, is contained in a letter just received at the National Geographic Society's headquarters from Joseph F. Rock.

Mr. Rock, who located the chaulmoogra tree that yields a leper healing oil, heads a National Geographic Society expedition which is studying the plant life of the Tibet border provinces, and seeking botanical traces of pre-Columbian communication between Asia and America.

"Yesterday there was a complete eclipse of the moon," he writes under date of Feb. 21, 1924. You should have heard the yelling and screaming of the people. The whole village (Nguluko-Likiang) ran amok like mad beating gongs, drums, and howling.

"The people said a huge frog was eating the moon up, and they had to make as much noise as possible to scare that frog away.

"Some went to bed with rice and others cooked food for fear it would be dark the next day and they would be unable to cook. Candles, even, are unknown and people go about with pine torches as their only light. No wonder whole villages are burned down.

"Nobody who does not live in Yunnan can conceive the utter chaos which exists here.

"The robbers came to his house at 9 p. m. and marched him off. He was just about retiring when nine men arrived. After a march of 1 1-2 miles he found 300 robbers awaiting him. The magistrate at Lang Kiung who tried to do something toward his release now has joined the French priest as prisoner. He also was carried off.

"There is no end to robbers. When moving out of this place anywhere one gets an escort of 50 to 80 soldiers, most of them ex-robbers. One is at a loss what to do, as they may turn brigands on the road, or, if one should meet active brigands, he fears his soldiers will join them.

"In the meantime the officials are beating the people, squeezing them to the last farthing. They smoke opium all night and get up at 2 or 3 p. m. It is like living in the gray of the Middle Ages.

Standards Fixed by Parent-Teacher Associations

Parent-teacher associations have begun to test their own efficiency by fixed standards of excellence. Several states have made progress in organization by the use of a list of credits. This step justifies the belief that parents and teachers working together on the problems of childhood may reach a higher degree of accomplishment than ever before.

The man who trots around the room all night with a crying infant in his arms and happens to remember that of such is the kingdom of heaven is likely to backslide.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS FIRM.

New York, May 16.—Short covering operations, apparently based on the bare responsibility that President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus bill will be sustained, and the growing investment demand resulting from relatively cheap money rates, imparted a firm tone to prices in today's stock market. Net gains were largely fractional although several popular issues closed 1 to nearly 2 points higher on the day's transactions running only slightly more than one half million shares.

High grade rails, steels, sugars and oils gave the best demonstrations of group strength. Specialties showed mixed changes, strength of Colorado fuel, Woolworth (new stock), and Loose-Wiles Biscuit being counteracted by the heaviness of United Fruit, Chicago Pneumatic Tool and Reynolds Tobacco B.

Rail stocks developed new leaders in Atchison, which established a record 1924 high at 103 1-2, and Union Pacific, which closed nearly two points higher at 133 3-8. Strength of Atchison was based on the possibility of a special dividend distribution at the July meeting of the board of directors. Union Pacific was bought on speculative expectations of a special distribution from the extensive holdings of securities of other railroads in the Union Pacific's treasury.

Attempts to depress some of the standard industrial shares were abandoned when bear traders discovered that the floating supply of stocks was limited. U. S. Steel common moved within an area of one point, closing 1-2 higher at 97. Baldwin advanced one point to 108 and American Can and Studebaker improved fractionally.

Reports of a small advance in the price of navy gasoline in the mid-continent district was generally held to be responsible for the late rally in the oil shares. Marland assumed the leadership of that group, closing at 32 1-2 for a net gain of 1 1-3 points, while Pacific, Pan-American B, Atlantic Refining, General Asphalt, Mexican Seaboard and Houston closed a point or so higher.

Further liquidation of Congoleum sent that stock down two points to a new low record for the year at 33 1-4, but it rallied after to 34 3-4. Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron was again active, showing a small fractional loss on the day as a result of extensive profit taking.

Call money opened at 3 1-4 per cent, and then eased to 3 where it closed. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Chief interest in the foreign exchange market centered in the fluctuation of French francs, which ruled slightly above 5 3-4 cents. Demand sterling held fairly steady just under $4.36 1-2. Other currencies showed only nominal changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 16.—Dry weather reports from Nebraska, Kansas and other important wheat states, together with higher temperatures in the southwest did a good deal today to lift wheat values. The wheat market closed unsettled at 1-4 @ 3-8c to 3-4c net gain, July 106 5-8 to 106 3-4 and September 107 1-2 to 107 5-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 3-4c up, oats unchanged to 1-8 @ 1-4c higher, and provisions varying from 1c decline to a rise of 2c.

Especially in Nebraska, rain was said to be needed to stop impairment of wheat growth. A leading authority reported that April rainfall was below normal west of the Mississippi, with a sharp deficiency shown in Iowa and Nebraska. The first half has also shown continued moisture deficiency in the two states named and a noticeable lack also in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri. Under such circumstances, a moderate amount of buying developed, notwithstanding that many traders evinced a disposition to postpone dealings until farm legislation at Washington is out of the way. An elevator house led the buying of July delivery.

Wheat prices were also strengthened by indications of a liberal reduction of the Chicago stock of wheat this week, lake shipments of about 1,000,000 bushels to the east being noted. Besides European demand was reported as slightly better, with purchases of 500,000 bushels at the seaboard. Estimates were current, too, that the world's available supply had decreased 48,022,000 bushels in April, as against 37,111,000 bushels in April last year.

Corn and oats as well as wheat responded to complaints of dry weather and to prospective reduction of stocks here owing to lake shipments. Furthermore, today's receipts of corn in Chicago totaled only 29 cars. Provisions, although dull, were sustained by an upturn in hog values.

Attack on the Oregon law requiring attendance at public schools has been made in the form of an application for injunction brought by Hill Military Academy, of Portland, against Oregon State officers to prevent them from executing the law. The application was argued in the federal court at Portland, and decision was taken under advisement. The law is scheduled to become effective September 1, 1926.

CURB MARKET.

New York, May 16.—Stock prices moved irregularly higher in today's dull session of the curb market.

Oil shares bounded upward in the late dealings in sympathy with the rally in those issues on the "big board." Vacuum Oil, Prairie Oil and Gas, Standard Oil of Nebraska and Penn-Mexican fuel closed a point or so higher, while most of the other active issues improved fractionally. A sudden burst of activity in Woodley Petroleum, based on the publication of a report that daily production had reached 3100 barrels, sent that stock up to a new high record at 12 1-2.

Lehigh Valley Coal certificates were the most active feature of the industrial group, closing fractionally lower at 30 7-8 as a result of heavy profit taking. Durant Motors, which sold as low as 12 earlier in the week, rallied above 14. Gillette Safety Razor dropped 2 1-2 points. Other popular issues showed little change.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 16.—Seeking an outlet for its current plethora of funds, Wall street turned today to buying of investment railroad securities, prices of which advanced substantially in some leading. Profit taking reduced [illegible] sharply and in Liberty bonds, and uncertainty as to whether the bonus bill veto would be sustained turned the buying movement away from this list into other sections of the [illegible].

Later in the day, however, two Liberty issues, the 3 1-2s and third 4 1-2s, achieved new top prices for the year. Losing to hold at these levels, they closed the day with net losses along with other U. S. Government obligations.

Marked [illegible] developed in the St. Paul railroad liens on a revival of speculative selling. The 4s of 1925, the convertible 4 1-2s and the debenture 4s all lost ground. Other speculative rail issues, with the exception of Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, were firm.

Coincident with reports of another Swedish loan, moderate activity developed in Swedish government bonds, which advanced a point. Easy money conditions, it was said, might influence the country to do additional borrowing at this time instead of waiting for the maturity of a $10,000,000 short term credit recently arranged.

Absence of many bond dealers and traders on their annual outing tended to restrict the volume of trading today and accounted for lagging interest in investment circles generally.

The general headquarters are at the Center Church House where delegates received their programs, badges and assignments, nearly 500 being registered Friday evening.

The general theme of the convention is "Friends in Deed" and this subject is divided into topics for each session, bearing on the thought of friendship.

The formal opening of the convention took place Friday evening at the Hotel Garde after a reception for state officers and guests and a banquet served at 5.30 o'clock to over 600 delegates.

This is known as the Alumni Fellowship banquet, and special recognition is being given to all those who were formerly interested in Christian Endeavor and are now active in other lines of church activities. The toastmaster of the evening was Rev. David N. Beach, Jr., of Guilford. The principal speaker, Dr. Daniel A. Poling of the Marble Collegiate church, New York City, who gave as his address, "Clown or King." Other speakers on the program were Mayor Stevens who extended the welcome of the city to the delegates; Frederick L. Mintel who brought the greetings from the Endeavorers of New Jersey; and Rev. GEORGE DOLBEARE CATCHES PRIZE STRING OF TROUT

Members of the Norwich Fish & Game Society and all other local fishermen have a mark to shoot at if they want to take the prize for the best string of trout landed this season.

George W. Dolbeare of West Thames street, veteran fishermen, went out Friday morning and came back about three hours later with a string of 20 trout, weighing about 11 pounds. The trout were all beauties and varied in weight from a little over a quarter of a pound to over 1 pound.

Mr. Dolbeare keeps most of his fishing grounds a secret but told a friend Friday he got his catch in "Hen and Tree" brook, and the only thing that stopped him from getting more was the limit allowed by law.

This is the biggest catch announced this season by any one fisherman and it will take a string of big fish to beat the record before July 1st.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR MISS FRIEDA THIEL

The many friends of Miss Frieda Thiel tendered her a miscellaneous shower Thursday evening at her home in honor of her approaching marriage to Clyde Kenfield.

The party broke up at a late hour, all wishing the bride and groom to be a happy married life. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Kenfield, Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, Miss Irene Kenfield, Clyde Kenfield, Mr. and Mrs. Sauer, Mr. and Mrs. A. Rokowski and daughter, Miss Josephine Straub, Miss Ruth Sabrowski, Miss Frieda Sabrowski, Mr. and Mrs. Thiel, Miss Frieda Thiel, Miss Katherine Donovan, Miss Elsie Thiel, Miss Anna Thiel, Leon Rokowski and Otto Hoebner.

SLIGHT DECLINE IN FATAL ACCIDENT RATIO

Notwithstanding an increase in the number of fatal motor vehicle accidents in Connecticut in two of the past four years, the ratio of fatal accidents to the total number of motor vehicles registered has slightly but steadily declined since 1919, according to figures given out at the state motor vehicle department.

The statement was occasioned by an assertion in a newspaper article by Rose Falls Bres, chairman of the jurisprudence and law reform committee of the National Women Lawyer's Association, that "Maryland, Massachusetts and Connecticut are the only states in the country which show a decrease in motor accidents since 1919."

As far as Connecticut and Massachusetts are concerned, the statement is correct insofar as it relates to the ratio of fatal accidents to registrations. The 225 fatal accidents which occurred in Connecticut in 1919 was .21 per cent. of the total of registrations; the 223 such accidents in 1920 was 17 per cent. of the registrations; the 232 fatal accidents in 1921, .16 per cent. of the registrations; the 229 fatal accidents in 1922, .14 per cent. of the registrations, and the 257 fatal accidents in 1923, .13 per cent. of the registrations. The percentages showing the proportional decrease in Massachusetts for the same years were: 1919, 223 per cent.; 1920, .15 per cent.; 1921, 145 per cent.; 1922, 113 per cent. and 1923, .1 per cent.

Miss Bres's article, referring to the proportionate decrease in these two states, and Maryland, says: "Their good record must be attributed to the high requirements set for drivers and driving, for in the forty-five other states there has been an increase in motor accidents in the same period."

The committee on jurisprudence and law reform of the Women Lawyers' Association will give to the women lawyers' convention at Philadelphia in July the result of extensive study of conditions throughout the country as they affect public safety on highways; a resume of the laws of Connecticut, Maryland and Massachusetts, and a list of the states where motor accidents have decreased or increased within the last three years and enforcement of traffic laws.

THREE YEARS PASTOR AT CENTRAL BAPTIST

Sunday brings to a close the third year of the pastorate of Rev. David A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church. The morning theme will be "A Church with a Program," and the evening "The Soul's Thirst for God," which was the first theme presented by the new pastor three years ago. A beautiful baptismal service on Sunday evening will close the first three years of the present pastorate.

Mr. Pitt has been appointed one of two delegates from Connecticut to a conference preceding the Northern Baptist Convention in Milwaukee. He leaves immediately after the mid-week meeting on Thursday evening and will be absent for two Sundays May 25th the pulpit will be supplied by one of the distinguished Methodist preachers attending the Methodist conference in Springfield, Mass.

REPORTS SOME SHORTAGE AMONG COTTON WORKERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, May 16—Practically all industries throughout Connecticut are operating, although some on a part-time basis, according to a report of the United States employment service of the department of labor resulting from a country-wide survey of the employment situation.

The report indicates that while a small surplus of workers in the metal trades exists in certain parts of the state, printing-press and ball-bearing plants are working overtime. A fair size building program, affording employment to many tradesmen, is reported under way, and the farm-labor situation is considered normal for this season of the year.

Notwithstanding that one cotton mill is closed in Norwich, affecting about 500 workers, a shortage in that city of certain class of workers in the cotton industry is reported.

In New London, all plants are operating, although the silk mills are on a three-day schedule only. This affects approximately 300 employees. It is reported that the building trades men of that city are very well employed.

KEEP CITY TITLE OF ROSE OF NEW ENGLAND

At the meeting of the directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce this week action was taken on various matters pertaining to community welfare. The community to take a greater pride in keeping the community beautiful and clean, not simply for one week, but for the entire year. Reports of unclean places to the police are urged and the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers is asked, with a view to making Norwich worthy of its title The Rose of New England.

The subject of good roads and good crossings is backed by the chamber, attention being called to the support by the Eastern Connecticut Good Commercial Travelers. The plan is to have all civic bodies get together and advocate permanent roads and work for the fullest development in Eastern Connecticut. A plan is underway to hold a meeting of these organizations to make out a plan of action.

Other matters talked over during the meeting included taxation, Thames river development, State Chamber, bus parking regulations and the rebuilding of part of Main street, especially between Market street and Thames Square.

DISTRICT TAX MEETING SCHEDULED FOR PUTNAM

On Monday, June 9, at 2.30 daylight saving time (1.30 standard time) at the Putnam Inn in Putnam, the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut will hold a district tax meeting. This is the first of a series of district meetings which will be held in various parts of the state.

The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint manufacturers of the status of the present tax laws and the possibility of additional laws. Further, its purpose is to secure from its members in the various localities their ideas in regard to changes which might be made in local, state and national laws. From the information received at these various meetings the state association will formulate its taxation policy. A number of men who have had wide experience in taxation matters will speak at the meeting.

This meeting is to be held in cooperation with the Manufacturers' Association of Eastern Connecticut, the Manufacturers Association of Norwich and the Manufacturers Association of New London.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

State Deputy William J. Mulligan of Hartford made a stirring plea for religious tolerance before the annual convention of the Knights of Columbus at the Hotel Garde Thursday.

He also declared that the Knights of Columbus stand "against the exclusion of any man from office on account of his religion."

State Deputy Mulligan's report follows in part:

On March 29, 1882, forty-two years ago, the general assembly at Hartford approved the articles incorporating the Knights of Columbus. For eleven years the order functioned from New Haven with the founders managing its affairs, to which only part of their time was required. This is the thirty-first annual convention as a state council. There are now sixty-one state and two territorial jurisdictions, subordinate councils numbering over 2,500 with a total membership of 772,000 divided into 230,090 insurance members and 542,000 associate. Connecticut is approaching 25,000 in membership.

During the year a gain of $7,878,441 in insurance written was recorded and death claims paid during the same period totaled $1,567,667.02.

The order is destined to grow in numerical strength and will continue to be an important factor for good in our civil and religious life so long as its teachings. Today we realize how much of the world is swayed, as is very natural, by self interest, by local interest, by natural interest, by money, by trade, by the thousand things which enter into any large question and turn the balance one way or the other, while absolute truth and absolute knowledge of facts and strict justice have very little to do with the final decision. We know that in most matters many opinions are rife based very generally, you will not deny upon interest or sympathy or some other rather natural human motive.

Today no doubt great and good men in our country are being maligned and these calumnies will be believed by those who either wish to believe them or hear only one side. Let us not take a hand in sending along this torrent of hate based upon falsehood. Standing unflinchingly for our fullest and freest rights as American citizens, we are ready to die for this country—ready to live for it—determined to live in it as free-men, realizing that man, the image of Christ, is more supreme than the state and that the adhering to the ten commandments is more important than flirting with publicity over man-made regulations.

We all want a peaceful, happy, law-abiding America. We want to live side by side with all in peace and harmony. We want to live in the present, unembittered by prejudices based on past dissensions in centuries long forgotten and in lands far distant. We want no religious controversy. It rarely accomplishes anything good and more often produces only bitterness. We stand unalterably and absolutely for the fullest freedom of religion for all. We know no divine right of kings. The people are the sovereign source of all power. So, with our banner of Columbianism waving we look into the future with hope and faith, marching erect as stalwart Knights of Columbus, endeavoring to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Wauregan Lodge No. 6, held its semi-monthly convention at the castle hall Tuesday evening, Chancellor Commander Harry Solomon presiding.

Reports of the different committees were heard, especially the banquet committee, which reported great success with the affair recently held at the Elks Home.

District Deputy Robertson of Jewett City was the honored guest of the evening and his brief, interesting remarks as usual pleased his audience.

Costumes for the degree team have been ordered and the appearance of this on the initiatory events will be welcomed by those participating, and give due impression upon the candidates. The work of this team, with the added costumes will rank with the best in any of the subordinate lodges.

One of the most important events which is seldom in occurrence, has been the opening of the charter for a limited time at a reduced rate. It is hoped that within the short space of time given, the membership will greatly swell, with the right kind of material, that will bring a credit to the Order of Knights of Pythias.

A committee has been appointed to proceed with the arrangements for a large smoker that is to be held at an early date. Another good time is promised to all those who will be present.

The meeting closed in due form; followed by a card social.

REMOVE "NO PARKING" SIGNS AT POST OFFICE

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HAS RECOVERED FROM A COLD

Washington, May 18.—President Coolidge will return to his office tomorrow, having almost recovered from the bronchial cold which developed yesterday and today kept him confined to his room in the executive mansion.

The two days of almost complete rest have enabled the president to throw off the cold and account for a slight weakness he is said to be fit to return to work.

Mr. Coolidge spent today as yesterday, when he was compelled to cancel his engagements in his room, reading and resting. Unexcused excessive day of relative inaction made him restless, however, and he sent a messenger over to the executive offices with an inquiry as to whether there was any work that he could do. A batch of letters, reports and a number of telegrams was sent over to him.

By remaining indoors today Mr. Coolidge broke a record of which he was quite proud—a record of not having missed attendance at church a single Sunday since he came to Washington to be sworn in as vice president in March 1921. Mrs. Coolidge also remained at home today.

A long list of engagements, some of which were ethose cancelled yesterday, faces the president tomorrow. One of them, attendance at a baseball game between the Washington Americans and the Quantico Marines, for the benefit of the American Olympic fund, probably will be cancelled, especially if the weather is bad as Mr. Coolidge's physician has advised him against exposing himself until the last trace of the bronchial infection is dispersed.

There the officers were guests of the officers of the garrison, and the enlisted men were guests of the men of the One Hundred and Seventy-third company, Coast Artillery Corps, all taking part in the military programme which had been mapped out for the day. When Police Sergeant Donald McL. Ferguson, 40, of the Westerly police force was taken to the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, Friday night it was decided to operate immediately for intestinal obstruction, an operation which he had successfully undergone on four previous occasions. He was accompanied to Providence by his brother, Town Solicitor John Ferguson and Dr. Henry L. Johnson. The operation was successfully performed and Attorney Ferguson and Dr. Johnson went to the hotel for the remainder of the night. They were at the Providence station Saturday morning ready to return home when the news reached them of Sergeant Ferguson's death at the hospital at 5.30 o'clock. A weak pulse had been insufficient to cope with the situation and death resulted.

Sergeant Ferguson was a well liked, popular and cheerful member of the Westerly police force. Although often not in the best of health he was never known to complain and his cheerful presence on the St. Clair corner will be generally missed.

He was the son of John and Jessie Ferguson of Highland avenue, this town. He was born in Inverray, Scotland, Oct. 5, 1883, and came to Westerly with his parents at the age of five. He was educated in the public schools of Westerly and became a stonecutter for James Hosg of this town. April 1, 1912 he was appointed a police officer by the town council and March 4, 1918, he was made police sergeant as successor to Sergeant E. E. West, who died Feb. 1, 1918. During the absence of the chief of police he was the acting chief since his appointment as sergeant. He was recognized as an officer fearless to do his duty and cordial and obliging.

In May 1916, he was united in marriage with Rhoda Barber, daughter of the late Ellery Barber. There were three children born to them, a daughter, Frances Jessie, and two sons, Donald MacL. and Findlay. Besides his wife and three children he is survived by his parents and two brothers, Dr. Alexander Ferguson and Attorney John Ferguson, Jr., town solicitor of Westerly.

He was a member of Pawcatuck Congregational church, had served as sergeant in the Rhode Island militia, and was a member of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., of Westerly and Westerly lodge, No. 678, Behevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A bright, snappy array of novelties have been secured for the Broadway theatre which promises to fulfill all expectations.

This superlative Keith vaudeville progra opens with a sensational European novelty, Whitney's Humanettes. A company of three will give you fifteen minutes of the finest entertainments you've ever had.

The feature attraction is An Arabian Nightmare. It is a hilarious comedy with songs, dances and laughter. Jack Fairbanks is the principal merry maker of a company of four. We urge you not to miss this gorgeous oriental fantasy.

Comedy is the keynote of the Creedon and Davis skit entitled, I Could Smash You.

John and Nellie Olius & Co., the Watch Wizards will keep you mystified and amused at the same time.

The photoplay is West of the Water Tower.

A jewel of priceless value, a human story, so big, so vital, so full of pathos and laughs, human interest and dramatic suspense is the Paramount production "West of the Water Tower," starring Glenn Hunter which had its premier at the Broadway theatre last night. The picture is based on a successful novel by Homer Croy.

Mr. Hunter is one of the biggest players on the screen. Ernest Torrence, as his father, wins new laurels. George Fawcett, as the girl's father and May McAvoy, as the girl, have made new history as far as remarkable performances on the screen are concerned. And Zasu Fitts as the other girl does a perfect bit of acting. The minor players, too, are excellent, including Charles Abbe, Anna Schaefer, Riley Hatch, Allen Baker and Jack Terry.

The story is "Miracle Man." "Over the Hill" and "Humoresque" rolled into one. It is the tale of a tragedy, grim and real—of the rapid rise to favor and decline of Junction City's prize smart boy, portrayed as only Glenn Hunter can do it. Robert Sturgeon directed the production which was adapted by Doris Schroeder.

PALACE REVIEW

Many times has it been proved that it isn't always possible to make a good photodrama from a best selling novel, but those who attend the Palace theatre today, tomorrow and Wednesday will have occasion, we believe, to say that in producing "Black Oxen" a First National Picture, Frank Boyd has made the most popular story of 1923 into one of the most exceptional dramas the screen has yet seen. "Black Oxen" was a great novel: those who have seen it screened aver that it is a greater film story. "Black Oxen" is no common drama. It does not smack of anything that is ordinary in any scene. It is a modern drama of society life and behind all of the spirited action and deep human touches, so artistically blended, there is an air of true social life; a background of beautiful settings and gorgeous costuming, the true spirit of the intelligensia and refinement which adds much to the pictorial beauty of the drama and causes greater appreciation of the big things Mr. Boyd has accomplished in the filming of Mrs. Atherton's notable volume. Corinne Griffith proves herself an artiste personified in this production. For several years Miss Griffith has been gradually climbing up the ladder of film fame, and in "Black Oxen" it is apparent that she has arrived. In a number of scenes Miss Griffith appears as the old Countess Zatianny prior to the time a marvelous glandular treatment restored her health and youthful charm and the contrast between the Zatianny of these scenes and the stunning Zatianny of the main theme of the play is conclusive proof of Miss Griffith's versatility as an actress. Miss Griffith's many gowns, her furs and her coiffures, should appeal strongly to women folk who follow the styles and wish to dress attractively.

Conway Tearle (we can't forget his remarkable performance in Mr. Boyd's last play, "Ashes of Vengeance," featuring Norma Talmadge) is splendidly cast as Lee Clavering.

Coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Constance Talmadge in "Dulcy."

BREED THEATRE

The comedy delight of the year is Happiness, the second motion picture made by Laurette Taylor for Metro, which opened last night at the Breed theatre. Miss Taylor is simply ravishing as a happy-go-lucky little shop-girl who brings the joy of living into a home made colorless by too much wealth. Her personality shines from the screen to the audience like radium, and is as ingratiating to those who need treatment for the blues and other nervous ailments.

The picture was taken from the play by J. Hartley Manners, and the author himself made the screen adaptation and continuity. Chester A. Lyons was the photographer. A fine supporting cast includes Pat O'Malley, Hedda Hopper, Cyril Chadwick and others.

The Pathe news and a comedy make up the remaining of the bill for today and tomorrow.

PUTNAM

A civil action somewhat out of the ordinary, in which Mrs. Joseph Antone, of North Grosvenordale, was the plaintiff, was heard the last of the week by a superior court judge in chambers, at Worcester. The suit was brought against a Dudley (Mass.) farmer by the widow of Joseph Antone, who alleged in her complaint that her husband became blind and subsequently died because of drinking moonshine whiskey sold her husband by the defendant.

The plaintiff testified that her husband was not addicted to drinking intoxicants and the first occasion on which he drank to excess was after purchasing liquor from the defendant. She testified that after drinking the liquor her husband's sight gradually failed, and in three weeks he died. Because of her husband's tragic death and loss of his services and support the plaintiff claimed $15,000 damages.

Among the defendant's witnesses was Frederick Dumas, superintendent of streets of Putnam, who testified that Antone had worked for him as a laborer and that because of his habits of drinking he was discharged four times during the period between 1911 and 1918.

Officer Neri Coderre of North Grosvenordale, testified that he had observed the habits of Antone as to the use of liquor and that for a considerable period he had considered Antone to be a drinking man. Decision in the case was reserved.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan was the celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem Tuesday morning. Rev. William P. Reidy, pastor of St. James' church, South Manchester, will be deacon and Rev. Bernard M. Donnelly, of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale, will be sub-deacon. Rev. William H. Flynn of Hartford and Rev. Arthur Routhier of Putnam will assist as master of ceremony and Fathers Quinn of North Grosvenordale and Richards of Danielson will be acolytes.

Rev. John Joseph Elty was born in Winsted, July 12, 1875, the son of the late Charles and Ellen McKenna Elty. He attended the parochial school at Winsted and later entered St. Bonaventure's college in Allegheny, N. Y., from which he was graduated in 1895. He studied theology at St. Bernard Seminary, Rochester, N. Y., and was ordained to the priesthood June 9, 1900, by Bishop McQuade. He was then appointed a curate at Waterbury, then at Middletown, was later sent to Stratford to organize a new parish. This task he accomplished with vigor and built St. James' church. It was in 1908 that he became pastor of the two Pomfret churches.

Father Elty was a member of the Knights of Columbus, being identified with Cargill Council of this city. He was also a member of the Fourth Degree, K. of C. He also held membership in Middletown Lodge No. 771, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. One of his greatest interests was that of temperance and he was one of the most prominent and active members of the Catholic Temperance Union of Connecticut, which organization he served for three years as president.

At the Men's Forum of the Congregational church, Sunday, Henry Lyon, manager of the Putnam branch of the S. N. E. Telephone company was leader. The subject discussed was The Telephone Industry. It was announced that motion pictures Sunday evenings will be discontinued during the summer. The reason given is that the nice weather and the long summer evenings offer so many other attractions that the pictures are not needed. The past winter was the first time the experiment of having pictures in the church was tried. The attendance has averaged over 200 nightly since the feature was instituted. It was attempted to make the service uplifting and inspiring, as well as entertaining.

Announcement has been made that the civil action brought by Wilfred L'Hereux of Danielson against Auguste Martin of Putnam, claiming $15,000 damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff when the automobile of defendant struck the plaintiff as he was stepping on to the sidewalk in front of the post office in Danielson, some weeks ago. The plaintiff alleged in his complaint that he had received permanent injuries due to his carelessness and negligence of the defendant in the operation of his car. The car was driven by defendant's son. Attorney J. F. Carpenter, of Putnam, was counsel for the plaintiff. The amount of the settlement has not been made public.

The settlement of a damage claim by a local insurance agent has brought to light one of the most peculiar accidents that has ever befallen the driver of an automobile.

Dr. Ernest R. Pike, of East Woodstock, was driving along the highway with a patient whom he was taking to her home in North Woodstock. As the car was passing along a side road, a pheasant flew out of the thicket and crashed headlong into the windshield of the car. The force shattered the glass of the windshield and a particle of glass flew into the patient's eye. The doctor returned to his home, treated the patient and made a claim to the insurance agent. The situation was so peculiar that the agent made a special trip to the home office of the company. The company advised the agent that the claim would be paid.

Putnam people read with interest the announcement that Michael J. Daigle of Hartford, formerly of Putnam, has been promoted as assistant to the chief clerk in the state treasurer's office. Mr. Daigle was born in Putnam, attended St. Mary's school and the Putnam high school. He entered the Putnam Savings Bank as clerk but when war was declared was among the first of Putnam's young men to enlist. He was immediately assigned to Camp Devens, then just being organized, and was attached to the quartermaster's department. On account of his familiarity with the camp from its institution he remained there throughout the war. Upon his return he again entered the bank but in a short time was offered an appointment in the state treasurer's office and accepted.

NEW RULES END THE FRICTION IN NEW LONDON FIRE DEPARTMENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 18—At a meeting of the committee, recently appointed, all officers of the fire department, held at the Konomoc Hose house, a set of new rules was adopted unanimously and by their adoption it is believed the friction existing between some of the firemen and Chief Charles Rose will be eliminated. The rules will be submitted to the city council and city manager for approval and are as follows:

Drivers of fire apparatus, in answering an alarm of fire, shall at all times use proper caution for the safety of the apparatus and men.

Motor-driven apparatus at all times shall not exceed a speed of 25 miles an hour in the main part of the city, and at no time shall exceed a speed of 30 miles an hour within the city limits. When turning a corner, apparatus shall of exceed a speed of eight miles per hour. No apparatus shall leave the station without permission from the chief or deputy chief except in response to a fire alarm.

Reckless or careless driving on the part of a driver will be considered sufficient cause for suspension.

Foremen and drivers of apparatus shall see that the apparatus is properly equipped after the fire, ready for use again, and before leaving a fire they shall see that all tools and equipment used at the fire are on the apparatus.

When going to or from a fire keep out of traffic as much as possible.

There shall be two emergency drivers appointed by each company, subject to the approval of the chief. These men will act as relief drivers. In case either day or night drivers wishes to be absent, the driver wishing to be off duty will notify one of the company officers, who will in turn notify the chief. If no company officers are available, permission may be asked direct, but suitable time must be given before going off duty, at least one hour. Relief drivers will be reimbursed [illegible] wishing to be off duty.

All drivers will be under the direct supervision of their company officers at all times, subject to the approval of the chief. The chief will when possible issue his orders to the company officers who in turn will hand them down to the men affected.

No apparatus will leave the scene of a fire without orders from the company officers or the chief.

Only members of the department shall ride upon an apparatus at any time. No one under the influence of liquor shall ride on apparatus.

Any officers or members having business with the chief shall report to the chief's office and not interfere with the men, who shall communicate the same to the city manager.

The adoption of the new rules is the result of a controversy that recently arose relative to the issuance of orders by Chief Charles Rose, that drivers of apparatus and members of the department should take orders from him alone. The order was objected to most strenuously by several officers of the various companies and resulted in the officers' meeting being called to act upon the matter. As a result of the meeting, a committee composed of Chief Rose, Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman, Councilors Thomas Grogan and Clarence W. Thompson and Thomas Perkins, foreman of the Pequot Independent Hose company, was appointed to draft the new rules, which now await the approval of the city council and the city manager before becoming effective. It is believed that the rules will be approved at a meeting of the city council to take place Monday night.

David Banks, who, when his father was the commodore of the Atlantic Yacht club, came to Great Neck, Waterford, to reside, and that is a great many years ago, had his first difficulty with the police of this city when he was held up by traffic on Washington street. There was a jam there at Starr street in which seven automobiles and a trolley car were mixed up. That was exasperating to the conductor of the car as well as to the occupants of the automobiles. So the conductor left the car and sought to compel Mr. Banks to back his automobile away. This Mr. Banks declined to do, holding that he was entitled to half the roadway and that the conductor was without any authority whatever to force compliance with his orders. Policeman James McKenna was in the trolley in civilian clothes. The conductor appealed to him and the officer proceeded to force Mr. Banks to back away. He was no more successful than was the conductor, for Mr. Banks questioned the right of the policeman to order an automobile from the street. He demanded that the policeman show his badge. This the latter did, but it did not force Mr. Banks to back his car. The policeman gave him his choice of arrest or compliance with the order. Mr. Banks chose the arrest. Saturday he was in the police court and there he defended his right to the highway, claiming that he could not turn out when he saw the trolley car. He said his car was an unusually long one and he rarely backed it.

When he demanded to see the officer's badge McKenna took the signal of authority from his pocket instead of from his breast. Mr. Banks said he was disposed to obey every law of the state and the ordinances of the city, but he held that he was entitled to a share of the street. He said he was not in the street to block progress and meant no defiance of the law, but he claimed a chance to operate his car in the street in spite of the orders of a trolley car conductor. The court found Mr. Banks not guilty of a violation of the ordinance governing such cases as complained of in this matter.

The police ascertained Saturday that the automobile parked in the court yard of Home Memorial hospital on Pequot avenue since last Tuesday, is the property of Lieut. Chris. Halvesion, attached to the U. S. S. H stationed at the submarine base. Lieut Haveson was instructed to cause the machine to be removed from the hospital property.

Sousa wanted the driver of the colliding car arrested for evading responsibility, but later withdraw the complaint.

Daniel W. Riley, a sailor, was taken into custody Saturday night by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and a naval patrol officer, when Riley was found on Bank street much the worse for overindulgence in drink. Today the sailor was delivered to a patrol officer and taken to the submarine base for discipline.

The condition of Joseph Kopp, salesman in the employ of the Plaut-Gadden department store, who has been confined to his home, 17 Garfield avenue a number of weeks as a result of shock, has improved to such an extent that the patient is now able to sit up daily.

Mrs. Muriel Darneille Martin, wife of George A. Martin, a local musician, was granted a divorce in the superior court for Windham county Friday on grounds of habitual intemperance. Mrs. Martin was also allowed to resume her maiden name.

Mrs. Margaret A. Spottswood, 54 Raymond street, employed at the plant of the New London Ship and Engine company, was rescued from probable drowning Friday night when pulled from the Thames river by the crew of steamer Nelseco, after she had been rescued by Capt. Edward F. Quarrie, master of the craft.

Mrs. Spottswood in attempting to board the steamer did not wait the lowering of the gang plank and in succumbing to step to the boat, her head came in contact with the upper deck, causing her to be thrown into the river in a dazed condition. Capt. Quarrie, who was in his cabin heard the cries of the excited employes as the young woman fell overboard and rushing to the deck leaped overboard. Capt. Quarrie quickly rescued Mrs. Spottswood and she was hauled to the deck of the craft by the crew, none the worse for her experience.

Simon Balkansky of Waterford was arrested Saturday afternoon, by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, charged with violation of the city ordinance relative to parking on Main street. He will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning.

Frank M. Miner, 96 Wall street, was arrested by Patrolman Frank Philopena this forenoon, charged with violation of the automobile law and violation of the city ordinance prohibiting the turning around of automobiles on State street. Besides the local violation Miner will be presented in the police court Monday morning charged with operating an automobile without possessing an operator's license.

EXTENDING THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Before the playground movement got underway in this country there was no way of stopping it. It made an instant appeal, its benefits were easily demonstrated and it is not surprising that the number is constantly increasing.

While playgrounds were regarded in some instances as the means of keeping children off the streets and supervised places during the summer vacation, they have come to be recognized as desirable all the year around as safe places for the children to congregate and play after school hours.

In the city of Washington this is evidenced by the recent opening of four additional playgrounds, which will be open on school days, following school hours and on Saturdays. Inasmuch as the city had no appropriation for these additional grounds during the closing months of the fiscal year the expense is to be borne by the organizations until the first of July when they will be included in next year's budget.

It doesn't take much to awaken a favorable response to the meeting of recreation requirements. The children are entitled to a chance to play, they cannot play these days in the streets as those before them may have done and it is proper that there should be careful supervision of the grounds, with such educational features introduced as conditions warrant.

There are communities which regard playgrounds more than others. There may be sections of cities which need them more than others, but the value of playgrounds has stood the test of time and is getting a stronger grip each succeeding year. The increase in the number each year is the best evidence of the favorable impression which they have made. They are the outcome of changed conditions and where the protection of the citizens of tomorrow is at stake physically and morally, there's nothing else to do but see that it is obtained. The playgrounds provide a service that otherwise was not rendered.

ACROSS THE PACIFIC.

The first flight across the Pacific has been accomplished and the honor goes to army aviators of this country in their way around the world. It was an accomplishment that was bound to come at no distant day in view of the progress that has been made in aviation. It was planned by way of a series of hops that made use of the line of islands extending between Alaska and Japan, the most difficult of the flights being between the last American island and the first Japanese, where weather conditions rather than distance offered the worst obstacles.

That this hop has been covered without trouble will be cause for congratulation, since the accomplishment of it gives reason for added confidence in another long and perilous flight which must be undertaken next and in the subsequent hops in the remainder of their journey.

Nothing like the crossing of the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Ireland has been attempted in the flight from this country to the other side of the Pacific, but that doesn't mean that the aviators have not had trying experiences or that they have encountered smooth sailing and balmy weather all the way. Pushing up our west coast into Alaska brought them to the point where they have had to plunge into much severe weather, even though they were favored with weather reports and had vessels stationed along their route to render assistance if such was needed.

Now that this crossing has been effected, it is probable that it will be the route used by many others on a similar errand. Not only has the crossing been made in the air but it has been demonstrated that the route is a feasible one. No attempt has been made at speed, the attention being directed toward safety and the mapping of the route. As progress is made in aviation there are those ready and willing to employ the flying machines for new endeavors and while it has required two months for the three American airplane cruisers to reach Paramashiri it is something which no other has ever done.

ROAD LOADS.

Indiana has been, and if we are to judge by the official statements, still is suffering from the effects of overloaded trucks upon its improved highways.

State Highway Director Williams of that state is quoted as saying that the steadily increasing size of trucks, which permit of bigger and bigger loads, invites drastic reprisals on the part of an aroused public. They are having the same experience in the Hoosier state that has been experienced in others. There is a disposition to get the benefit connected with the big and heavily overloaded trucks at the expense of the highways and those who were taxed to build them.

It is pointed out that there is an opportunity for truck operators to come to a realization of the situation and to see that there is a restriction placed upon the loads. It is recognized that it is preferable to do this voluntarily than to have a state law passed which would be less favorable and which would create more or less bother and trouble.

The situation is one similar to what other states have had to contend with, and it is doubtful if the warning of impending legislation will be sufficient to get those responsible in Indiana to accept the warning and make restrictive legislation unnecessary.

There's a strange notion that improved roads can be abused just because they cost a lot of money, and are expected to withstand greater loads than ever intended. It is to be realized that the earlier type of road construction is giving way to the so-called permanent type because of the character of present day traffic, but that doesn't warrant the spoiling of existing stretches of good roads which cannot and were not built to carry unwarranted loads.

Possibly Indiana will be able to convince the truck operators that they must give consideration to the roads they use, but it is doubted that it will result until it is forced upon them. Those who don't care will bring the restrictions upon all.

CANADA'S PROTEST.

Up to the present time Chicago seems to have been solving its sewage problem in the easiest way. It has recognized the availability of the waters of Lake Michigan to flush out the canal that takes it off to the Mississippi and it has been increasing its demands upon the lake until it draws 36,000,000 cubic feet an hour so that what is used for the sanitary district of Chicago does not flow on down the other lakes and rivers to the St. Lawrence. It is a diversion that has been increasing until it has gotten to the point where it is affecting those who own rights which are made decreasingly valuable as the amount of water taken is increased.

The use of water along the natural line of flowage could not be denied, but in this instance Chicago uses for such purpose as it desires and instead of turning it back into the lake sends it off down the Mississippi, or contrary to the natural flow. Should the waters of the Mississippi be tapped at some point and turned eastward so that it would enter the Atlantic, such a thing were possible, it could be expected that there would be a howl of protest from those along the great river who would experience handicaps because of the decreased volume of water.

Thus when Canada makes protest it is simply protecting its rights, and the rights of all those depending on lake water and who are feeling the effects of Chicago's diversion. It is necessary to lower Lake Michigan very much to have the loss severely felt. Water that runs over a dam is lost to the industry located at that point but others along the stream get the benefit of it. Water that goes through Chicago's canal is a direct loss to the users of lake water. Others get it who would not care for the manner in which Chicago uses it of its sewage.

WHERE COOLNESS COUNTED.

Provisions for safety are of the utmost importance, but there are times when they needed to be applied with calmness and deliberation, even in the face of danger, in order to get the benefit of them. Had there not been the case loss of life and serious injury would probably have followed the elevator accident in New York when the cable snapped at the top floor.

An investigation will be justified to determine why such a weak cable was not detected and removed before it had worn to the point of snapping and to ascertain why the safety device did not operate at once, but it is impossible to overlook the service that was rendered by the operator when he went from one safety device to another until he managed to bring the car to a stop ten feet from the concrete basement.

Whether he had extraordinary calm in himself or failed to really sense the danger matters not. It was a time for cool headedness and he displayed it in a most gratifying manner under conditions which might have made the operator as well as his passengers disposed to be frantic.

Where the blame lies for the seeming unsafe lift remains to be ascertained, but there's no question where the real life saver on that occasion was. He was charged with a greater responsibility than he realized but he didn't waver. He had no time to waste and those in that enclosed car have much to be thankful for that he made such good use of it. He is apparently the type of employe who deserves a better equipment with which to do business.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Watercress gives delicious flavor to cream soup.

When making mustard, mix it with a little milk instead of water, and it will keep fresh for a longer time.

Take care of all your household tools and keep them in condition. You will not find it necessary to replenish them so often if you do.

Mirrors are very decorative, and add to the effect of size in any room, but they should be placed where they reflect the most pleasing view.

All metal fixtures for the bath room should be of good quality, as the cheaper qualities will soon require much care and refinishing.

It is a great labor saver if you will keep, on each floor, a duster, broom and brush and if you keep rooms tidied up as they need it instead of waiting for regular cleaning days.

One way to utilize left-over meat is to chop it very fine, season and warm it in gravy or sauce sufficient to moisten it. Then spread on slices of crisp toast dipped in salted water.

It is a good plan to place new glass dishes in cold salted water and then gradually allow the water to reach boiling point. Keep it at this temperature a few minutes, and then take the pan off the fire and set it aside with the dishes in it till cold.

Smears on china and glass can easily be got rid of if you use two bowls of water when washing up. One should have soap in it, and the other should be full of fairly hot plain water. If the articles are well rinsed in this second bowl and then left to drain, the result will be a beautifully shiny surface.

An article which will save many stoops and steps is made from an ordinary barrel hoop cut in one place and bound with cloth or ribbon; this is opened up and snapped on to the sides of the carriage or crib in a vertical position, forming an arch over the child. From the hoop fasten the toys on lanes of various lengths. They are then always within reach and cannot be thrown out of the carriage.

SAVE CELERY TOPS

Do not throw away the top leaves of celery. Place in a colander on top of stove shelf and let dry thoroughly. When they are dry rub through a sieve to a fine powder. This makes the finest kind of seasoning for turkey dressing, meat loaf and croquettes as well as many other things. The coarser pieces may be saved and put in soups for flavoring.

OLD SINKS MADE NEW

And the sink. Enamel will convert the oldest sink into a clean white one. Be sure that the surface is dry before applying the enamel, then three coats allowing sufficient time between each for drying. You should also enamel around the water pipes and wherever moisture may collect.

RUSTY CURTAIN PINS

When curtain pins become rusty let them stand for a few minutes in a cup of water to which a little ammonia has been added. Then take out and rub well and they will look almost like new.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Ridges in the finger nails should be worn smooth with pumice stone and soap. After cream has been on the nail give a little while polish with a buffer.

Once a week is enough to manicure properly, the daily treatment consisting only of pushing back the skin with an orange wood stick when the hands have been washed in warm water, of a quick polish with your buffer, a touching up of the ends with the emery board twice during the week and if the nails are dry or old rubbing in oil when it seems necessary.

If a child's hair is thin is should be kept short as long as possible. In any case it is a good thing to keep children's hair short since it is less cooling for the head child and moreover, and since clipping is good for the hair. Children rightly, go bareheaded most of the time; it is good for their hair except when the weather is too cold or the mid-summer sun too hot.

FOR AFTERNOON TEA

Delicious for afternoon tea, and used by many also for the after-dinner cup of black coffee is flavored loaf sugar. This is easily prepared at home. Simply rub the entire surface of each domino over the rind of an orange or a lemon, first of course washing and wiping the fruit dry. Do this a day when you are planning to use the juice of the lemon in cooking.

In the average home some orange juice is always wasted. If a slightly stronger flavor is desired in the sugar, a few drops of the juice may be squeezed over each block, but care must be taken not to use too much, else the sugar will disintegrate.

VOILE FOR LINGERIE

The favorite material for lingerie seems at the moment to be voile. Underthings are trimmed with Irish crochet, real filet medallions, or colorful pipings. The garments themselves are often in pale blues and greens.

HOMEMADE DRY MOP

A splendid dry mop can be made from the legs of old black stockings. Cut off the feet to about fifteen stockings and slit them open lengthwise then sew them together and fasten them into a mop handle.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Miss. Helen Marion Viglini, a former assistant district attorney in Dallas, Texas, has announced her candidacy for judge of the county court.

Telephone wires down because of a storm, a woman of Centreville, Md., jumped into her auto and drove seven miles in record time to summon the the fire company to save her father's home.

The distinction of being the first woman to appear on the program of the American Social and Political Science Association belongs to Fannie Fern Andrews, well known as an author, lecturer and social worker.

The International Women's Zionist Organization is to establish at Nahalal, near Haifa, a school where Jewish young women will be able to receive a training which will fit them to undertake farming in Palestine.

Queen Mary's leisure hours are invariably occupied by feminine pursuits, and she does a vast amount of needlework. According to one member of the royal household the Queen frequently does more sewing in a day than the average housewife does in a week.

COPPER KETTLES

Copper kettles will polish more quickly if filled first with boiling water. Let stand about three minutes, then pour out and apply polish to the heated surface.

FRESHENS THE FURNITURE

FOR CHILD'S BIRTHDAY

Dip the feet of animal crackers in sugar and water, boiled to the crack, and fasten them to small thin crackers where they will stand upright. Arrange them in a procession around the table, just inside the children's plates. With caraway candies, spell the name or initial of the child on the top of a birthday cake, and make tiny flowers or a fancy border, using one candy at a time, placed in position with a small pair of tweezers.

USE FOR OLD LINEN

One way to utilize old table linen is for drying lettuce leaves. Make a bag about half a yard square, sewing up three sides, and, after washing the lettuce leaves, drop them into the bag, shake lightly and then leave them a few moments. Nearly all the moisture from the leaves will have been absorbed.

RED CHAIR AND TABLE

Red is a color that when used sparingly is most successful in interior decoration. A fascinating chair of antique red has a circular cushioned back of black moire. A tiny triangular table of red and black fits firmly against one of the arms and serves as a smoking stand or to hold the individual tea or coffee cup.

DICTATES OF FASHION

At the Paris style openings there are many novelties in the way of jabots, lace frills, lapels and collars.

Square cut crystals are very popular for necklaces, strung with a small bead or bit of jet between the larger ones.

English eyelet embroidery in pastel and two-toned shadings is being combined with crepe de chine for summer frocks.

Wool lace is a novelty that is used to decorate straightline dresses. It is shown in all the pastel colors as well as in black and white.

The sleeveless vogue persists, chiefly out of deference to the flapper, who will have no sleeves. Even the sports blouse is sleeveless now.

Tricornes of black straw with perky cockards of pleated ribbon or with fancy buckles are about as popular as the cloche for the spring tailleur.

Ostrich feather fringe makes a very smart finish for coats and frocks. In all exhibitions of bridle finery, one is impressed with its popularity.

An interesting crepe de chine frock has a skirt that is cut very circular on one side and has a section of pleated ruffles inserted on the others.

The single tassel that extends from the belt to the hem line, attached from a jeweled or braided ornament, is one of the most effective trimmings for the evening gown.

Many of the present-day trimmings on the big hats sweep downward in a graceful swirl of feathers or a garland of leaves. This downward trend, incidentally, is usually more becoming to a young face than to a matronly one.

FANCIES IN GLOVES

This year, more than ever before, is the demand for originality manifesting itself in gloves, both in those made here and in France. With the exception of evening gloves, the accent is to be found in color contrasts. It is in the embroidery, and most particularly in embroidered cuffs that the contrasts are found. Cuffs that turn back, revealing brilliant linings of silk or leather, are to be had in imposing array.

Combinations of black and white are many. An interesting and attractive example of the association of these two colors is found in black kid gloves, with reversed cuffs lined with perforated white kid, through which the black ground accents the pattern of the perforations. The same effect is acquired in many instances with white kind gloves, lined with black, green, brown, red, or in fact almost any other color.

The lighter shades of tan, such as fawn, beige, sand, mode and mastic, are much in demand, embroidered either in direct contrast or in a darker brown shade.

"Airdale tan" is the name of the newest sport glove color. It is an excellent color for driving, golfing or other out-door sport because, being a bright dust red shade, it defies dirt.

POPULAR TYPE OF HAT

It seems as though three types of hat would lead in popularity for some time to come. These are the always practical sailor, the rolled brim cloche, and the tricorne. The tricorne is seen in a number of new phases.

Very little hair shows beneath the street hats at present. The hats are pulled so low on the forehead that only the smallest wisp of hair shows in front of each ear.

SEWING HINTS

If you once use a discarded electric-light bulb to darn your stockings, you will not go back to your old darning-egg again.

A strip of adhesive tape around your forefinger when sewing will prevent the roughness caused by pricking the finger.

Before threading a needle with wool, twist a tiny piece of cotton around the end of the thread and into a point. The thread will then go into the small eye of a needle without any trouble.

When the fastener on a glove comes off, reenforce the place with a bit of old kid, then sew on an ordinary dress fastener in place of the old clasp.

It is a good plan to simply baste (not stitch) the bottom hem of net curtains. After they have hung and stretched and sagged all they will the permanent hems can be stitched.

WINDOW SHADE HINT

A simple method of doubling the life of a window shade is to remove the shade from the top of the roller and hem the end thus removed. Then remove the stick from the hem at the bottom and slip it into the new hem. Next cut off the old hem at the bottom of shade and attach the raw edge to the roller. The soiled portion of the shade now becomes the top and when the shade is drawn half the length of the window a clean, new shade appears.

HOME FURNISHINGS

Home decorators who took to their hearts the hook rugs of New England will be interested in quaint wooden footstools of New England inspiration, rush-bottom chairs and tin sconces, many of which are large decorative wall plaques which seem to hold candles only incidentally.

Painted tin cake covers with tiny perforations are very nice for keeping food fresh and free from insects in the summer time. One has a diminutive teapot for a knob. Old-fashioned glass hen dishes in opal crystal and pale blue make a timely appearance for Easter breakfasts. Hostesses who make a feature of dainty table appointments will appreciate a muffinier in Venetian glass, and a Venetian glass swan used for mayonnaise.

What to do with tall cut flowers is always perplexing. A 14-inch painted tin paper basket with a tall, square handle solves the problem. For magazines there is a decorated oval basket with a graceful curved handle.

RECIPES

Mashed Eggs on Toast: Break and beat four eggs in a stewpan with one ounce of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper. Stir over the fire continually until delicately set. Have ready some green peas, asparagus, or fresh mushrooms boiled until tender and properly seasoned with pepper, salt and butter. Place in a stewpan with the eggs, and place in a warm oven until ready to serve. At the last minute pour four tablespoonfuls of hot cream and serve upon toast, either buttered or dry.

Baked Indian Pudding: Bring three and one-half cupfuls of rich milk to a scald and gradually add one-third cupful of corn meal mixed with half a cupful of cold milk. Cook for 20 minutes, then add half a cupful of molasses one teaspoonful of mixed ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake for three hours in a very slow oven. Serve with a sauce made as follows: Beat together until thick and creamy the white of one egg, half a cupful of thick cream, one-third cupful of milk, one cupful of powdered sugar and half a teaspoonful of vanilla.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Kindness to Animals

Mr. Editor: It has been said if we read the experiences of animals in terms of our own life we exaggerate their pains. Perhaps so, as their nerves are less exquisitely tuned than are ours. It is said that their suffering is not to be compared to ours as their miseries are not compounded of regret and fear as are ours. Probably no animal knows regret but they certainly know fear although their suffering may not compare in intensity with ours. They do suffer to the full extent of their capacity for suffering mentally or spiritually as well as physically. Who that has witnessed the grief of the mother cat for the loss of her kittens can doubt this?

Gratitude and affection are also mental or spiritual qualities, and how much of both of our non-human friends manifest towards those who show kindness and affection to them. Can it be wholly unorthodox to think that kindly and intelligent beasts have a stronger claim to immorality than brutish men? Perhaps their only immorality lies in the memories of those who have loved and cared for them. Be that as it may, should we not remember that as we suffer and enjoy so our non-human friends also suffer and enjoy? Remembering this should we not seek to promote their comfort and well-being and avoid all that brings discomfort and suffering upon them?

BRUTARIAN.

Du Pont, the Coal Miner.

Coleman du Pont's father went west to seek his fortune, and had little money when the boy was born in Louisville, Ky., while the Civil war was raging.

Coleman attended public school, then went to college at Urbana, Ohio, and afterward to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston. He was over six feet tall, weighed 210 pounds and was a leader in the athletics of the institute.

When he was graduated he had to go to work, and he became a surveyor for the Louisville and Southern Exposition. Then, when 19, he started as a coal miner at Central City, Kan. First with pick, underground, then as driver of mules, he worked his way up to the position of superintendent.

But he wanted to make $4,000 a year like a friend who was president of a coal company, and he worked seven years more for the Central Coal & Iron Company, then, when 30, became general manager of the Johnson company, at Johnstown, Pa.

He bought the street car line in Johnstown, then built others in New York, New Jersey and Alabama, and, when 38, was rated a rich man.

Relatives noticed his ability, and he was made president of the du Pont Powder Company at Wilmington, Del., with its seven clerks. He worked day and night until the company was one of the largest of its kind in the world. Now the organization has nearly 3,500 clerks and manufacturers nearly 300 articles from powder's by-products.

He built the Equitable building, in New York, then bought the Equitable Life Insurance Company and mutualized it. Purchases of hotels, mines, farms and banks followed. He was made Brigadier-General on the staff of the governor of Delaware and later was appointed United States senator.

Today he is one of the richest men in the world and is known for his many philanthropies, one being the making of a model town of Central City, where he had worked as a miner.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Louis W. Hill, who has announced his intention of retiring from active business affairs at an early date, is fifty-two years old today. For a number of years he has been the executive head of the Great Northern Railway, the great highway across the Northwest which was financed and built by his father, the late James J. Hill. The son, who was born in St. Paul, was sent east to Yale to be educated, was graduated with the class of '93, and then returned to the Northwest to learn the railroad business "from the ground up." When this had been accomplished he was put on the railroad directorate, and then, in 1907, was made president, to succeed his father. Like his father, Mr. Hill has done much to encourage civic and economic improvement of the states through which his railway extends. In co-operation with the Department of the Interior at Washington, he has been a large factor in developing the national park system of the Northwest. Throughout his career he has attended definitely to the business of running a railway and has left out Wall street and all speculative phases of railroading.

"WHITHER GOEST THOU?" PRIEST QUOTES GOSPEL

Yesterday, the fourth Sunday after Easter, the epistle read in all the masses throughout the Catholic world was James I, 17-21 and the gospel was John 16, 5-14. The opening passage of the gospel, "Jesus said to His disciples, I go to Him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?" was the text from which the rector of St. Patrick's church, Rev. M. F. May, preached to the usual large congregation at the 7.30 mass.

The reproach of the Saviour in this question, "Whither goest thou?" a mild reproach to the disciples for their indifference, is applicable to many in the world today. The preacher put the query direct to his listeners, asking how many of them were giving concern as to whither they are going. By the fact that so many were in the church at that early hour, he said, following a week of toil, cutting short their sleep, it was proof that not all were indifferent to the God Who has created, redeemed and sanctified man. But he laid stress upon the vital importance of giving thought to that death which for many may soon bridge time and eternity, of never losing consciousness of the true aim of this earthly existence, which is to work out one's salvation. Earnestly Father May exhorted all to live a [illegible] Christian, Catholic life, obeying the commands of God, a life conforming with the life and example of the Saviour. This will be possible if one asks God for strength and grace against daily temptations. And as is the mother of Christ, watched over Jesus Divine Son, all should ask her protection and watchful care. After giving holy communion Father [illegible] assistance of Rev. Myles [illegible], the many communicants were led to the altar by the Rosary Society, Miss Annie G. Stanton, president.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. John R. McNamara

Elizabeth Frances Gaffney, widow of John R. McNamara, died Saturday morning at her home No. 15 Slater avenue following an illness of some duration, during which she was tenderly cared for by members of her family.

Mrs. McNamara was born in Mystic, the daughter of Michael and Mary Gaffney. She received her education in Mystic schools, then entered the Bucklen institution in that town and resided in Mystic until her marriage to John R. McNamara, when she moved to Norwich where she had since made her home.

She was a loving wife and mother and her greatest happiness in life was to have her children about her. Ever willing to assist others she took interest in church work, and a devout member of St. Patrick's church. She was a member of the Catholic Women's club, the Rosary society of St. Patrick's church, a member of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association and of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. In all these organizations she took an active part and was thought highly of by her many friends.

She is survived by four sons, John G., Arthur J., M. Philip and C. Paul McNamara, and one brother, James B. GaGffney of San Francisco, who recently visited his sister in this city.

James Watt

Word was received by relatives in this city Sunday of the death of James Watt, formerly of Norwich in East Pittsburgh, Pa. The message, which came from the Westinghouse Electric company carried no particulars and nothing could be learned Sunday of the circumsances surrounding his death.

Mr. Watt was born in Norwich, the son of James and Christina Moir Watt and was educated in local schools. Later he went to Milwaukee, Wis., where he learned the trade of machinist. Returning to Norwich he followed his trade with the U. S. Finishing company and in 1917 left Norwich for New Haven and worked in several cities before going with the Westinghouse people in East Pittsburgh.

Mr. Watt is survived by a sister, Mrs. Peter R. Thom of Appleton, Wis., two cousins in Norwich, Mrs. John McNeely of Roswell avenue and Mrs. E. H. Quinley, and other cousins in New Haven and California.

Bernard Jakubowski.

After an illness of about seven weeks the life of Bernard Jakubowski came to a close Sunday morning at his home at No. 3 Sylvester street.

The death of Annie Louise Worcester, for many years a resident of Norwich died sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning at her home No. 89 Asylum street. Miss Worcester had been visiting in Hartford for the winter and had returned to her home on Wednesday of last week. She complained of feeling a little tired but was seemingly in good health all day Friday and retired as usual.

Saturday morning Mrs. Jonn McNeely, who resides in the Worcester house failed to hear Miss Worcester about the house and about noon found the morning paper had not been taken in. Investigaitg she found Miss Worcester lying in bed and a physician was called, pronouncing death due to a form of heart trouble.

Her girlhood days were spent in Norwich and she also resided in other cities where her father held pastorates, the greater part of her life, however, being spent in Norwich.

She was a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and took great interest in church activities as long as health permitted. She was also a great lover of nature and took much pleasure with her gardens which were always filled with beautiful flowers during the summer.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. John C. Morgan of Gardner Lake, and Mrs. E. A. Rice of Lake Helen, Florida, who arrived in Norwich Saturday to make her home here. There is also one niece Mrs. H. N. Porter of Hartford.

The many friends of Miss Worcester will learn of her sudden death with sorrow and sympathy is expressed for her relatives in their bereavement.

NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY

NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY HAS NOTABLE HISTORY FOR 100 YEARS

CHARLES R. BUTTS
President

Incorporated in May, 1824, the second mutual saving bank to be organized in the state of Connecticut, the Norwich Savings Society is reaching its one hundredth anniversary with deposits of $20,454,316.61 on Nov. 30 last, the fourth largest in deposits in the state.

HISTORY OF BANK GIVEN IN BOOKLET

In commemoration of the anniversary a booklet containing an historical sketch has been prepared for the bank by Henry A. Tirrell, one of the directors, who prefaces the sketch with the following scripture quotation, which he styles an original thrift item: And the seven years of plenty, that was in the land of Egypt came to an end. And the seven years of famine began to come according as Joseph had said; and there was famine in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread. Genesis 41, 54.

The book contains a pen and ink sketch of the bank building on Main street, with the explanation that on the site of the bank in olden times stood a brick tavern, where George Washington spent the night of June 30, 1775.

Written by Mr. Tirrell, who is principal of the Norwich Free Academy, the booklet has been printed in a limited edition by the pupils of the Academy and is a very creditable example of the work the do in printing.

Historical Sketch

Mr. Tirrell's sketch is as follows:

At the close of one hundred years of service it seems fitting to recall briefly the beginnings of institution that has contributed in no small measure to the growth of our community. A mutual savings bank, indeed, is a vital part of community life, rather than an independent agency for social betterment, inasmuch as its owners are all those who become depositors; it exists solely for their welfare. Its officers are trustees, responsible to the state for an efficient and safe administration of the funds entrusted to them. Its influence is far-reaching, touching the foundations of character. In a century of service this society has declared in dividends a total of over thirty-one million dollars, and its present list of depositors is larger than the population of the city of Norwich, comprising residents of every state in the Union, and of almost every country in the world. Its loans, its payments of deposits as well as dividends, its conservative yet helpful aid to individuals and to business interests, would in the aggregate amount to a huge sum, if measured by the material standard of the dollar. But far more important than money has been its influence on the community in the development of a spirit of thrift and industry in individuals, and of safe business methods in co-operative enterprises. Sobriety, reliability, perseverance, ambition, and other qualities of good citizenship are some of the by-products of what seems perhaps to be solely a financial institution. In the 79 savings banks of Connecticut there are approximately 800,000 depositors. It is evident that such citizens, having an interest in the preservation of law and order, are not apt to become a menace to our country. The savings bank is one of the most helpful means of promoting true Americanism.

Mutual Savings Banks

The good intentions in which mutual savings banks passed from the experimental stage of semi-charitable efforts for aiding the poor and dependent classes of a community to the more useful service of self-respecting and self-sustaining co-operative enterprises have not deprived these institutions of their two main purposes: first—the purpose of guaranteeing to depositors, however small, a safe return of their investments; secondly—the purpose of investing, safely and co-operatively, sums too small to be invested by the depositor alone. Insofar as savings banks have fulfilled these two purposes, they have exerted a continuous influence towards thrift and industry, the foundations of character and prosperity. In all the history of mutual savings banks in the United States, in which there is now on deposit a sum in excess of six billion dollars, the total losses to depositors have been so small as to be negligible, while the dividends paid since the first such bank was established in 1816 have been almost beyond computation. The annual cost of managing the business of savings banks is approximately one-quarter of one per cent of the deposits. It is noteworthy that the costs of operation of The Norwich Savings Society have been considerably less than this.

The idea of mutual savings institutions for certain classes of people seems to have been suggested first in England by the author of Robinson Crusoe, Daniel Defoe, as early as 1697. This idea, combined with schemes for pensioning the needy, later resulted in the foundation of so-called Friendly Societies, whose purpose was largely charitable. Frugality Banks followed before 1800, and by 1817 were fairly common in England. The first such institution to become entirely self-supporting originated in 1810 with the Reverend Henry Duncan of Dumfriesshire, Scotland, who may therefore be called the father of the modern mutual savings bank. In this country the worth of the idea was soon recognized. On November 25, 1816 the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society was organized, and was chartered December 13, 1816. The sixth savings bank in this country and the first in this state, was the Society for Savings of Hartford, organized June 9, 1819. The Norwich Savings Society was the second to be organized in Connecticut and is fourth largest in amount of deposits. Its founders were men of vision. In the list of twenty original incorporators and the twenty others elected by them as associates in the Society are to be found many family names famous in state and national history. While in some respects conditions of life a century ago seem to us primitive, as perhaps our own times will seem a century hence, yet a knowledge of the limitations under which these men labored serves only to increase our respect for their sagacity and courage.

offering to exchange commodities for other articles of value or "for things to eat." Specie was scare in those days. A sarcastic editorial rejoices that the mails are arriving from New York in eighty-six hours as compared with the twenty-six hours in which Hartford receives its mail. The cost of mail was very high, for 30 miles 6 cents, from 30 to 80 miles 10 cents, 80 to 150, 12 1-2 cents, for an ordinary letter. The telegraph, the telephone, the railroad, were as yet unknown. The town of Norwich had less than 4,000 inhabitants. Yet these men saw that the time was ripe for the new enterprise. The nation was just emerging into a vigorous self-consciousness. To the original 13 states had been added Vermont, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Louisiana, Indiana, Mississippi, Illinois, Alabama, Maine, and Missouri. Steamboats on inland waters, and especially on the Mississippi, the Cumberland Road, and the Erie Canal gave promise of easy commerce between north and south and the rapidly growing west. The message of President Monroe in December 1823 had given notice to the world that we were ready to stand by ourselves. His attitude was approved equally by Thomas Jefferson and by John Adams, the patriarchs of Revolutionary fame. The younger generation of statesmen, Webster Clay, John Quincy Adams, Calhoun, and the doughty Andrew Jackson, all voiced the coming in of a new era of national prosperity. The establishment of the Second Bank of the United States in 1816, the consequent passing of "Wild Cat" banking, the prosperity of manufacturing in New England, all pointed in the same way. Locally, too, there was a place for such an institution. The commerce of Norwich with the West Indies was considerable. The development of our water power was about to come. Factories for the manufacture of cotton goods, of paper, and nails, an iron foundry, a rolling mill, were soon to be started. Many of the

WESTERLY CRASH REVEALS RUM RUNNING AUTOMOBILE

Westerly, May 18.—Before Judge Michael J. Turano in a session of the Third District court this afternoon, Thomas DiPaola of 37 Pierce street, paid fines and costs amounting to $158 on complaint of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, $100 and transporting liquors $58.

About 4.30 Saturday night Antonio Fiore was proceeding down the Post road with two passengers for Dunn's Corners, when the Durant touring car 24-675 R. I., driven by DiPaola came careening up the road and as he pulled off the roadway the car shot by his rear end at a high rate of speed breaking his bumper, and crumpling his mud guard. On looking around the DePaola car was no where in sight for it had crashed off the highway, climbed a stone wall, knocking off stones; cut down a tree and crashed through the underbrush and finally stopped with from running gear and underbody completely smashed, although the windshield was unbroken and the headlights continued to operate.

Special Officer George Madison proceeded to the place, a half mile east of the Sprague farm on the Post road where he found the driver trying to carry the cargo of wet goods into the brush. Examination showed the car contained a case of Hunter whiskey, six one gallon cans said to contain alcohol and several cartons of beer. The wet goods were taken to the police station on Union street. Patrolman Fred T. Mitchell also visited the scene and returned to the police station with DiPaola.

ROAD THROUGH PLAINFIELD NEEDS REPAIR WORK

For the past few weeks men in the employ of the state highway department have been busy fixing state roads in Eastern Connecticut for summer travel and they are now in fine condition in most parts. Autoists however, complain of one stretch which is the worst in this part of the state, that being on the Norwich-Central Village road, especially between Bishop's Crossing, over through Plainfield. Mounds, holes, broken edges and bumps feature this section, they complain, the broken edges making it dangerous when automobiles passing one another are forced to drop one side the car off the tar bound road. With this road repaired Eastern Connecticut will be greatly improved and fewer autoists will have cause to complain, and it is hoped that something can be done in the near future to better the road conditions and Bishop's crossing this point being within a quarter of a mile on the Jewett City side of the railroad crossing.

Westerly, May 18.—Acting on a tip received, Patrolman Charles W. Connors of the Pawcatuck police force, tonight about 8.30 gave the Ford sedan 39-341 R. I., the once-over at the Brown livery station on Coggswell street. A search of the auto produced a case of 26 quart bottles of Gordon dry gin which the driver and owner of the car, a Mr. Kingsley of Brock avenue, Arctic, R. I., was reported to have consigned for a Westerly party with whom he failed to connect. With Mr. Kingsley was Ernest Lamoreaux of Pleasant street, Phenix, R. I., and they were both taken to the lockup on Liberty street by the patrolman, as was also the liquors.

The men will be arraigned in a session of Stonington town court this (Monday) morning before Judge William A. Wilcox on a probable charge of transporting liquor contrary to the federal prohibition laws. The case of gin was said to be pretty nearly the real stuff. The automobile is being held by the police authorities and its disposition will probably rest with the federal men.

TAKES APPEAL FROM FINE IN CITY COURT

Charles L. Thompson of Willimantic was before Judge A. F. Libby in the city court Saturday morning on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and with reckless driving, his machine having been in collision Friday night at Norwich Town near Adams Tavern with a machine driven by C. E. Geoffrey of East Great Plain.

Mr. Geoffrey testified that repairs to the running board and mudguards of his machine would cost about $60. Patrolman Clarence G. Thompson and Constable Lucius Fenton gave testimony and Mr. Thompson, the accused, said that he had only driven a car two or three times at night and did not like night driving. He was on his way to his sister's home at Yantic when the accident occurred.

Judge Libby polled the reckless driving charge but fined Thompson $200 and costs on the other charge with a 30 day suspended jail sentence. Thompson took an appeal to the common pleas court and furnished a bond of $300.

WILLIMANTIC MAN ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT

Willimantic, May 18—Frank Rousseau of this city and employed in Norwich was placed under arrest Sunday charged with assault on Solomon Belanger, Jr., of Bolliver street. Rousseau has not been living with his wife for about four months and the latter with her young child has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Belanger. It is alleged that Rousseau called at the Belanger home when the two women were away and he asked for clothing which he had stored there. Mr. Belanger claimed that when he bent down to take the clothes from a trunk he was struck by Rousseau. Belanger went out of the house into the yard where Rousseau continued the fight. A warrant was later made out for his arrest. Rousseau has a court record on charges of a similar nature. His last appearance in court was for a recent attempt to eject the occupants from his mother-in-law's home on Center street.

Following what the police believe to have been a general fight near the footbridge over the Yantic river at the falls Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, a woman went overboard and was rescued in a nearly drowned condition. She was taken to the Backus hospital where she gave the name of Mrs. Annie Sawitch, 30 of 6 Cove street.

After Capt. D. J. Twomey had a telephone message that a woman was drowned at the falls, he sent Officers Smith, Ryan and O'Neil there in a hurry and also summoned a doctor and the ambulance. The woman had been pulled out of the water before the police arrived. They arrested her rescuer, John Miller and also Philip Monek and Michael Savage, all Lithuanians, and all said to have been engaged in the fracas that ended in the near-drowning.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

(Fordham Star and New York Giants)

Should a third baseman ever field a bunted ball with one hand?

Many third basemen try to field all bunts with one hand but all third basemen should field all balls with two hands, even bunts, unless there is no possible chance to field them in that way. The exception occurs when a ball is bunted in towards the third base line and not very hard. The third baseman may then pick it up with one hand but this takes a great amount of practice and very few third basemen are able to handle a ball of this kind with one hand.

THREADMAKERS WIN OPENING GAME FROM TORRINGTON

Willimantic, May 18.—Willimantic's entry in the Connecticut State league jumped off to a good start at Recreation park Sunday afternoon before a crowd of twelve hundred fans by defeating the Torrington team in a free hitting encounter, 11 to 7. "Artie" Johnson, former Fisk Red Top moundsman, was on the hillock and although he did not hurl what one might say in masterful fashion his support was not up to "mustard," his associates making six misplays. Carlson was given wonderful support by the locals. The Threadmakers opened the plate denting in the initial stanza by pushing three runs over the home platter. Klinger's misplay gave the thread team another in the second. Some solid clouting enabled the visitors to chalk up three in the fourth and a couple of bases on balls and base hits three more in the eighth. Willimantic scored once in the fourth and four in the sixth. Torrington concluded the scoring in the finale with a lone tally.

Acting Mayor George W. Hickey president Bert F. More of the association, and Agent Don H. Curtis participated in the opening exercises. Score:

PHILLIES BEAT CUBS IN SECOND INNING

Chicago, May 18.—One vicious attack, in the second inning, in which Philadelphia smashed out two home runs, two triples, a double and a single, gave the visitors a commanding lead and they defeated Chicago, 8 to 5, in the first game of the series. Kaufman was forced to retire after being touched for homers by Hoike and Sand, a hit by Parkinson and a double by Henline. The first two men to face Vangilder hit triples. Hubbel was hit freely, but the Cubs lacked the punch with men on bases. The score:

AMERICAN RUGBY TEAM SMOTHERS FRENCH TEAM BUT IS TREATED ROUGH

Paris, May 18.—(By The A. P.)—The American Olympic football team today won its match from France by a score of seventeen to three.

Tonight the stars and stripes float over the Colombes stadium by virtue of the victory of the American rugby players. The flag was hauled up amid tense silence among the disappointed crowd of 30,000 spectators who had made France the favorite to win the game.

The Americans won the match on its merits. They outplayed the Frenchmen in every department of the game. The tussle was a rough one throughout, and the French team finished with only thirteen men. While the Americans played hard every minute of the eighty minutes, their game was a clean one. Not one of the Americans was warned by the referee, Sam Freethy. Two of the French players, however, had to be cautioned by him.

It was a case of superior physical condition winning over greater experience and rugby technique. The Americans were faster than the Frenchmen. They followed the ball like hounds on the trail of a rabbit; they covered their adversaries closely and tackled them hard. The visiting team stood the extremely warm weather better than the Frenchmen, who wilted competely in the second half.

The Americans dominated throughout the first period, astonishing the spectators, who had expected the Frenchmen to get the jump on them. "Dick" Hyland of San Francisco carried the ball over the French line after four minutes of play in the first half. The Americans were getting possession of the ball out of scrimmage oftener than the French and playing practically entirely in French territory during the half.

Jaureguy, France's fastest three-quarter back, was tackled hard after twenty minutes of play and was out of the game thereafter. The spectators, who up to that time had been fair, began abusing the Americans, although according to every expert in the newspaper and official stands the Americans were playing a hard but fair game. The French appeared to be in bad physical shape, they having been out of training since their match with the Rumanians two weeks ago. Apparently they could not stand the strain of hard tackling and were continually laid out. Some of them even knocked out themselves by coming into contact with American players carrying the ball.

At the end of the first half the score was in favor of the Americans 3 to 0. The second period started with the French men playing fourteen men, Jaureguy not having sufficiently recovered to resume. Four minutes after the half started Rudolph Scholz of Kewanee, Illinois, got the ball from scrimmage and passed it to Robert Devereau, Ohio, who ran thirty yards through the French team and shot the ball to Jack Patrick, of Palo Alto, California, who scored a try between the French goal posts. Doe converted it, making the score 8 to 0 in favor of the Americans.

Captain "Babe" Slater, of the Americans, obtained the ball thrown in from the touchline, shook off three French tacklers and, unaided, carried it over the line, bringing the score to 11 for the United States and 0 for France.

The Americans were completely outplaying the Frenchmen. The latter were absolutely exhausted. Wyase, who was playing three-quarters, in place of Francois Borde, attempted to run around the left ring, but was brought down hard by Caesar Manelli, New York city. The Frenchman's leg was injured and he was carried off the field. The French now were playing with thirteen men.

Lubin of the French team, who seemed to be playing an extremely rough game, was here cautioned by Referee Freethy for swinging a hard Carpentier-like blow to "Dick" Hyland's jaw. The referee was on the verge of putting the Frenchman off the field, but the Americans begged him to allow Lubin to continue.

Galau at three-quarters, taking advantage of a fumble in the American backfield, fell on the ball behind the United States goal line for the only try secured by France during the match. A fist fight then broke out in the stands and degenerated into a a battle royal in which gold-headed canes were freely used. The Americans were outnumbered, and furthermore they carried no canes with which to retaliate.

When the police managed to disentangle the combatants B. F. Larsen of Provo, Utah, and Gideon William Nelson, of Dekalb, Illinois, two American students in Paris, were found to have been knocked out cold. Both men had to be carried out of the stands. Nelson was unconscious for an hour. When he recovered it is said he began looking for a bewhiskered gentleman who carried a heavy cane.

On the football field the Americans now were complete masters of the situation. They kept the ball in French territory for the remaining twenty minutes of the game and might have rolled up a much larger score if they had had the experience, as the French defense was absolutely fagged out. Hyland and Manelli, both managed to score tries, but Doe could not convert them. The crowd booed and hissed.

As the final whistle blew the crowd for a moment appeared to be stunned. Amid silence the American flag was run up on the Olympic pole. This seemed to awake a large majority of the spectators from their minute or so of lethargy, for bedlam broke loose. The strains of the American anthem could hardly be heard owing to the terrific booing and catcalling as the Americans walked off the field. Spectators here and there in the stands at the same time were settling a few private arguments among themselves.

An American photographer, while attempting to take a picture of the American flag flying from the top of the Olympic pole was hit with various missiles thrown by enraged spectators and compelled to take to cover. Police reserves were called out to protect the American players from the crowd massed outside the main entrance to the stadium. The Americans left by a side gate under police protection. This they greatly resented saying they were perfectly capable of taking care of themselves. They finally departed from the stadium without experiencing further trouble.

During the match the American team had five tries, one of which was converted. France had one try which was not converted.

WESTERLY SLAUGHTERS STONINGTON IN NINTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, May 18.—Westerly High 17; Stonington High 3. It was not as one-sided a baseball contest at Owen park, Stonington, Saturday afternoon, as the score would indicate. If one of the frequent recent showers could have come up and prevented that ninth inning, in which the W. H. S. batted round, lacking one man of twice, then it would have been one all would have been proud of. In the terrible ninth the Blue and White Westerly boys began their batting order and every man on the team netted a run and the first three duplicated the stunt. Before this inning it was almost either team's game for Westerly held a one to nothing score for the first four innings when McGaffyey of Stonington drew a base on balls, stole second and scored the tying run for the S. H. S. and when the Westerly boys thought the inning over and started for the bench, Leventy scored the run which put Stonington one run in the lead. In the sixth Mefkie and Payne each scored for Westerly High and they were then one run to the good, which was increased two more by T. Dabrowski's and Salemano's score and the best Stonington could do was to add one by Hatfield's run. No more scoring was done until the balloon went up in the first half of the ninth and Westerly scored the 13 points.

Pitcher Smith of the W. H. S. was in top form with 20 strikeouts to his credit and only four hits were drawn from his offerings, three of these being by the S. H. S. slugger Levanty Emmett lacking the experience of the Westerly pitcher, put up a very creditable fight until he was taken out in the ninth.

NINTH INNING RALLY GIVES CARDS VICTORY

St. Louis, Mo., May 18.—A rally in the ninth inning with the score standing four to three against them, gave St. Louis the first game of the series with Boston here today. The score was five to four. Cooney, who relieved Genewich in the last half of the fatal inning failed to stop the rally, Flack's double scoring Toporcer and Dyer ended the game. The score:

BULKELEY BLANKS TORRINGTON HIGH IN STATE TITLE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 17.—In a game replete with thrills and complicated situations, Bulkeley High gained its seventh straight victory of the year and its seventeenth of the past two seasons by defeating the strong and undefeated Torrington High school nine on Morgan field, Saturday afternoon by the score of 7 to 0. Tillie Daniels great hurling in the pinches and Sheflott's home run in the fourth inning with two men on bases, were the high lights of the contest.

For three and a half innings the contest was as tight as could be desired. Good fielding and pitching were the features. But while Daniels was growing stronger with every pitch, La Ponte, the Torrington twirler, was growing weaker. Bulkeley made a total of ten hits. Torrington also made a like number, but as was said before, Daniels, by great hurling kept the visiting players away from the plate. But then the Bulkeley hits were clustered or bunched or whatever you would like to call it. In fact they were bunched as bananas and as clustered as grapes. Every opportunity to score that presented itself was made the most of on most occasions. It might be added that Torrington gagged old man opportunity hand and foot, and then added a weight to him and sunk him in the Thames river. He presented himself on many occasions for the visitors, but somehow or other they could not score. Ten hits and no runs is a large number of safe hits wasted. All of the Torrington hits were good for one base each only. The hits registered by Bulke

POETRY FOR WIDE AWAKES

SIR GALAHAD

My good blade carves the casques of men,
My tough lance thrusteth sure,
My strength is as the strength of ten,
Because my heart is pure.
The shattering trumpet shrilleth high,
The hard brands shiver on the steel,
The splinter'd spear-shafts crack and fly,
The horse and rider reel:
They reel, they roll in clanging lists,
And when the tide of combat stands,
Perfume and flowers fall in showers,
That lightly rain from ladies' hands.

How sweet are looks that ladies bend
On whom their favors fall!
For them I battle till the end,
To save from shame and thrall:
But all my heart is drawn above,
My knees are bowed in crypt and shrine;
I never felt the kiss of love,
Nor maiden's hand in mine.
More bounteous aspects on me beam,
Me mightier transports move and thrill,
So keep I fair thro' faith and prayer
A virgin heart in work and will.

When down the stormy crescent goes,
A light before me swings,
Between dark stems the forest glows,
I hear a noise of hymns.
Then by some secret shrine I ride;
I hear a voice, but none are there;
The stalls are void, the doors are wide,
The tapers burning fair.
Fair gleams the snowy altar-cloth,
The silver vessels sparkle clean,
The sacred bell rings the censer swings,
And solemn chants resound between.

Sometimes on lonely mountain meres
I find a magic bark;
I leap on board; no helmsman steers
I float till all is dark.
A gentle sound, an awful light!
Three angels bear the Holy Grail:
With folded feet in stoles of white,
On sleeping wings they sail.
Ah, blessed vision! Blood of God!
My spirit beats her mortal bars,
As down the dark tides the glory slides,
And starlike mingles with the stars.

When on my goodly charger borne
Thro' dreaming towns I go,
The cock crows ere the Christmas morn,
The streets are dumb with snow.
The tempest crackles on the leads,
And, ringing, grates on brass and iron;
Yet rides my helm salient with plumes,
But o'er the dark a glory spreads,
And gilds the driving hail.
I leave the plain, I climb the height;
No branchy thicket shelter yields.
But blessed forms in whistling storms
Fly over waste fens and windy fields.

A maiden knight—to me is given
Such hope I know not fear;
I yearn to breathe the airs of Heaven
That often meet me here.
I muse on joy that will not cease,
Pure spaces clothed in living beams,
Pure lilies of eternal peace,
Whose odors haunt my dreams;
And, stricken by an angel's hand,
This mortal armor that I wear,
This weight and size, this heart and eyes,
Are touched, are turned to finest air.

The blinds are broken in the sky,
And thro' the mountain walls
A rolling organ harmony
Swells up and shakes the halls.
Then rings the grail, the voice of prayer
Wings flutter, voices hover clear:
"O just and faithful knight of God!
Ride on! the prize is near."
So pass I hostel, hall and grange,
By bridge and ford, by park and pale,
All arm'd I ride, whether by side
The Holy Grail.

—Lord Tennyson

MY DOG

[illegible] has more hearts than [illegible]
[illegible] is not very wise;
But he would give his life for me—
I see it in his eyes.

[illegible] human friend would do
As much as that for me.
[illegible] is a mother's care
Sometimes exceeded that he Leaves hairs around and muddy tracks

Upon the polished floor.
And that his eager paws have left
Long scratches on the door.

Well, what of that? I care far more
For this true friend of mine
Than for the varnish on the door
Or for the floor's bright shine.

My dear protector, gentle, kind,
With him I know not fear.
And when he gazes in my eyes
With his brown eyes so clear,

Head on my knee, and gaily wags
His spiral of a tail,
I know full well I have one friend
Whose love will never fail.
—Loretta C. Reese in Junior Animals

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE AWAKES

Within a few weeks now school will close for the summer vacation. To some boys and girls the arrival of June, graduation month, will mean the close of school life and the beginning of the struggle to gain the top rung of the business ladder. If you happen to be among the large number who have to leave school without completing a high school education and without the possibility of a college education you should not make the mistake that the end of school life means that you must stop learning.

As a matter of fact no one has ever reached the point where he can never learn anything new. The successful man is continually broadening his education. He learns daily many things that are not taught in school. Education does not stop with the close of school life.

In even the busiest life there are spare moments which can be used for study. You should make it a habit to cultivate the companionship of good books. If you are not quite sure as to what kind of books are good books your teacher will give you a list or you can get a list of good books at any public library. You will find that good books are among the best friends you can have.

Another thing you should do is to keep in touch with your school books. Don't discard them when you leave the school building for the last time. Don't throw them in some corner or into the attic and forget all about them. Use them once in a while in your spare moments and you will find that they are very accommodating friends for they will impart the same knowledge to you at home as they would in the class room. Always remember that you haven't finished your education and never will in this life. There is always something new to learn.

REVIEW OF MARKETS.

New York, May 18.—(By The A. P.)—In a week during which uncertainties regarding the legislative situation at Washington reduced speculative activity to a minimum, reports concerning current industrial operations added little in the way of definiteness to judgments of the business outlook. In the main, the story told was one of a continued decline in production, although it was pointed out that the slackening is now becoming less marked than in recent weeks. Perhaps the most commonly accepted theory is that which holds that over-production during the early months of the year rather than any marked falling off in consumption is responsible for the present recession. Those who subscribe to this theory believe that the situation as between demand and supply gradually is righting itself.

One index which went against the general trend was that embodied in the statistics of railroad car loadings. After having fallen away for about two months, and after having shown a slight gain in the previous week, loadings increased rather smartly in the week ended May 3 and reached a total of 924,000 cars. With five exceptions, this total is the highest for the year. While the total is 47,000 below that for the same week last year the decrease is entirely explained by the slump in coal traffic. Loadings of merchandise and less than carload freight continue to run ahead of a year ago.

In the steel industry production still is falling off, though current curtailments are comparatively small. The mills are not stocked with products and the steel which has been delivered during the last few months is believed to be going into consumption rapidly. There are as yet no signs that the iron markets are about to turn. On the other hand, it is realized that manufacturers are less inclined to go in for general price cutting than before the war, for it appears that large extensions in capacity would make it more difficult to maintain prices once they were lowered.

Automobile production during April [illegible] passenger cars, trucks with 348,000 [illegible] April of last year. The figures confirm [illegible] to curtail in the early months of the year. THROWN FROM MOTORCYCLE AND DIES WITH FRACTURED SKULL

Thrown from his motorcycle while rounding the curve on North Main street, in front of the Norwich Belt Manufacturing company's plant, about 12.30 o'clock Sunday morning, Leon Myeski, 21, of South Thames street, died at 7 o'clock Sunday morning without regaining consciousness. His skull was badly fractured.

Police headquarters received a telephone call about 12.30 o'clock Sunday morning from a woman who lives near the scene of the accident and who informed Captain D. J. Twomey that the driver of a motorcycle had met with an accident and was lying in the road in front of the Belt Company plant. She said she saw two motorcycles pass her house and a minute later heard a crash. Investigating she found Myeski in the road badly injured. The other machine had gone on, the driver evidently being unaware of the fact that the motorcycle behind him had met with an accident.

Captain Twomey rushed the police patrol to the scene and summoned Dr. Paul F. Gadie. Myeski was placed in the patrol, brought to police headquarters and at once taken to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. Gadie. Dr. Gadie found that Myeski was suffering from a badly fractured skull, his upper lip was split and he had a deep gash in his left forehead. It required a dozen stitches to close the gash and cuts on his face and head. Little hope for his recovery was held out by the hospital authorities and he died at 7 o'clock without regaining consciousness. The young man's family was notified of the accident and immediately went to the hospital.

As far as could be learned no one saw the accident. Myeski was evidently following another machine. From friends and acquaintances the police learned that he had been a guest at a party in Taftville. About 10 o'clock he left the party and took a friend for a ride as far as the junction of North Main street and Central avenue, returning to the party. He left the party again before it broke up and drove to the city and was probably on his way back to Taftville when he was thrown from the motorcycle.

The motorcycle, a Harley-Davidson solo machine, lay on its side in the gutter close to the injured man. The front wheel was smashed and bent and the rear wheel was also damaged to considerable extent. Both tires were flat. The motorcycle was taken to police headquarters by the police.

High speed on the curve at the tannery is believed to have been the cause of the accident, as the police have been given information that the two motorcycles were seen by several persons on North Main street going at a fast rate towards Taftville. The police have so far been unable to identify definitely the rider of the other machine. It is believed he was in advance of Myeski and may not have known of the accident and was not interested to see why Myeski did not continue to follow him.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified of the man's death and conducted an investigation Sunday morning, giving Undertakers Cummings & Ring permission to take charge of the body.

Early History

The first by-laws, containing 15 articles, were adopted on July 12, 1824, and in addition to other interesting regulations provided that the Savings Society should be open twice a month (the first and third Mondays) from 10 A. M. to 12 M., that deposits should draw interest from the succeeding quarter day (fractions of a dollar not to be received nor to draw interest,) dividends not called for within three months to be added to principal, that the Board of Directors meet once a quarter, that the officers consist of a President, four Vice-Presidents, and nine Directors or Trustees. At the first meeting of the Directors on July 12, 1824, the President was authorized to procure necessary stationery, and to apply to the Norwich Bank to take all deposits and allow interest at the rate of 5 per cent annually. The first deposit was two hundred dollars made by Dorcas Mansfield of Norwich, July 3, 1824. The second was made by William C. Gilman on July 26, 1824, thirty dollars in amount. The first earnings were received from interest on an order of the Town of Norwich, and amounted to 78 cents. The total expenses of the first year were $63.92, $40 of which constituted the salary for the Treasurer, who was under bonds for $5,000. His pay was increased to $75 for the second year. The total net deposits on December 1, 1825 amounted to $15,067.09, credited to 178 depositors. As deposits grew the Treasurer's salary was increased till in 1829 it was $150 per annum. The secretary received in 1828 the sum of $15 to pay for "Stationery, office room, fuel, light, etc." In June 1838 the treasurer reported deposits of $121,009.61. For many years the prevailing rate of dividend was either 3 1-2 per cent, or 3 per cent semi-annually with occasional extra dividends.

In all its one hundred years the society has failed only once to declare a dividend. This was the semi-annual dividend of 1843, which was made up in January 1847 by a special extra dividend of 3 per cent for all "depositors of 1843 still on the books." The surprising increase in funds left deposited is well shown in the following accounts.

How Money Grows

Mr. Burrell W. Hyde, in the History of Seventy-five Years of the Norwich Savings Society, recounts the case of a deposit of one hundred and seventy-five dollars made in 1842, which, in 1874, amounted to eleven hundred dollars and eleven cents; equivalent to a dividend of 535 per cent on the investment. Another case, even more remarkable, is that of Stephen Brown, who, on June 4, 1832, deposited seven dollars, on September 3 of the same year, eight dollars, on July 21, 1833, five dollars and on October 8, 1834, thirteen dollars, a total deposit of thirty-three dollars. The account was closed by payment to his widow on December 3, 1915 of eighteen hundred twelve dollars and nine cents, of which sum the accumulation of dividends was seventeen hundred seventy-nine dollars and nine cents. No one who has had confidence enough in the society to let his money lie has ever lost by it.

A recent case emphasizes another side of this truth. A man came in with eleven hundred dollars in gold, which he wished to deposit, if the society would guarantee that he should receive it back "in gold" at any time, after suitable notice. He was informed that a guarantee of such a kind could not be given, but that the whole history of the institution would be a sufficient assurance of his receiving the gold when he wished it. After much hesitation he decided to deposit the money. When asked where he had secured the gold he explained that he had withdrawn it from the society shortly after the opening of the World war and had kept it in his home ever since! His loss of dividends meanwhile had mounted up to hundreds of dollars. Stranger still was the fact that he had all the time and another considerable sum on deposit with the Society and had invested liberally in United States war bonds.

Another depositor insisted on withdrawing ten dollars. After the proper entries had been made, the ten dollars paid, and the transaction closed, the depositor took out a considerably larger sum of money, placed it with the ten dollars just received, and deposited the whole sum! Confidence was once again established.

Residents of Norwich are familiar with the Uncas mounment, erected in 1842 near the Falls in memory of the friendly Sachem from whom the town plot had been purchased by the first settlers. Miss Caulkins, in her History of Norwich, gives an interesting account of the monument. When President Andrew Jackson, accompanied by Vice-President Martin Van Buren, by several members of his cabinet, and by Governor Edwards of Connecticut, visited Norwich in 1833, he laid the corner-stone of the shaft. But there was no money to pay for the memorial. In 1840, however, women of Norwich raised by a fair and at a political rally a considerable sum for the purpose, and in 1842 with great ceremony the monument was dedicated. But Miss Caulkins was unaware of one interesting result of the day. It was found, strange to say, that there remained an unexpended sum after all bills were paid. What happened to this money for the next few years has not been discovered. On July 31, 1848, however, it was deposited in The Norwich Savings Society, under the title "Mayor of Norwich in trust for Uncas Monument. Interest only to be withdrawn." The deposit has untouched till 1854, since which time small withdrawals have been made, but years have been needed at the burial ground. The original sum deposited was $46.78; the withdrawals have totaled $511.49; the deposit is now $444.60, enough to care for the memorial in perpetuity.

Oldest Account since 1833

The oldest account on the books of the society is that of Eliza Esther Clark, opened January 31, 1833 by a deposit of $4, increased by a deposit of $1 on February 1, 1834, since which time it has been untouched. For some unknown claimant this account now stands at $25.28, and, but for the by-law of 1915 relating to dormant accounts, would total $357.30. In 1915 the society adopted a rule that inactive accounts cease to draw interest after twenty years. That these accounts are really sleeping (dormant,) and not dead, has been proved a number of times. Much effort is expended by the society to discover and notify all claimants whose accounts have lain untouched for over fifteen years. Several years ago a man appeared with an old deposit book for a dormant account. Until he had received the letter from the society he had been unaware of his good fortune. After careful search he had come to the conclusion that the society was in error, when at last, wrapped up in an old brown paper, he had found the book. How it came to him he did not know. The probable explanation is that in the settlement of his father's estate the package had been handed to him with other parts of his share, and had been stored away unopened. His book called for about $400; his account was worth over $1,600.

The following memorandum from the books tells the story of a life long depositor who would not allow her account to become forgotten, as the entry of 1905 shows. Her name is omitted by request. L. Q. opened an account with The Norwich Savings Society, Oct. 23, 1834 by deposit of cash $30, Nov. 23, 1836 she deposited cash $3, May 16, 1840 she deposited cash $3.81, June 15, 1905 she deposited cash $1, total amount deposited $37.81.

The Norwich Savings Society closed this account by paying to the Executor of the will of L. Q. Oct. 14, 1908 cash $1,388.88, representing total deposits as above $37.81, and accumulation of interest or dividends $1,351.07.

Occasionally one comes across an account that has a mystery almost pathetic. John Higgin made a deposit of $116.40 on November 28, 1836. All that is known of him is that he was a "railroad laborer," and railroads in 1836 were very few. (The railroad tunnel near Taftville was the first in the United States.) The account of John Higgin or his heirs is now worth $5,427.36. All told the society has 27 such dormant accounts.

Encouraged Child Depositors

Many an interesting incident might be told of friendly advice to depositors who needed it, of personal as well as financial assistance of activities extending somewhat beyond the strict demands of business. The following advertisement in the Norwich Bulletin of November 13, 1913 is self-explanatory except that is does not reveal the name of the chief donor, who believed that a mutual savings society is an institution with a mission.

To the Depositors in the School Savings System of The Thames Loan & Trust Co. The Century Dictionary defines a savings bank as an 'institution for the encouragement of the practice of saving money among people of slender means, and for the secure investment of savings, managed by persons having no interest in the profits of the business, the profit being credited or paid as interest to the depositors at certain intervals.' The Norwich Savings Society, incorporated in May, 1824, is a bank of this character.

"Believing that the experience of about eight hundred children in this community in beginning their saving by deposits in the 'School Savings System' of the Thames Loan & Trust Company, now in the hands of a receiver, will tend to the discouragement of the practice of saving money,' and hoping thereby to modify this feeling, gentlemen associated with The Norwich Savings Society have arranged to enable the society, without cost, to make the following offer to such children:

If these depositors will present in person, at our office, between noon and two o'clock in the afternoon any Saturday up to and including November 28, 1918, their account card or receiver's certificate representing the same, they will receive either the full amount to their credit in cash, or, if they prefer, and the deposit is one dollar or over, a deposit book of The Norwich Savings Society for the amount.

Growth of Business

The real history of this society, as of many other such institutions, would contain numerous chapters on human nature. The hopes, the fears, the self-sacrifice, the characters, of depositors would furnish abundant material for a great author. The names of the men who have been connected with The Norwich Savings Society through its development are significant as founders of Norwich business interests, as benefactors of this community, and of the country as a whole. In some cases they were men of more than local reputation. Such men as Lafayette S. Foster, president of the U. S. Senate at the time of Lincoln's assassination, William A Buckingham, the "war governor" of Connecticut (1858-1866), John F. Slater, in whose honor Congress authorized a special medal commemorative of his gift of a million dollars for the freedmen of the south, deemed this institution worthy of their interest and support.

From the beginning the society was successful in interesting the public in thrift. In June 1830, it was voted to open the office on all week days. In 1843 the treasurer was authorized to secure a clerk to assist in making up the dividend accounts semi-annually. With increasing business the directors soon felt the need of a new home. In August 1847 it was voted to leave their room in the old Norwich Bank at the corner where the Shannon building now stands. The Society then erected its building now owned and occupied by the Dime Savings Bank. In that year the books showed 3,600 depositors with a total account of about $449,000. Continued growth necessitated a new banking house, which was opened on Shetucket street in 1864 with deposits of nearly four million dollars. For over thirty years this continued to be used, while deposits rose to about ten million dollars. In 1894 the present building was erected, with ample accommodations for continued expansion of business, and has been occupied since January 1, 1895.

Deposit Increases.

The deposits of the society through November 30, 1923 have been:

Date	Deposits	No. of Depositors
1834	$ 147,161.81
1844	281,637.65
1854	1,760,409.79	7,694
1864	3,831,860.19	11,999
1874	7,320,524.88	12,459
1884	7,828,511.83	10,771
1894	9,863,607.11	11,639
1904	15,054,820.75	17,501
1914	17,615,630.58	20,112
1923 Nov. 30.	20,454,316.61	22,134

The last semi-annual statement of the society shows assets carried on the books at $21,896,819.11 as against deposits of $20,454,316.61. This leaves a margin of surplus and undivided profits of $1,442,502.50. A further security of depositors consists in the fact that the par value of bonds exceeds the book value by $1,516,890.69, a sum which is gradually added to the assets as the bonds mature for payment. The last semi-annual dividend declared to depositors of January 1, 1924 amounts to $398,143.66 as compared with the first dividend, January 1, 1825 amounting to $42.63.

The number of deposit accounts for the century is more than 165,000, exclusive of all war loan transactions. Like all other savings banks the society "did its bit" in the War by handling for its clients and for the public generally government bonds in large amounts. 2850 bondholders are leaving their Liberty Bonds with the Society for safe-keeping, in almost all cases having the coupons added to sums already on deposit.

The average deposit for all accounts is about $887, while the annual expenses of management average $2 for each depositor.

Large Asset In Community

There is little of the spectacular in the history of a savings bank. Nevertheless the steady adherence to duty of its employees, the conscientious judgment of its officers and directors, the safe administration of its funds, the helpfulness of its influence, make it a large asset in community well being. In the selection of Mr. Charles R. Butts as president the directors secured a worthy successor to Mr. Arthur H. Brewer, who held the office fom 1913 to 1923. No president in the list of his fourteen predecessors has enjoyed any such complete preparation as he in the technique of banking. Directors and depositors alike have reason to rely with confidence on the success of his administration.

The by-laws of the society have been changed and modernized, always with the welfare of depositors in mind. Interest is counted from the first of each month, provided the deposit is made within the first five days of the month.

Charles R. Butts, president; Costello Lippitt, treasurer; Guy B. Dolbeare assistant treasurer; William I. Cook, assistant treasurer; Harold P. Hull chief clerk; Gatherine D. Smith, clerk; Lucile L. Howard, clerk; Edith A Fellows, clerk; Ruth E. Bartlett clerk; William M. Wyman, clerk; John Evans, clerk; Daniel F. McNeil custodian of safe deposit vault; Ansel A. Champion, janitor.

It is a matter of unusual interest that deposits of such magnitude are cared for by a comparatively small office force. The number of complete transactions averages about 200 a day throughout the year; yet the books are closed usually (dividend periods of course are excepted) shortly after 3.30.

The system by which the records are kept is so simpified and yet so accurate that it is often admired by visitors familiar with similar banks.

The statistics presented for The Norwich Savings Society seem small as compared with certain metropolitan banks, but are in reality surprisingly large when the population of the town of Norwich (29,684) is considered. In the savings banks of this small community are deposited over 36 million dollars. The thrift of the population and their prosperity have been due partly to the great diversity of local manufacturing interests, and in no small measure, we believe to the wisdom of the leaders who founded this and similar institutions for the public welfare.

One would like to look into the future and survey the next century of life for this young and lusty centenarian. If the deposit of $200 made by Dorcas Mansfield in 1824 were still on the books, it would amount to considerably over $20,000 today. If the sum now on deposit were to remain for a century at the present dividend rate, it would amount to about one billion dollars. Compound interest is a little giant, who makes or mars the fortunes of most people. The tremendous possibilities for good of such institutions as The Norwich Savings Society have not diminished with years. The responsibilities of the trust are accumulating and will continue to do so. Money if one examines its origin, is simply a claim to capital; and capital is the stored up product of labor. As a man works and saves the product of his labor, the time when he cannot work, he insures himself and his household against dependency and humiliation. He makes sure of continuous self-respect and of all the blessings that go with the full development of his personality. Hail, to the depositors of the next Century!

Distribution of Applications.

One form of application will be used for all services and these applications will be distributed throughout the country through the post offices, the American Red Cross, the American Legion and other service societies.

The scene in the senate as the vote came was unusual. The galleries were crowded and many members of the house and others had places on the floor. With the announcement of the vote, which ended a five year's fight for a bonus, the spectators broke into applause. President Cummins threatened to have the galleries cleared, but scarcely had the demonstration gotten under way before a number of democratic senators joined in the applause.

Both opponents and proponents had marshalled as many of their forces as possible. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, returned to the senate to vote against the president after an absence of many weeks because of illness. Senator Greene, republican, Vermont, likewise was present for the first time since he was shot down in a battle between bootleggers and prohibition officers on Pennsylvania avenue more than three months ago. He voted to sustain the veto.

With most of the members in their seats, the bonus bill was called up at the close of the "morning hour," at 2 p. m. The first procedure was formal reading of the president's veto message. While this was in progress senators gathered in groups for conferences and decision then had been made to have an immediate vote.

Upon the conclusion of the reading, Senator Curtis said he believed the minds of senators had been made up and that debate was useless. Senator Robinson concurred and senators demanded a vote, but Senator Neely, democrat, West Virginia, took the floor to call attention to a publication that there were 10 senators whose attitude should be watched by proponents of the bill. He declared this to be a slander on the manhood of the senate.

Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, one of the 10 senators named in the publication said the best answer was to vote, which the senate then proceeded to do.

The bonus bill that became a law is one of two hundred offered in congress since the first effort for their legislation was entered in 1919. It differs materially from the original proposals which were for cash payments. However it is not materially different from the bill which President Harding vetoed in 1922. The senate at that time sustained his veto after the house had voted overwhelmingly in favor of repassage.

Provisions of the Bonus.

It is estimated that 3,083,282 veterans will be entitled to the insurance policies provided by the soldier bonus bill enacted into law today while 389,583 will be paid cash of $50 or less. The bill also provides for payment to dependents of deceased veterans of the amount of adjusted service compensation to which they would have been entitled.

Adjusted service compensation is figured on the basis of $1 a day for home service and a dollar and twenty-five cents a day for overseas service. The first 60 days cannot be counted. Also a maximum of 500 days would be allowed.

All veterans up to and including the rank of captain in the army and marine corps and lieutenant in the navy are eligible for the bonus.

It is estimated that the average insurance policy would be valued at $962 while the maximum value of the policies would be about $1,060 for overseas service and $1,500 for home service.

The value of the policy would be the equivalent of the amount which the adjusted service credit plus 25 per cent would purchase at regular insurance prices based on 4 per cent interest compounded annually. To determine the latter computation a table of factors has been compiled by experts. Multiplication of the proper factor by the amount of adjusted service compensation due the veteran plus 25 per cent would give the face value of the insurance certificate. Each certificate would vary according to the length of service of the veteran and his age at the date of issuance of the policy. Their policies would be dated next January 1.

MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION BY LEGION COMMANDER

Indianapolis, May 19—John R. Quinn national commander of the American legion in a statement issued here today on the passage of the bonus over the president's veto declared that "justice has at last been done the veterans."

"After five years of effort during which the American people have been wholeheartedly with us," said Commander Quinn, "justice has at last been done the veterans. We do not stop to gloat in triumph for great work remains for the legion to do. Work which makes the legion the greatest constructive force for good in America today.

"We shall continue to care for and to guard the interests of our disabled buddies, we shall continue to provide for the helpless children of our comrades who fell on the field of battle. We shall preach Americanism and try in every way to show that our slogan —'The American Legion is an institution of service'—is not an idle boast.

"We heartily thank those representatives in congress, who have stood behind us in our long fight to obtain those things justly due us."

MAN KILLED, 15 INJURED BY EXPLOSION IN SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., May 19—One man was killed and at least 15 injured, one of them seriously, when a japanning and enamelling oven on the top floor of the eight story L. C. Smith Typewriter plant here exploded late today.

The dead man is Christian Petersen of this city, who was about to light the gas burners under one of the five ovens on the east end of the floor. He was blown into the air and hurled through a window about 200 feet to the roof a dwelling near the factory.

The workman most seriously injured was Fred Bauer, also of Syracuse, who was rushed to a hospital, but whose condition is not critical. Edward Burritt, another workman, suffered severe shock. Other employes who were injured were treated in the factory first aid room.

None of the 30 employes who were on the top floor of the structure could assign a cause for the explosion and officials were at loss for an explanation. All of the ovens had received their daily inspection, it was said. Damage to the plant and equipment was estimated at several thousand dollars.

A general alarm sounded after the explosion brought out all valiable apparatus in the central section of the city, but no fire broke out. Police reserves ordered residents of nearby houses to the street, fearful that weakened factory walls might collapse.

The force of the explosion tore a large hole out of the east end of the roof of the building, and also tore away a gaping hole 14 feet square on one side. Bricks and wood from this portion of the wall were blown on the roofs of houses across the street. A mass of debris fell to the street, wrecked an automobile standing at the curb and blocking main line tracks of the New York Central Railroad for over an hour.

Countless stories of narrow escapes from death were told by workmen who had been near the oven room on the top floor of the plant.

HIGH PRICE FOR SILVER BULLION IN NEW YORK MARKET

New York, May 19.—Silver bullion sold in the domestic market today at a record high price for the year of 66 cents an ounce. The quotation represented a gain of 3-8 cents for the day, an advance of 2 cents within the month and almost four cents from the 1924 low figure.

Heavy continental buying and prospects that China shortly would enter the local market for bullion contributed to the rise in prices. The market's strength over the past several months was attributed by bullion dealers partly to the terms of the Pittman act, calling for the purchase by the treasury of 14,589,730 ounces of domestic silver at $1 an ounce.

8-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNED IN HOUSATONIC RIVER

Stratford, Conn., May 19.—Nelli Sherry, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sherry, of 485 Laughlin road, Stratford, was drowned in the Housatonic river near its mouth this afternoon when he fell off the foundation of the old bridge. The child and his younger brother were playing on the rocks when he slipped and fell in.

The police and two nearby workmen were summoned by the cries of the two children and arrived in time to see the boy sinking for the second time. One of the men jumped in, fully dressed, but the stiff current carried the boy out of his reach. The body was pulled out several hours later by the grapple hooks in the hands of the police and other searchers.

TO ATTACH BEER RIDER TO FARM RELIEF BILL

Washington, May 19—An effort will be made by Representative Black, democrat, New York, to attach a rider to the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which would legalize beer and hard cider.

Announcing his intention today to offer such a proposal, Mr. Black declared that "a large part of the business depression, particularly the agricultural business, is due to the Volstead act," which he added "destroys partly the market for grain, barley, hops and cider apples, and so affects the farmers."

Contest in House on Railroad Labor Board

Democratic-Republican Insurgent Coalition Making Determined Fight to Eliminate the Board.

Washington, May 19.—Engaged in a see-saw fight which had all the marks of a filibuster, the house went into session tonight with democratic-republican insurgent coalition supporting the Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board determined to press the measure to a vote before adjournment.

At the outset of today's session friends of the bill demonstrated by a margin of more than 20 votes that they held the whip hand as they did two weeks ago when the measure was taken from the commerce committee on the ground that no action on it could be obtained there.

Doggedly keeping up their fight on the measure, republican organization leaders late in the day corralled enough votes to adopt a motion to strike out the enacting clause—an action which would have the effect of killing the bill.

Representative Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, author of the proposal thereupon demanded a roll call vote on the question, but foes of the bill succeeded in postponing a show-down as hour after hour was consumed in roll calls on various motions and debate. Repeatedly the house refused to adjourn, repeatedly the roll call was called to round up a quorum, and as friends of the bill awaited their opportunity to reinsert the enacting clause they voted down a motion by Representative Longworth, the republican leader, to recommit the bill without instructions to the commerce committee.

The coalition which two weeks ago by petition took the bill from the commerce committee lost control of the situation long enough today for opponents to put through a motion to strike out the enacting clause, an action which would have the effect of killing the measure.

Representative Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, author of the measure, demanded another vote, but before it was taken four hours were consumed with a variety of roll calls forced by opponents.

In the end friends of the bill succeeded in restoring the enacting clause by a vote of 188 to 160.

Mr. Barkley before proposing adjournment told the house it was apparent a final vote tonight was out of the question. He indicated he would attempt to call up the measure again on Monday, June 2. Mr. Barkley charged that opponents of the measure not only were determined that it should not pass but were denying it "decent consideration."

Foes of the proposal declared that if it is called up again they will seek to stave off a vote by offering a flood of amendment.

Adding the republican organization in its 20 hour fight against the bill today, Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, forced roll call after roll call during the night session, by insisting on a quorum.

Adjournment was not taken until after 10 o'clock tonight.

PEDESTRIAN WESTON, 86, TO HIT THE TRAIL AGAIN

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 19.—Edward Payson Weston, famous pedestrian, fearing a repetition of the attack made upon him last Monday night, is making preparations to leave his home at Plutarch, Ulster county, and to "hit the trail" again, it was learned here today. He plans now to see how near he can come to a record made when he was 46 years old when he walked 120 miles in 24 hours.

The 86-year-old athlete says he believes he can do one-third of that distance in the same time now.

Abandoned Auto Figures in Mystery

New York, May 19.—An automobile abandoned today in front of the Commodore hotel, near Grand Central Station, is believed by the police to offer a clue to the disappearance of Herbert G. Wadhams of Middletown, Conn., last Saturday.

The automobile was identified as Wadhams' by the number plate. A check book and checks in the car bore his name.

Police were attempting tonight to connect the finding of the car with the discovery of the body of a man, about Wadhams' age and appearance, in the woods near Washington, Conn., yesterday. A card bearing the name John Sulizer was found on the body.

Wadhams was last heard from when he telephoned his wife last Saturday that he was taking two young men from Middletown to Saybrook, Conn., in his automobile.

PHOTOGRAPHS TRANSMITTED OVER TELEPHONE LINES

New York, May 19.—Transmission of photographs from Cleveland to New York city over long distance telephone lines was accomplished today in a demonstration by laboratory experts of the American Telephone & Telegraph company.

The method, achieved after several years' work, was described by officials of the company as a "simple, rapid and accurate picture transmitting system." It will be installed on the company's various long distance lines, it was announced.

Cleveland was selected as the place for transmitting station so that pictures taken at the republican national convention might be transmitted to New York within a few minutes. Actual transmissions today showed that photographs could be transmitted to New York and made ready for producing newspaper plates within ten minutes from th time the original photograph was placed on the transmitting machine.

A photograph of a group of newspaper men taken in the Cleveland laboratory today was transmitted to New York in four and one-half minutes, exluding the time required in developing the original in Cleveland and the few minutes required in developing the print in New York.

The pictures transmitted today were five inches by seven inches in size. Messages in handwriting also were transmitted, the copy received being a facsimile of the original message.

MAINTAINS INDICTMENT OF WHEELER JUSTIFIED

Washington, May 19.—The indictment of Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, by a federal grand jury in his own state was justified by the evidence, Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, a member of the special senate investigating committee, asserted in a minority report read today to the senate.

Declaring that the guilt or innocence of the prosecutor of the Daugherty committee was a question solely for the courts to determine, Senator Sterling said, his report was limited to the question of justification. He added that Senator Wheeler's charge that the indictment was the result of a "frame-up" by his political enemies had failed "entirely of proof."

The reading of the report brought sharp replies from both Chairman Borah and Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, of the investigating committee. Senator Borah said that when more time was available he would review the evidence in detail, and will then disclose that Mr. Wheeler never at any time violated the letter or spirit of the law."

MORSE SHIPYARD AT NOANK TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE; LOSS $150,000

Fire Believed to Have Started From a Cigarette Dropped Into a Pile of Shavings—Yards Built 70 Years Ago, Had Been Engaged in Repair Work.

Noank, Conn., May 19—Fire believed to have started from a cigarette carelessly dropped into a pile of shavings, totally destroyed the shipyard of the Charles W. Morse interests here today at a loss of approximately $150,000.

The spread of the flames was rapid and fanned by a westerly wind, enveloped the entire properties of the company within an hour despite the efforts of pumping engines from surrounding towns and from Westerly, R. I., to throw streams upon the flames. Low tide seriously hampered the operations of the apparatus and there was little force to the pumps. Five fire boats from the Merritt-Chapman and Scott corporation came to the assistance of the pumping engines but were unable to do more than assist in saving the fleet of menhaden steamers and a fleet of small pleasure craft tied up at the wharf.

The government tug General Richard Arnold was badly burned before she could be got off the ways into the water. The entire super-structure was burned from beneath her and the tug's pilot house was a mass of flames when she slipped into the stream.

Two wooden hulls of the Ferris type owned by the Emergency Fleet corporation were totally destroyed at the outset of the fire which wrecked the eight ways in the yard and a third hull of the same construction was saved. Fire building used in ship construction and two houses also fell victims to the flames but the machine shop and galvanizing shop were saved.

Telephone cables suffered from the fire and temporarily crippled the service which was later repaired by workmen.

The shipyard rendered valuable service to the government, in building ships during the war. The boats of the Ferris type, of 3,500 tons, sometimes used as food transports, were mostly turned out.

Harry F. Morse, general manager of the yard, tonight stated that the yard had been engaged in repair work for the most part and that with the railroad in fairly good shape and with the machinery in the repair shop only slightly damaged, the yard will resume work as speedily as possible. There were no large construction contracts at hand at the time of the fire. The yards were built about 70 years ago.

STUPENDOUS TASK IMPOSED BY THE SOLDIER BONUS LAW

Individual War Histories of More Than 6,893,000 Men Must Be Examined Before Bonus Payments of Any Kind Can Be Made — 167,000,000 Separate Documents Must Be Handled, Many of Them Several Times—With an Output of 30,000 Certificates a Day, as Estimated by General Davis, the Clerical Work Will Consume Nine Months—Work in the War Department Alone Will Require 2,800 Clerks.

Washington, May 19.—(By The A. P.)—Enactment of the war veteran bonus bill into law has laid upon the shoulders of the government departments an administrative task so huge that the figures involved stagger the imagination.

They must explore a veritable mountain of war records. From that mass of musty documents they must pick out the individual war histories of more than 6,893,000 men to provide the data upon which alone bonus payments of any kind can be made.

The daily service of every soldier, sailor or marine who served under the flag in the Great War at home or abroad, is subject now to minute examination. Through his days of sickness and health of training at home or battle abroad, the searchers must follow each man through the wilderness of official records. And the bulk of the task must be done in the close packed filing cases of the war department where the intimate official story of America at war alone is told.

In those records alone are more than 167,000,000 separate documents, each of which it may be necessary to handle many times before the veterans can all be assured of bonus payments. It will require 27 separate checking operations to make the examination of the files and it will take 2,800 clerks to do the work in the war department alone.

There are amazing stories by the hundreds of thousands among these individual war records. There are tales of highest heroism, of great adventure; tales, too, rich in pathos and sacrifice. They are the war story of each one of the millions of men gathered into the vast volume of the files that must now be opened for perusal. Among them are the brief records of the many who were called for service but to whom death came in the hospitals almost before they had taken their soldier oaths.

And among them also, never to be recognized for what it is, lies the brief story of America's Unknown Soldier, the record that would show, if it were in the power of man to pick it out, who he was and where he fought and how he died.

Army's Share in the Task.

By comparison the army's share in the task of record searching overshadows the work that must be also done by the navy and marine corps to carry out the will of congress. In the army files are the records of 5,250,000 men who may make claim. Each must be examined as to the soldier's record before it can be passed upon. In the navy files are the records of 551,736 enlisted men and of 11,850 women who served in the rank of "yeoman-F." In the marine corps there are some 80,000 records to be combed out.

The war department files are located here in Washington. They are crowded into the three floors of the historic old arsenal at Washington Barracks, scene of many historic events. It was there that the conspirators were tried for the assassination of President Lincoln and close by is the spot where some of them paid the penalty with their lives.

The documents, grouped in their enveloped jackets, are now set in soldierly ranks in 7,066 steel filing cases that placed end to end would cover more than five miles. They occupy 2.36 acres of floor space and they weigh 1,080 tons and would fill 54 freight cars.

The very compactness of the files adds to the task of ascertaining the individual stories they tell. It is physically impossible to employ more clerks than the 2,800 who will be put to work about them. During the war the draft operations were far greater in scope because they dealt with men by the tens of millions. But that work was decentralized over the entire country and endless clerical help could be used. Now, the product of the draft in fighting manhood alone is to be dealt with, but that record is all here in the crowding file cases.

Work Going On Two Years.

The war department, and in co-operation with it, the other two military services, beyan preparatory work more than two years ago to make ready for the day when bonus legislation might be enacted. At that time Colonel Robert C. Davis, then commanding a regiment of infantry at Plattsburg, N. Y., barracks, was summoned to Washington to begin a study that has resulted in the completion of plans for the gigantic clerical machinery it now becomes his duty to set in motion as he is now adjutant general of the army.

The youngest of American major generals, General Davis served in France as adjutant general of the American Expeditionary Forces. In that capacity he conceived and created the Central War Records Office of the American land forces in France, an agency unequaled by the allied armies. He began that work with himself and one clerk as the personnel of what ultimately reached a peak of 7,000 clerks, aside from the many officers it required.

It was against that background of experience that General Davis visualized the task before him in Washington. He saw at once that there were three main elements in the war records of the army, the overseas record, the war department original records, and the records of the embarkation service. He began his work by calling to his aid the officers who during the war had the greatest knowledge of each of these groups of records and it is with the aid of that staff of less than a score of tried and experienced "two-fisted" men that the plans were shaped in readiness for the bonus bill.

Myriad of Complications.

Some idea of the complications that must be met may be gained from the fact that the army files contain the records of 50,328 Smiths who served during the war; 40,101 Johnsons; 28,902 Browns and 27,938 men named Williams. In countless cases initials and even the first and second names are identical, yet the records must separate them one from the other and to each give his proportionate benefit computed on the actual service he rendered in the war.

Another complication foreseen lies in the fact that 23 per cent of all these 5,000,00 potential claimants can not read nor write the English language. A corps of interpreters, having among them knowledge of almost every tongue, must be included in the great office force to deal with the analysis of the records.

The starting point for every veteran in seeking compensation must be the filing of an application blanks already printed. It is here that General Davis fears there may be delay and to erduce that danger as much as possible, he has not only revised the form time and again to reduce it to the simplest possible terms, but has called to his aid the American Legion patriotic organizations and every ramifying agency of the federal government over the country to distribute the blanks and to help the veterans fill them in.

No Fees For Collection.

"Do not pay fees other than a notary charge," runs the language of an emphatic notice which will be circulated everywhere. "The law prohibits any person from charging a fee for assistance in the collection of the compensation."

Legion posts everywhere have agreed to serve not only Legion members but all war veterans in filling out the blanks. In the same way every army post or detachment, every national guard center, and every official of the federal government of whatever kind will give the voluntary aid to the veterans as they need it.

General Davis has laid down one other rigid rule. Applications for blanks will not be received by the war department directly from the veterans. There will be no necessity for that as the blanks and the envelops in which to mail them will be made available everywhere and correspondence direct with the department would crush it under the load of clerical work before it could even begin on its real task.

Applications Will Move Orderly.

When the applications are received they will go into a "receiving station" and notice will go back to the applicant that his case is in hand. From then on the applications will move in orderly way through the ramifications of the files to be checked and rechecked time and again.

There will be reference wherever necessary to the muster rolls of regiments and even small detachments and there will be comparison of finger prints to insure identification. The applications which can be checked in the regular way will move directly through the main channels of the files. Where difficulties are encountered, however, the troublesome application will be promptly side-tracked to a "trouble clerk" for special treatment and in order that there may be no delay and congestion in the main traffic.

Vast Clerical Labor.

General Davis estimates that with the system he has mapped out it will be possible to attain an average output of 30,000 certificates, checked and delivered to the Veterans' Bureau every day for six days of every week which means about nine months of work. In order to reach that average, however, the system devised has been made sufficiently flexible to reach a daily total output of 70,000 certificates as a peak load in the full stress of the work.

The product of all this vast clerical labor will be the typed certificates forwarded to the Veterans' Bureau containing the records of each man's service and the computation of the exact amount of compensation to which he is entitled under the law. It is from the war department, navy and marine corps certificates that the checks for cash payments and the insurance policies will be filled out by the Veterans' Bureau and mailed to applicants.

After warning Rousseau that in the future he was to keep away from the Belanger home where his wife and child are making their home, Judge Frank H. Kelly suspended sentence in the case. The defendant was represented by Attorney Thacher. Belanger, who is Rousseau's brother-in-law, testified that the accused came to his home on Sunday evening while his wife and Mrs. Rousseau were out. Rousseau asked for his clothes which were stored at the house and when the plaintiff reached down into a box to secure them, Rousseau struck him on the face. Belanger rushed out into the yard and Rousseau left the place after making threatening remarks. Belanger called the police and Rousseau was placed under arrest. Rousseau testified in his own behalf, stating that he was the one struck first and that Belanger attempted to use a knife on him. Prosecuting Attorney E. B. Harvey argued strongly for conviction on the grounds that there was of a troublesome nature and one which had been before the court on similar charges previously. Wallace said that he earned $18 a week and paid $8 for his board and lodging each week. He claimed that he had asked his wife to come to Norwich to live with him but she contended that she had refused this offer because she knew that he would not do the right thing by her. A sentence of six months in jail with the alternative that the accused furnish a bond to give $5 a week for the support of his wife and child during that period, was imposed by the court.

Enormous Yearly Rainfall

Rainfall is usually recorded in inches and fractions of an inch. One expert, however, declares that weather bulletins would be more graphic if the amount of rainfall were expressed in miles and tons. Thus, instead of having the official statement of the rainfall in one state for a certain year read, say, "forty inches," this expert would change it to read "forty-three and nine-tenths cubic miles." He has calculated that the rainfall in one year throughout the United States amounted to 1,296.4 cubic miles of water, and that the annual rainfall weighs about 6,000,000,000,000 tons. Only a small part of that vast amount reaches the sea through rivers and streams; most of it is evaporated from the land.

An automobile owned and driven by Louis Viscovi, 65 Pequot avenue was in collision last night on Huntington street, near Pierce street, with a milk wagon owned and driven by David Copeland, of Cohanzie. Viscovi lodged a complaint against Copeland because the latter did not have a lantern displayed upon the horse-drawn vehicle. Later the complaint was withdrawn after Copeland had been ordered to appear in the police court, because Copeland's son stated that his father was not mentally sound and that the son would defray the cost of any repairs made necessary to Viscovi's auto as a result of the collision.

Frank Utz and Alec Chabinski, both of Montville, were before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy in Montville this forenoon, charged with assault and battery. Their cases were continued a week at the request of counsel for the accused. Utz and Chabinski were arrested late Sunday afternoon by State Policemen Finnegan and Dooley, of the Groton barracks.

At a meeting of the board of selectmen, Lawrence S. M. Cook, William L. White and George Goss, held Saturday night, Almarin T. Hale was elected republican registrar of voters to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Frank Q. Cronin. Mr. Hale was executive secretary during the administration of former Mayor E. Frank Morgan.

Harry L. Eaton, 150 Montauk avenue, was before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this morning charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Eaton drew a heavy penalty, a fine of $150 and a sentence of six months in jail, which was suspended. It was revealed to the court that Eaton had once before been convicted of the same charge. Eaton was arrested by State Policeman Anderson of the Groton barracks when the officer detected Eaton operating a Maxwell touring car on the state road in Groton the machine being handled in a reckless manner.

Pasquale Compogna, 5 Denison avenue, was fined $25 and costs upon being convicted of the charge of speeding and reckless driving. The accused was arrested the 3rd inst., when a state policeman observed Compogna operating his car on Thames street at an estimated speed of 40 miles an hour.

Three more automobilists who refused to heed the warning that traffic ordinances would be enforced, will appear in the police court tomorrow morning. The offenses were detected parking their machines on State street longer than the half hour permitted and were warned into court by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan. They are, Mrs. J. S. Cosulick, Saybrook; Chilton R. Chabot, Montville, and Edith M. Schley, Old Lyme.

An effort is being made by the committee in charge of the Memorial Day parade to induce the war department to cause a battleship, or cruiser, to be sent to this port that day and to have a detachment of bluejackets appear in the line of paraders other than the sailors from the submarine base. With the U. S. S. Camden and U. S. S. Savanah in port and likely to remain here until after the holiday, it is possible that the parade will include the largest number of uniformed marchers on any Memorial Day except those during the war.

Another break apparently of the type perpetrated by youths, was discovered this morning, when the establishment of the R. & J. Waist company, located in the Armstrong block, Bank street, was opened for business. The police were notified and an investigation by Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels showed that the thieves gained access to the place by ascending the elevator shaft to the third floor where the Waist manufactory is located. A search for plunder was made, but so far as the proprietor, Richard Hendel, could determine, there was nothing missing other than two checks, which could not be negotiated, 75 cents and a bunch of keys.

The police were requested today to institute a search for George Harry Leach, a youth residing in Attleboro, Mass., who had run away from home and was supposed to be in this city. The boy's mother had been taken ill since the disappearance of her son and his absence was causing her much worry. It was found that the youth had been located in New Haven and was being returned to his home.

If an average family of five persons bought only Swift & Company meats for one week during 1923, that family would have paid the company, as profit, less than 5 cents on the week's supply.

These figures are developed by considering U. S. Government statistics on meat consumption in relation to Swift & Company's profit.

By the intelligent use of capital, Swift & Company prepares meats in a modern, sanitary, scientifically-clean manner.

By intensive organization, Swift & Company distributes every variety of meat, under complete refrigeration, to retail markets of great cities and small hamlets—wherever they may be located.

It is only through the most efficient methods that a company can supply the meat requirements of a family of five persons, anywhere in this country, for a period of seven days, at a profit of only 5 cents.

Swift & Company's profit from all sources in 1923 averaged only a fraction of a cent per pound on all products sold.

Ornaments to Conservatory.

It is rare to walk through a greenhouse without seeing one or more specimens of the curious plant, the cactus. The plant's grotesque and peculiar appearance furnishes an oddity that is welcomed in almost any conservatory. The night-blooming cereus is the most gorgeous of any. It blooms only one night, but while it is open it is almost unrivaled in its magnificent form, lovely colors and the beauty of its stamens, as well as its great fragrance.

A Few Things B. F. Did.

THE NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY

A century of service is something to be proud of. Age brings veneration but when it is an institution that is involved and that institution has been working consistently and persistently for community good, year in and year out, it awakens an admiration and appreciation that are sincere and widespread. Such must be accorded the Norwich Savings society.

Just how many have reason to be thankful or have expressed thanks for the aid that has been received from this old and substantial banking house there is no way of telling, but the number is great. Established in the days when there was but one other in the state, it has served through days of peace and war, through good times and hard times, through periods of stagnation and periods of progress and because of the foundation on which it was built, the purpose for which it was intended and the manner in which its service has been rendered it has grown steadily in strength and correspondingly so in confidence of the people of Norwich and this end of Connecticut.

One of the greatest needs today, even as it was a century ago, is an institution that will encourage and assist the people to save. How admirably the Norwich Savings society has lived up to its object is revealed in the fact that it is today the fourth largest in the state, and age has only served to increase and extend its service.

Men of prominence sound business judgment, far-seeing, conservative have been identified with the active and advisory guidance of this institution in the years that have passed since its incorporation. They have adhered faithfully to the responsibilities involved. They have met the trust unflinchingly and it is because of it that this institution stands as the rock of Gibraltar in banking circles. Its influence has been constant throughout the years and its benefits immeasurable.

The service that it has rendered during the past century is only indicative of what it stands ready to do during the next. It is one of those invaluable assets to the community that serves as a constant inspiration and help. Norwich owes much to those who conceived it, those who established it and those who have contributed their untiring efforts to its successful maintenance and record.

CONNECTICUT MISREPRESENTED

Great is the disappointment that has been caused by the action of the senate in overriding the veto of the bonus bill, and all the greater is it to Connecticut because both of its senators are numbered among those responsible for this action. Connecticut has reason to feel that it has been misrepresented in the upper house of congress, that personal political pledges have been permitted to prevail over what is believed to be the recognized attitude of the state concerning the bonus.

In the house the four republican members from this state heard and respected the sentiment of Connecticut and they are deserving of much credit for the manner in which they responded to their duty, maintained a consistent opposition to an unjustified raid upon the federal treasury and stood by the administrations of President Harding and President Coolidge for a decreasing of the federal indebtedness and taxation rather than an increase.

The vote on the veto of the bonus was been regarded as a test of the republican support of the president. While state after state has been giving endorsement to his policies, which policies have been consistently reflected in his vetoing of the bonus bill, there have been those in the senate who have been endeavoring to throw every obstacle possible in his way, and it is to the great regret of Connecticut that it finds them joined by Senators Brandegee and McLean under the plea that personal political promises made it impossible for them to stand up for needed national welfare. New England senators did their utmost to override the Bursum bill veto and they with the solid senatorial vote of Connecticut succeeded in accomplishing it on the bonus measure. This is a failure to sustain the administration which cannot be charged to the radicals. It was a case where republicans who could have prevented it joined hands with the democrats and the radicals in defying the administration and the country.

CAPSIZED CANOES.

The season has opened and along with the many fatalities on land there will be enough, if not as many, needless deaths on the water during the next few months. The danger that confronts those who ride in automobiles, because of the disregard for their safety by the driver of that car or the drivers of others, is much the same as that which is faced by those who seek pleasure in a canoe.

What is claimed to be a treacherous spot in the Hudson river at New York was the scene of a triple drowning Sunday when a young man and two girls were thrown overboard from a canoe. It was the same spot where three boys were drowned a week previous, and it is the place where others may lose their lives if they are willing to take similar chances under the same conditions.

That particular region of the river may be especially dangerous. It may be a place of squalls, deep and choppy water but that very fact is enough to observe the proper safeguards. Those who insist upon trusting their lives to cockleshells, in spite of the fate of others, and without knowing how to swim are simply inviting untimely ends.

Delightful as it may be to paddle in a canoe, on water that is smooth or rough it is folly to disregard the danger that is involved. It is difficult to believe that those who are drowned in canoeing accidents are those who have stepped into such easily unbalanced boats for the first time. Rather is it probable that they consider themselves thoroughly acquainted with that type of craft, to such an extent that they never anticipate danger, and somehow figure that even though others have lost their lives because of them they somehow are immune to any harm therefrom.

It is this false sense of security, this failure to sense the danger and to avoid it therefrom.

It is this false sense of security, this failure to sense the danger and to profit from the fate of others, that is responsible for the large number of needless deaths that figure in the news while the canoeing season lasts. It is not the only way in which such deaths occur but it helps to bring the number to unwarranted figures.

FIGHTING DELAY.

The demand which has been made upon Senator Lodge and the foreign relations committee by a group of republicans and democrats for action at this session of congress on the entrance of the United States into the world court is not likely to get any more attention that the resolution referred to the same committee concerning this very action at the opening of congress.

Senator Lodge has produced a plan of his own for a world court, which he may not really believe will be accepted, but which he hopes will serve to prevent any action at all upon the world court proposition. His plan appears to be one of obstruction and the new demand cannot be permitted to interfere with that.

The Lodge plan runs counter to the recommendation which has been made by the president. It would require a long period of time in order to carry out the necessary details of interesting countries in throwing up the barriers to world court and considering one in which this country [illegible] the World court [illegible] that it [illegible] the terms of the administration [illegible] is the did Woodrow Wilson [illegible] in regard to the league [illegible] As to that there is no certainty but it is evident that he is planning for delay in bringing up the [illegible] before the senate. WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, May 19.—Congressman Tilson of Connecticut, a congressional leader of much influence, is urging congress to stand by the president in the tax bill. He will sustain a presidential veto if it is along expected lines, and he is urging others to hold up the hands of the party leader. Tilson has made a strong record the past winter as a leader on the ways and means committee and one of the men whom the president can rely on to sustain the administration. Connecticut has fortunately been free from scandals, untoward influences and scatter brain methods and its delegation has sustained the faith of the districts that sent it.

Tilson cited some of the objections to the tax bill as passed by the senate, naming first of all the "publicity" feature, which would allow any person to inspect income returns and which would have a pernicious effect on the business world, as any one can see.

Tilson remarked that such a course would open up hundreds of "smelling committees" from senate and house that would greatly interfere with not only the business of the country but with the business of congress also. Congress hasn't the time to function in its own capacity if its time is taken up by affairs that belong to courts, Congressman Tilson also strongly disapproves of the increase in inheritance taxes "because it takes money that belongs to states and brings it to Washington."

Said Col. Tilson in closing an interview, "The house or Longworth bill would produce a deficit of $200,000,000, the senate bill would double that deficit; neither is a tax reduction measure.

"I do not see how the president can sign any bill which can come from the conference. If he vetoes it, requires congress to order a 25 per cent. reduction in all income taxes for 1923 and takes the Mellon plan to the country he will obtain a sweeping endorsement."

Washington is curious to see how Hiram Johnson will "behave" at the Cleveland convention. He cannot win the nomination for himself, but he has it in his power to make a lot of trouble for the other fellow.

Predictions here point to the non-interference of Johnson at Cleveland but that he will hide his time and come into the lime light when the democrats have made their nominations and the insurgent element of the republican party is making up its mind what to do.

Will Johnson join with La Follette in a third party move? Will he lead the band of insurgents down the democratic path? Will he join hands with the farm laborites? Will he sulk in his tent, or prove a good loser and help the regulars win the election? All these possibilities are topics of the day in Washington.

There will be a farm-labor convention at St. Paul in June. Whether it will be a serious matter or a flash in the pan is not yet indicated.

There will be a convention of the La Follette forces in June. But no matter what is said or written to the contrary, Bob La Follette is a very sick man, and as utterly incapable physically of assuming the duties of the presidency, as would be an infant in arms. He has attended but few sessions of the senate the past year; he has spent much time in hospitals, he has had severe illnesses, pneumonia, being the most recent; he has undergone several severe operations in the past few years, and though apparently unimpaired mentally by these series of illnesses, his physical condition is what might be expected of a man well along in years who "has been through" what Bob La Follette has the past five years. But La Follette is the insurgent leader in congress just the same, either in person or through his trusted henchmen.

Then, too, there is to be a convention, or meeting of the so-called committee of 48 which represented all shades of radicalism from deep pink to violent red. Will Johnson or La Follette take part in that?

But whatever part those two disappointed, eloquent, forceful insurgent leaders play in the political drama this fall, it is pretty certain to be one that will tend to disrupt the republican party, to a greater or less extent. Whether they steer their course towards still greater insurgency from the "regulars" or openly steer their course towards the democrats, as they, or rather the La Follette group has done throughout the first session of the 68th congress.

What will happen if the presidential election is thrown to congress cannot be forecasted even by political experts. Would be a coalition vote of some sort, but which party would be the winner is not easy to foresee.

Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the republican national committee predicts the convention will adjourn four days after it has been called to order. And some people say it is because no party would have the hardihood to face the Friday ill luck superstition by nominating a president or vice president on a Friday. The convention opens in Cleveland on Monday, June 9th — so carrying it along too far would bring it the double hoodoo of Friday the 13th. Not to be considered under any circumstance, say a lot of men. Rabbit foot, Virginia fairy stones, jade elephants and every other kind of a ward-off of ill luck might be in evidence, but all the same no one believes a president nominated on Friday, the 13th, would not shake in his shoes, no matter how brave a front he maintained in the face of people.

When Harding was inaugurated the flag on the capitol was flying at half mast in respect to the late speaker of the house, Champ Clark, whose death had occurred a few hours before. Just as the president was about to take his oath a member of the press gallery discovered that the flag had not been changed and rushed to the superintendent of the building, urging it be raised to the topmost point of the staff during the ceremony. The superintendent smiled—then consented—and the stars and stripes were soon floating at full mast. "A close call," said a superstitious bystander. "Too close," said a newspaper man the other day in recalling the circumstance, "if superstition is to hold sway. Both President Harding and the then superintendent of the capitol, Elliott Wood, died before the presidential term was more than half completed." So whether it will be a single ballot that elects Mr. Coolidge at the convention, or whether Friday, the 13th, is a combination that even

A MERE DETAIL

"I think it's no end exciting, having calls and everything," cried the bride as she settled her caller in the new overstuffed chair. "Now, of course, being one of mother's best friends, you have been at our house a lot, but you can't imagine what a thrill it gives me to think that you have come to see me!"

"I am glad to give anybody a thrill," laughed the caller. "And I can appreciate exactly how you feel. I remember how excited I was on my first 'at home' day when people dropped in to see me as if it were a matter of course. It did not seem possible that it was my house and that everybody was coming just to see me and nobody else."

"I am going to get you to write in my guest book," cried the bride, excitedly. "My very first caller and one of mother's best friends. I shall feel highly honored if you'll write your name there in big letters. And to think I was so afraid nobody would come! I am going to serve you a cup of tea in just a few minutes, with my tea wagon and the pink and white china and some of those little cakes Minnie told me how to make."

"That will be very nice," said the caller. "You will have plenty of practice before the season is over, because I know of a large number of persons who are coming to see you soon.

"I am so glad!" sighed the bride. "The girls gave me a recipe book in which they each wrote a recipe, you know, and there are eleven recipes there for small cakes and cookies and I am just crazy to try all of them."

"Do you like cooking?"

"The first few days I hated it," confessed the bride. "I had gone to a good cooking school, of course, and I worked in mother's kitchen for a whole winter, but somehow or other things never acted the way they have here in this apartment. As soon as I got here and wanted to have everything especially nice my cakes fell and my meat wouldn't get done and even the potatoes burned."

"Oh, my dear!" cried the caller. "We all know how that is! I very well remember the funny soup I turned out the first time I tried it. I thought I knew how to cook, but I had never tried soup, and I didn't know what was the matter with it. My husband tasted it and when I saw, by the expression of his face, that something was wrong, I cried and he comforted me by saying it was delicious soup—only it was powerful strong of water!"

"I'm particularly anxious to succeed as a cook," said the bride dolefully. "Because one of the girls said she knew I couldn't cook a thing eatable. You see, the girl herself can't cook and she wanted to feel that I couldn't, since I never have. Somehow a girl feels that it is a comfort to find others who can't do the things that she can't. You know what I mean."

"Exactly," said the caller, sympathetically. "How did you succeed with the pudding I gave you the rule for?"

"Oh, dear!" cried the bride. "That's one thing that went wrong at once. You see when I had it at your house that day it was so delicious everybody raved about it and I made up my mind it was exactly what Jimmy would love. So, one Sunday after I had learned to make a lot of really nice things, I invited Jimmy's parents and his aunt to dinner and I just laid myself out for them.

"The roast was perfect and the vegetables could not have been better, and they said the salad was a creation. Then, I am ashamed to confess, I served your pudding, and it was simply awful. They all took one taste of it and began to talk of everything under the sun, waiting until I tasted mine. It was something terrible and Jimmy had to run out to the drug store and get some ice cream."

"I'm so sorrow," said the caller. "Did you remember to chill it for an hour and have it stone cold?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," said the bride. "And I bought the best rice and the finest tapioca and the most expensive eggs to make it with. I was just as particular as could be to follow out every word of the directions you gave me."

"Probably it was my fault," said the caller modestly. "I may not have been explicit enough. Or perhaps it was the fault of the oven. Did you have the oven very hot before you put in the pudding?"

"Oh, gracious!" cried the bride faintly. "You served the pudding stone cold, you know and you never said a word in the rule about cooking it! I served it raw!"

Harriman's Many Arguments.

Edward H Harriman was one of six children and when he was born his father was a clergyman at Hempstead, Long Island, receiving a salary of $200 a year.

When the boy was three years old the family moved to Jersey City, N. J. He attended public school and was called "the worst little devil in his class, and always at the top of it." Later he attended the Trinity School in New York and had to rise early and return home late because of the long walk to and from the old Jersey City ferry.

When 14 he out-argued his father, became office boy for a New York stock exchange house, salary $5 a week, and gave his father his first year's earnings. When 22 he borrowed $3,000, bought a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, opened a third-floor stock brokerage office and paid off the loan within a year.

When 30, he bought a small Hudson River boat running between New York and Newburg, and sold it at a profit. Then he bought the money-losing Ontario & Southern Railroad, built it up and sold it. He bought extensively into an Illinois Central subsidiary. President Garfield was shot, the stock market had a "slump" and Harriman had to borrow heavily to save his investments. Later he purchased Illinois Central stock and, when 40, had control, and retired from business.

The general manager of the Illinois Central refused to respect his orders and Harriman had to spend three years in Chicago as railroad president. Later he dismissed the president.

The panic of 1893 wrecked the Union Pacific railroad. Harriman forced the reorganizers to let him join them, then became chairman of the executive committee, made the road a success, and added other railroads. Then came his losing contest for the Burlington, his sickness that cost him his fight for control of the Northern Pacific, and the dissolution of the Northern Securities Company, which gave him the control of the Great Northern Railroad, and his clash with the interstate commerce commission over his conduct of the Chicago & Alton.

And at the time of his death he owned and controlled more miles of railroad than any other man in the world, and was a multimillionaire.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Romantic has been the career and meteoric rise of John Gunn, who according to the cable dispatches is to be the new premier of South Australia. Mr. Gunn als still under forty years of age. He is the son of an Orkney Islander who emigrated to the goldfields of Victoria, where the son was born in 1885. The father died, leaving a widow and nine children. John, who had little education, began to work as a butcher's boy in his native place. Working at any job that came to hand he put in all of his spare time in reading and study. For several years his life was one of untold hardships. After reaching manhood he became a tea-packer, later a street-car driver, and at other times worked at whatever he could find to do. But force of character and personality told, and, by the time he had reached his thirtieth year, Mr. Gunn was already rising to the top in politics and public affairs in his home state.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

SEEING THE ANIMALS

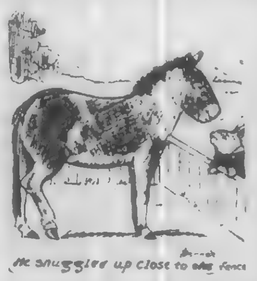
Now it's mighty good that Little Jack Rabbit didn't try to squeeze through the high wire fence I mentioned in the last story but instead looked up at a signboard on which was printed:

"Kiang; Tibetan Wild Donkey."

For the first thing he knew up rushed a wild long-eared horse, snorting and pawing the ground.

"He broke the limb off that tree," explained the elephant. "He's a wild thing, he is."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit snuggling up close to the fence. Then,



He snuggled up close to the fence

lying on his back, he waved his feet in the air. And what do you suppose that wild, long-eared horse did? You'e never guess unless I told you first. He snuggled up close to the fence, and turning over on his back, kicked up his heels and snorted like a steam engine.

Pretty soon when the funny old elephant tickled his nose, up jumped the wild donkey, and galloping along inside the fence, pawed the ground and reared up on his hind legs.

Goodness me!. It was just like the the circus. I guess a lot of little boys and girls who had followed Little Jack Rabbit thought so, too, for they jumped about and clapped their hands. But when they tried to catch the little rabbit he hopped here and there and everywhere till at last they gave it up.

Of course Photoprapher Crane had a dreadful hard time taking a picture for sometimes the big elephant would get in the way or the little rabbit get out of the way, or the wild, long-eared horse would turn his back. But after a while, the picture was taken and the camera folded up. Then the big elephant led the little rabbit into the tent where Mrs. Zebra and little Zebie lived. But, goodness gracious me! No sooner did Mr. Zebra see the bunny boy than he set up the most dreadful neighing and tried to break through the fence, acting in a worse manner than bad Kiang, the wild long-eared donkey.

So the big elephant led the little rabbit out of the tent.

"Now where shall we go?" asked the obliging circus elephant. "There are lions, bears and buffaloes. Over yonder is a big gray wolf. Do you want to see him?"

"I want to see something I've never seen before," answered the little rabbit. "My old enemy, Mr. Wicked Wolf lives in the Shady Forest. I dont want to see any wolves!"

"All right," answered the friendly elephant. "You come along with me and you shall see something you've never seen before."

"Up at the Zoo is the Kangaroo. And his every hop is a mile or two I think he could beat a motor car If they'd only let him go that far."

screeched the haughty peacock as the little rabbit hopped into tomorrow night's story with nice Photographer Crane and the kind-hearted elephant.

Stories That Recall Others

Not In His Province

He was interested in birds, snakes, strange beasts, bugs and plants, and many called to find out what various things were. A friend was apt to drop into his study for a chat and he did so on a warm afternoon, and not finding the "scientist" sat down in his chair and it was not long before he was nodding.

He was aroused by a voice which said: "What's this?"

His eyes opened lazily and then popped wide, for within three inches of his face was a snake's head, its eyes glittering evily, its forked tongue darting out. Another look and he saw the body of the snake wrapped about the man's arm.

"I caught this snake down back of the barn and want to know what it is?" he explained.

By that time the sleepy visitor had got his breath and yelled: Get out of here! Take that thing away from me!" He made a beeline for the door just as the "one who knew" came in.

"Why, that's interesting," he said. "It's a—"

But the man who nods was gone. He never found out what kind of a snake it was. Further more he didn't care.

Distance Only a Relative Term

Little Billy heard several opinions and then sagely remarked: "It wouldn't be that high if the ground was taller."

As this is the closing meeting of the current year it seems wise that we should review some of the work that has been done during the past year.

Highway Department

Particular attention has been paid to the matter of permanent improvement. The balance of Water street has been concreted, Laurel Hill has been concreted from Laurel Hill bridge to beyond Walnut street, and Rose Place has been concreted. It is hoped that the annual city meeting will appropriate funds sufficient to finish Laurel Hill avenue to the city line and to concrete West Main street from Thames Square to Washington Square, placing all entrances to the city in fine condition. West Main street to the city line and Elmwood avenue have been macadamized and Central avenue is now being finished. Geer avenue has been improved. Sewers have been constructed in South street and Burton avenue. The trunk line sewer in Brook street, North street, Hickory street and from Hickory street to the end of the present sewer at the Lake street playground has been built as far as the amount appropriated will allow.

Gas & Electric Department

During the past year many extensions have been made. The business of the department is rapidly increasing. The gross receipts for the year ending April 30th, were $670,000 and the net profits were approximately $150,000. This means an immediate reduction in electric rate and a schedule of gas rates is now being prepared which will eliminate the so-called meter charge. The new schedules will be presented to the Gas & Electric Commissioners at their next regular meeting.

Water Department

The consumption of water is rapidly increasing and the department shows the largest receipts in its history. It is again incumbent upon me to remind the citizens that steps should be taken at once to provide a larger water supply for our city.

Police Department

The work of this department is constantly increasing. The traffic conditions require more men and the Finance Department have provided in the estimates for one more traffic officer.

Park Department

With their small appropriation this department is not only keeping Mohegan up to its high standard but have also been able to purchase the land surrounding the lake so that it is entirely the park proper.

Playgrounds

The Recreation Commission have done great work during the past year with their small appropriation and thousands of children were in constant attendance during the season when the playgrounds were open.

I wish to extend my hearty appreciation to the Corporation Counsel, [illegible] engineer, the [illegible] departments who [illegible] so faithfully, for our city, and especially to the members of the court of common council who have served the city so conscientiously during the past year.

At 8.30 o'clock the council adjourned sine die

INDIAN WAR MATERIALS IN WINDOW DECORATION

John J. Shea, manager of Shea's News Bureau on Broadway, has included a display of war materials with a window decoration composed of the June McCall's Magazine. The display was suggested by th ecover design of the magazine which is one of the series of portraits of types of American Girls, the work of Neysa McMein.

The portrait for June is a fine likeness of Te Ata, the daughter of a Chickasaw Indian chief, as the American Indian Girl, and Mr. Shea through the kindness of Scout Executive F. A. Benton and Arthur L. Peale has placed in the windows exhibits of Indian war bows, various types of arrows, pieces of Indian pottery and Indian pictures.

The display has attracted considerable attention, one of the bows being the war bow of the celebrated Chief Joseph, of the Nez Perces of Oregon. This bow was taken from Chief Joseph in 1877 in an engagement with the United States troops under General O. O. Howard and General Nelson Miles, during a remarkable flight across three territories. With the bow are shown about a dozen arrows of the same period taken from Bannock Indians. They are in wonderful condition and are headed with iron, copper, stone, bone and not a few have tips of hard wood. All tips have jagged edges to prevent their being easily pulled out of a wound, and several of the arrows are broken off above the tips, which remained in the bodies of the victims shot by the attacking Indians. This collection with a fine picture of Indians engaged in weaving is the property of Mr. and Mrs. Benton, the latter being a descendant of General Howard.

Another fine war bow, a Mohegan Indian bow, is also shown and contrasts strongly with the shorter and sturdier bow of the Nez Perces. Interesting bits of Indian pottery complete the exhibition, these articles being loaned by Mr. Peale.

SWIMMING CLASSES START IN POOL AT Y. M. C. A.

Over a hundred lads appeared at the Y. M. C. A. Monday eager to learn to swim, and once admitted to the big "Y" pool there was no end to the noisy chatter and splashing that went on. It was the first time that many of the boys had taken their "ducks" and the first lesson consisted mainly of encouraging the young "sinkers" to overcome their fear of the water. In order to do this the boys took their turn at jumping into the water in various ways, ducking under the water and catching their big toes and other stunts. The afternoon class, termed the "Pollywogs" turned out eighty strong, and this afternoon will be divided into smaller groups in order that faster progress may be made.

The night crowd known as the "Wiggle-worms" turned out strong, also, but upon examination it was discovered that many of these lads could swim and were disqualified.

The lessons will be continued every day this week except Friday, the afternoon classes meeting at 4.15 and the night classes at 7.15.

At the [illegible] the week's course, an examination will be given and all boys found able to "navigate" the length of the pool which is a distance of sixty feet will be awarded certificates.

SIDESWIPED AT CORNER BY HARTFORD AUTOMOBILE

Early Monday evening at the corner of Broad street and McKinley avenue an automobile driven by James M. Osten of 119 Lafayette street was run into by the machine driven by George M. Cohen of 265 Capen street, Hartford. The Norwich machine had its rear front fender damaged, but the other car sustained considerable more damage.

Osten was driving across McKinley avenue from Broad street, according to the report he made at police headquarters and was more than half way across the avenue when he was sideswiped by the other car which was coming up McKinley avenue at a rate estimated by Mr. Osten of about 30 miles an hour.

WOMAN NEARLY DROWNED FINED FOR INTOXICATION

This New Treatment Never Fails To End Piles

Many sufferers from Piles or Hemorrhoids have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say, "Go to your druggist and get an original box of MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES." One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief. They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever.

It's simply wonderful how speedily they act. Blessed relief often comes in two days. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained.

Lee & Osgood Co. dispense MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES in the original box or can get it for you on short notice

HANDSOME MAY BASKET TO VERSAILLES WOMAN

Last Friday evening Mrs. Chauncey House of Versailles was the recipient of an immense May basket which was presented to her by some of her friends and neighbors. Besides the basket she received a handsome mahogany clock and two mahogany candle holders with candles to match which were in an extra box with the candy, cakes and different kinds of fancy cookies and fruit. The basket was trimmed with pink and white carnations, ribbons and crepe paper of the same colors, having been arranged by Mrs. Wilfred Peltier who had charge of the affair.

The guests were charmingly entertained with duets by Miss Eva Dugas at the piano accompanied by Armand Mossey with the violin. An exhibition in the latest steps was given by Miss Pearl Swyden and Paul Smith. Chauncey House gave a fine display of clog dancing and was accompanied by George Peltier who played a harmonica. Many games were played and were enjoyed by all.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Reald Buschard, Mr. and Mrs. Armand Mossey, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Busch, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lopata, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Irons, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Czikowsky, Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Rondeau, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Peltier, Misses Bertha and Rose Connor, Pearl Swyden, Blanche Lucier, Leona Gadue, Eva, Lydia and Lucy Dugas, Helen Stefanowsky, Edna and Gladys Lawton and George Peltier, Felix Champagne, John Coffey, William LaPage, Paul Smith, Alex Dugas, Frank Stefanowsky, Michael Lewerk, James Nelson, Fred Dugas and Albert Phillips.

INDIAN CHIEF IN JAIL FOR SUPERIOR COURT

Stephen Warner of Johnson, R. I. who posed here as the Indian chief Manabozho, and was arrested in Providence, Friday after he had driven off with a horse and wagon from W. F. Bailey's livery stable, was presented before Judge A. F. Lively in the city court Monday morning on charge of theft and was bound over to the superior court. In default of $1,000 he went to jail.

Charles Dudley, foreman at the stable and Mr. Bailey, the owner, testified that the horse and wagon were worth about $250. The foreman said that the outfit was hired by the accused to go to a cemetery in Montville. Officer Charles Smith told of going after the man when he had been arrested in Providence. The Indian chief testified that he had hired the horse to go to Mohegan to meet a young girl whom he expected to marry. She did not meet him and he then decided to go on to Rhode Island to get money from his mother to enter the medicine business in Norwich.

Seven men were fined $5 or $10 for intoxication charges. Francis Pesquette, before the court for intoxication, had the present case continued for six months and will have to work out a suspended sentence of 10 days on another case.

Arba Simons, charged with striking his wife was fined $10 and costs and given a 10 day jail sentence, suspended for six months.

Emil Frenette, charged with breach of the peace on Sunday, had his case continued for six months and was ordered to pay an old fine of $50.

FINES IN LIQUOR CASES BEFORE CITY COURT

Nathan Repps of Vergason avenue, Norwich Town, who was arrested on Saturday by state policemen on charge of violation of the liquor law was before the city court Monday morning and his wife Katerina was also presented on the same charge. Each was found guilty and each was fined $100 and costs. The man was also given a jail sentence of 30 days suspended for a year. They paid the fines.

Alex Gere and George Weesly, in whose homes on Forest street the police seized stills last week, had their cases nolled in order that they may be taken up by the federal authorities.

Albert Goldberg, accused of having a bottle of intoxicating liquor at a dance Saturday night, also had his case continued and it will be taken up by federal authorities.

STONE AND LOUGHRAN FOUGHT FAST TEN-ROUND DRAW AT PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, May 19. — Ad Stone, Paterson, N. J., light heavyweight, and Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, fought a fast ten-round bout to a draw tonight at Shetuline park. The referee rendered the decision after the judges had disagreed.

Both boxers showed the effects of the hard milling. Stone's mouth was badly swollen and he had a bruise on his cheek, while Loughran was bleeding from the mouth and an old cut on his face had been reopened. The Philadelphian also had a big red spot on his left side from the continuous pounding of his opponent's hard right.

Stone did most of the leading and his blows appeared to be more powerful, but Loughran landed more frequently than the "fighting marine." Loughran gave a good exhibition of boxing and rarely left himself open at close quarters. He saved himself many times, however, by clinching in the last four rounds Stone tried hard for a knockout. He went after Loughran viciously, but the latter returned blow for blow and staggered Stone once or twice with quick, snappy punches.

More than 10,000 persons saw the fight, which was the first outdoor bout of the season here.

A ten round affair between Terry McHugh of Allentown, Pa., and Tommy Murray of this city, was fast and furious all the way. At the end the judges disagreed and the referee gave the decision to McHugh.

In the second bout, Bud Christiano of Chicago, was awarded the judges' decision over Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo. The verdict was unpopular with the spectators. Christiano weighed 126 pounds; Goodrich 125.

Owing to threatening rain it was decided to put on the main bout previous to semi-windup.

ACADEMY PLAYS SAYBROOK HIGH AT CAMPUS TODAY

This afternoon at the Academy campus the Academy team will stack up against the fast Old Saybrook team in what will be a fast game. Old Saybrook has quite a record for the season with victories over several strong teams in the state. The Academy team, however, experience little difficulty in turning them back as Chapman Tech trimmed the Saybrook team earlier in the season and the Academy in turn trimmed Chapman [illegible] will be [illegible] game on Friday afternoon. Coach Brigham gave the Academy team a stiff workout on Monday afternoon and the local boys looked the part that they have at any time during the season. They practiced with a snap that was refreshing, showing more real baseball than for many days.

Coach Brigham is undecided as to whom he will start in the box this afternoon, his choice resting between Steinman, Healy and Couture. Healy showed up the best of the trio in practice Monday, having plenty of speed and a pretty breaking hop to the plate. Steinman is a slow ball pitcher with good control and deceptive [illegible]. Steinman is showing marked improvement with his fast ball and [illegible] and had them working pretty well today. Steinman's great drawback is his inexperience in playing his position, but he is rapidly improving in this department.

The remainder of the team will be the same as in the Plainfield game on Saturday.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE MANAGERS HOLD MEETING MONDAY

The managers of the teams composing the Twilight league, had their third meeting at the armory Monday night. The teams now composing the Twilight league are the Hardigs, Battery B, East Ends, West Ends, Nelsons, and the Yantic Grain. Each team has agreed to contribute fifteen dollars to finance the league. It has been suggested that the games should be played on the Duwell grounds Furthermore it has been suggested that Harold Hull act as treasurer of the Twilight league. The managers of the teams have been appointed to act as the executive committee.

BOGASH IS KAYOED FOR THE FIRST TIME

Bridgeport, May 19.—Frank Moody, of Wales, knocked out Lou Bogash, of Bridgeport, in the eleventh round of a scheduled 12-round bout here tonight. It was the first time in his career of more than 175 fights, which included battles with five champions that Bogash was ever knocked off his feet.

A right over the heart followed by a left to the chin sent Bogash reeling to the ropes in the eleventh. Moody followed with a slashing attack which knocked Bogash down for a count of six. The Bridgeporter arose and after a severe milling Referee Galvin stopped the bout.

CITY LEAGUE OPENS IN NEW LONDON MAY 27TH

New London, May 18.—The entry of a team representing three shops in the city, the Lapointe, Babcock and Whiton, in the Industrial Baseball league may be dropped from the league and a nine entered from the post office to take its place, to make up the necessary four teams needed for a league. The Post Office was not represented at the recent Industrial league meeting held on Thursday, but Ralph W. Fletcher has received word to the effect that the handlers of mail would like to enter the league. No doubt the Post Office team will be voted in at the next meeting to be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday night. The Post Office has a team that will come up to the requirements of the Industrial league standards — in strength and in other ways. The meeting scheduled for the Industrial league for Thursday night will be for the purpose of electing league officers and drawing up of a schedule.

At a recent meeting held by the [illegible] the official opening date of baseball for Tuesday evening, May 27th and the Cortlecill Silk Co., champions of last year, will oppose the Knights of Columbus. The league will have four team affair, as will the industrial league. The other teams that are entered in the City league are the Tabs and Fort Trumbull Stars. The league will play games on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights, the Industrial and Thursday nights open for the Industrial league, if this organization chooses to play its games week days instead of Saturdays as was planned at the first meeting.

With two leagues all ready organized, the only thing that is holding up the start is the umpire's "play ball". There should be some snappy baseball during the entire season. For the number of teams entering a league will make it possible to pick only the best material. The Industrial league situation is being well handled by the temporary committee. The league has been made possible and will draw large crowds.

SAINTS WIN OVER ELIZABETH ST. SCHOOL

Monday afternoon at the academy campus the St. Patrick school contingent again proved its superiority on the field and at bat and beat Elizabeth St., 8 to 0. The features were Jim Shea's pitching and Jack Marks' hitting, Shea, by his striking out of 11 men in five innings, holding them to one hit and allowing no runs, Marks by his two bagger and two singles, [illegible] many times at bat. The Saints scored eight runs on nine hits and seven walks, two of which scored in runs. Shea gave six passes but his superb support allowed no Elizabeth Street made three errors against one for the Saints. Thanks to the able coaching of Pat Guerriero the team showed wonderful team work and precision. Captain Marks and Manager Casey led the team to its overwhelming victory. The lineup: E. Hamill lf, W. Burns ss, Jim Shea, p, Marks 3b, Mingo c, Courtois 1b, Dan Sullivan cf, Francis Donovan rf. Score by innings:

SIXTEEN STARS SURVIVE THE QUALIFYING ROUND

Garden City, N. Y., May 19.—Sixteen stars survived the qualifying round of the women's metropolitan golf championship today at the Cherry Valley club and will start match play tomorrow in quest of the title held by Miss Alexa Sterling, of Atlanta, who is not defending laurels she has worn for the past two years.

Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrook, Long Island, former national champion, won the qualifying medal with a card of 84 for the 18-hole test. She had a margin of nine strokes over her nearest rival. Most of the other outstanding players came through with the exception of Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Greenwich, Conn., also a former national champion, who was badly off her game and took 102 strokes four more than the highest qualifying total.

SPAETH PRAISES WORK OF THE YALE CREWS

Princeton, N. J., May 19.—Characterizing the Yale victory here Saturday as a "magnificent sweep," Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, Tiger crew coach, today praised the Eli combinations which defeated Cornell and Princeton on Carnegie lake. He pointed out that in the varsity race, both Cornell and Princeton were outclassed while Yale's sprinting power paved the way for victory in the junior varsity and freshman events.

"Our hats are off to Yale," commented Dr. Spaeth as he concluded his statement made at the request of the Yale News.

SIXTEEN PREP SCHOOL GOLFERS QUALIFY

Greenwich, Conn., May 19.—Sixteen boys qualified today for match play which begins tomorrow in the eastern interscholastic golf tournament.

Somers of Stuyvesant High school, Reid of Farmington and Broadsck of Mt. Vernon, tied for low score with 157 each and will play off the tie tomorrow. Russo of Vander Childs, with 161, and McCarthy of Stamford with 163, followed. Five made the 36 holes in 170, the highest qualifying score.

Daredevils Beat Hardigs.

The Taftville Daredevils defeated the Hardigs Sunday afternoon, 19 to 5, in a slow game. Rankin pitched for the Norwich team and Dugas and Baudette hurled for the Daredevils. The Daredevils are fast rounding into form and would like games. For games write Ernest Phaneuf, Box 88, Taftville.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

(Copyright, New York Globe)

Ninth inning. Score 6-5. Runners on second and third. Catcher at bat and one out. The catcher is a fair hitter.

Should the catcher be walked under these conditions?

In a case of this kind it is a good policy to walk the catcher and take a chance on the pinch hitter hitting into a double play. The law of averages is in the favor of the fielding team when it comes to the pinch hitter. He usually hits into a double play under these conditions and thinking baseball teams play for it.

The pitcher is in a hard situation here but if the catcher is a fair hitter he is pretty likely to hit a long fly if he doesn't get a single and a long fly would end the game.

EPINARD, FRENCH WONDER HORSE, IS BEATEN BY SIR GALLAHAD EASILY

Paris, May 19.—(By The A. P.)—Epinard, the great French four-year-old, is just another idol shattered. Sir Gallahad III, owned by Captain Jefferson Davis Cohn, today defeated the French turf in a hard ridden contest at St. Cloud over a distance of 1,900 metres, in which American jockeys, Everett Haynes and Frank O'Neill, were pitted against each other for supremacy.

Epinard was the public's choice at 1 to 3. Both horses ran true to form; the American trained, American ridden Epinard lost to the British trained, but American ridden, Sir Gallahad. It was Frank O'Neill's superb riding that carried his mount under the wire by a short neck in the lead.

The great match brought to the St. Cloud track the largest crowd that ever attended a racing event in France. There were two well defined camps, th Americans favoring Epinard, and the British Sir Gallahad. When the son of Badajos, ridden by Haynes, entered the track, he was greeted with as rousing cheers as ever welcomed a conquering hero of France.

Pale, emaciated and nervous from recent illness, Haynes sat on Epinard who went like a true thoroughbred, cool and collected, to the post, while Frank O'Neill, veteran of twenty years on the American, British and French turf, had the leg up on Sir Gallahad, spirited and temperamental son of Teddy, who raised his customary ruction at the barrier.

After some false starts the horses got away, with Sir Gallahad pounding out in front, and Epinard trailing somewhat listlessly. At the furlong Sir Gallahad had two lengths to the good, but with ten easy strides Epinard moved up until they were running head and head at the four furlongs.

Epinard's training camp sits in sorrow tonight, while Chantilly, Sir Gallahad's bailiwick, exults. The supremacy of the European turf, according to the racing experts, remains unsettled, notwithstanding Sir Gallahad's victory. It is felt that Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, made a mistake in giving Sir Gallahad eleven pounds, when, it is contended, the horses should run at weight for age.

M. Wertheimer himself said: "I think I made a mistake; I don't think Epinard can give Sir Gallahad 11 pounds."

"Are you satisfied with the race?" he was asked.

"I have no complaint to make against Haynes, and would give him the mount tomorrow under similar circumstances. Haynes will ride my horse in England and America the coming summer.

"The defeat of Epinard does not change my plans for the American trip as arranged. There is no condition attached to my contract. Epinard will refrain from racing in Europe just previous to sailing.

"I feel that in giving away weight and losing by a nose my horse has not lost caste. We are going to Ascot to run in the king's stand stakes and the all laged stakes (June 19-20). Should we meet defeat in these races Major Belmont will not have to cancel the contract. I will do so myself.

"I don't want to go to America unless I feel I own the best horse in the world, which, despite his defeat today, I am still convinced I do own."

Commenting on the race, M. Cohn, Sir Gallahad's owner said: "I don't want to be one of those 'I told you so' gentlemen. Results speak for themselves. I have told you Sir Gallahad would win; there it is."

Frank O'Neill smilingly remarked: "This was one of the easiest winning races of my career. I never was really challenged."

Asked if the jockeys were reversed would he like to back himself on Epinard against Sir Gallahad, he replied: "You will have a chance to judge for yourself next month in England."

The race was run in rather slow time, 1:20, owing apparently to Haynes being unwilling to assume the lead and permitting O'Neill on Sir Gallahad to get the jump on him at the start. The only fast furlong in the race was the first, when the horses raced neck and neck until Haynes thought he had broken the spirit of his rival, only to discover too late that O'Neil and his mount had plenty of reserve.

The Shah of Persia attended the race. "Who is the favorite?" he inquired. "Epinard," was the reply.

"Then bet forty francs on Sir Gallahad," commanded the Persian ruler.

The prince regent of Abyssinia, Ras Taffari, also was among those present, but he did not venture near the Pari mutuel booths.

BULKELEY FACES TOUGHEST GAMES OF THE SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 19.—The Bulkeley High school baseball team will take to traveling this week, having three games scheduled out of town. Two of these games are in the state of Massachusetts and one in this state. The first game of the week is with Yale Preparatory school at Milford, or Rosenbaum's, as it is better known. This game comes on Wednesday and on the following day, Thursday, the Bulkeley team will travel to Springfield, Mass., and take on Springfield Technical High at the Eastern league ball diamond. The last game of the week is against Palmer High at Palmer, Mass., on Saturday.

Although the three games that will be played this week will have no bearing on the state high school title, yet the team members consider these games as important as the games that have the Connecticut high school title involved. The entire three games are the toughest on the Bulkeley schedule. And to have games like the Yale Preparatory and Springfield Tech nines scheduled to be played in successive days, it is almost an impossible thing, to come out on the winning side in both games; and it looks at present as though the Bulkeley team will receive its first defeat of the season. The contest with Springfield is the most important of the three. A game with Haverhill High for the championship of New England is in the balance for the Orange and Black if the outcome is satisfactory to Bulkeley.

In the race for the state title to date, Bulkeley seems to have the edge on the other teams in the state. Seven straight victories are the result of the efforts put forth by the state interscholastic champions. In defeating Torrington High on Saturday, the Bulkeley team put a dangerous team out of the running. Torrington boasted of victories over such teams as Wilby High, Ansonia High, and Gilbert High. The Bulkeley team left a good impression with the local fans after the contest with Torrington. The entire team played bang-up baseball throughout. In fact it was the best exhibition of defense play yet shown by Bulkeley.

The only thing that is worrying Coach Robert T. Aldrich is the pitching situation. Tillie Daniels will be saved for the game with Springfield High on Thursday, and who the Bulkeley mentor expects to start against both Yale Preparatory and Palmer High is undecided at present. Both Montail and Parisi may be given the chance to show their stuff against Yale Prep on Wednesday, and on Saturday, Daniels may start, and if the Bulkeley team has a commanding lead, he will be relieved by either Montail or Parisi. However, if the game is close Daniels may be forced to go the route. Just what effect the Springfield game will have upon Daniels is not known but he will have to be an iron man, literally speaking, to pitch two hard contests in three days.

This afternoon before practice, the various plays were gone over by the team. The base running of the Bulkeley team is not as good as it should have been in the past contests and an attempt will be made to remedy this defect. Questions pertaining to inside baseball were also discussed. It is expected that the Bulkeley team will have a sliding pit where the team can take its sliding practice during the practice sessions out of doors.

HILDRETH DECLARES HIS HORSE WAS SECOND OR THIRD

New York, May 19.—Returning today from Louisville, Ky., where he saddled Bracadale and Mad Play for the Rancocas stable in the Kentucky derby, Sam Hildreth declared that Bracadale finished second or at the worst no more than third in the classic. Hildreth said that there might be a question as to second between Bracadale and Chilhowee but that Bracadale's head was in front of Beau Butler, the colt the judges placed third. The judges must have become excited, Hildreth said, because the finish as so close among four horses.

WILL ORDER BOUT OFF IF IT IS A PRIZE FIGHT

Indianapolis, Ind., May 19. — Gov. Emmett F. Branch is pondering the question:

"What is a prize fight in Indiana?"

The governor let it be known today that if he is convinced between now and May 31 that the Gibbons-Carpentier match scheduled at Michigan City, Ind., is a prize fight he will order it stopped. To date, he indicated, he has not been convinced.

The Indiana law prohibits prize fights, and permits boxing matches, but does not distinguish between the two.

BOSTON COLLEGE WINS EASILY FROM WILLIAMS

Newton, Mass., May 19.—Boston college won its eleventh game of the season today, pounding two Williams pitchers for 13 hits for a 10 to 3 victory. In the first inning Williams scored twice on three hits and pass but the home team took the lead in the second and held it. The score:

Gregory, Haley and Coe; Mullowney and O'Neill.

Hardiga Protest Game.

Sporting Editor—The Hardigs have a little to say about the game in Taftville Sunday. The Hardigs went to Taftville Sunday without their regular team but the Hardigs did not play the Daredevils, they played Taftville A. A. We do not play semi-pro ball, we play amateur ball. The manager of the Hardigs tried to get a game in Norwich with the same team but they tried to say that they did not have an open date. Another thing the Hardigs won't do is to use a doctored ball which the Taftville pitcher used and which was not noticed until the sixth inning when Heebner, the third baseman of the Hardigs, noticed it. Now if the Daredevils want to play the Hardigs in Norwich we have an open date next Saturday, May 24, and we will have our regular lineup.

Yours in sports,
MANAGER JOS. KING.

Hartford Beats Bridgeport.

Bridgeport, May 19.—Hartford defeated Bridgeport, 7 to 3, in a weird game here this afternoon. Dibut, a Cuban pitcher, was batted hard and Gillespie relieved him in the fifth. Cosgrove's batting featured.

The score:

Bridgeport	0	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	0	3

Millies Shut Out Brassco.

Waterbury, May 19.—Mills held the Brassco to four scattered hits, three of them infield rollers, here today and Pittsfield won its second straight from Waterbury, 5 to 0. Bishop was wild and ineffective for Waterbury and as his support wobbled at crucial moments, he was never in the running. The defeat is the fourth consecutive for the home players. The score:

Two base hits, Lavallee, Stapleton 2.

Coal Heavers Turn on Profs.

New Haven, May 19.—Worcester today turned the tables on the Profs and took today's game, 9 to 6. Voyles kept the locals down in fine style and kept their hits well scattered. The score:

Conners is Operated on Again.

New Haven, May 19.—George Conners, track trainer at Yale, who was operated upon for appendicitis last week, underwent another operation today for gland trouble. This had been expected as it was stated when he went to the hospital that two operations were to be performed. Mr. Conners stood the first operation for appendicitis excellently and the surgeons completed their task today.

Putnam Team Loses Two.

The baseball team of the Putnam Manufacturing company lost both of the week end games by close scores, dropping the game with the Attawaugan club on Saturday, 12 to 11, and losing at Wauregan on Sunday, 8 to 6. On Sunday they will play in Oakland, R. I., and on Memorial day will play the H. K. H. team of Putnam.

Stockwell Stars Win.

The Stockwell Stars defeated the Aces by a score of 6 to 5 Monday afternoon. Mullin's home run was the feature of the game.

Tigers Win Another.

The Tigers defeated the Arrows on Sunday afternoon, 10 to 8. Couture pitched for the Arrows and Murphy for the Tigers.

Senators Win Exhibition.

Washington, May 19.—The Washington American league team defeated the Quantico Marines, 11 to 2, in an exhibition game here today for the benefit of the Olympic fund.

Yale Golfers Win.

Bridgeport, May 19.—Yale defeated Dartmouth six to three in an intercollegiate golf match here today. Yale won all the doubles and divided the singles.

The Olympic Games of ancient Greece consisted at first of ony a foot foot race of 210 yards. Gradually the number of events was increased until the program included three foot races, wrestling, boxing, the pancratium, which was a sort of boxing and wrestling combined, usually running, jumping, throwing the discus, throwing the javelin and wrestling, and, finally, as the program became more elaborate, various kinds of horse and chariot races.

SECOND DISASTROUS FIRE IN CENTER OF OGDENSBURG

Ogdensburg, N. Y., May 19.—The second disastrous fire of the day was sweeping the business section of this city tonight, starting from the fourth floor of the St. Lawrence Wholesale Grocery Company building, down town. Firemen were endeavoring to confine the blaze to the third and fourth stories, but early tonight it appeared their efforts would be futile.

A pall of smoke hung over the city, hindering the work of the fire fighters and inconveniencing traffic.

The smoke was increased by the smoldering coal fires of the Democrat Coal company which were ignited in a waterfront fire this morning.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DULL

New York, May 19—Trading in today's stock market was practically at a standstill awaiting the outcome of the senate's action on the presidential veto of the bonus bill, which became known about half an hour after the market closed. Total sales, which approximated 400,000 shares, were the smallest of any full day session since last August.

Reactionary price movements prevailed during the greater part of the session as bear traders singled out weak spots in the motor accessory, copper textile and leather shares, several of which established new low prices for the year. Prices rallied briskly just before the close on publication of reports that the Humble Oil Company had restored the price of mid-continent crude to the quotation in effect prior to the recent 25 per cent. cut, and that the directors of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico railway were meeting here for special dividend action. Announcement of a special 16 1-2 per cent. cash dividend by the "Gulf Coast lines" was made after the market closed.

Irregularity of the standard industrial shares closed higher on the day. American Can and Baldwin moved up more than a point while U. S. Steel common, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Studebaker improved fractionally.

Marland and Phillips, which had been heavy in the early part of the session, led the late rally in the oil group, each closing about a point higher.

held at 3 per cent. All money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

French francs broke about 25 points under 5 1-2 cents in sympathy with the reaction that took place in the London market before local traders started. Belgian francs lost about 13 points being quoted around 4.67 cents, and demand sterling dropped 3-4 of a cent to $4.36. Other rates showed little change in quiet trading.

INJUNCTION AGAINST BUILDING CAUSEWAY AT OLD LYME PLACE

A temporary injunction under penalty of $7,000 until the June session of the superior court has been granted by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin against William G. and Katharine B. Burt of Evanston, Ill., and others in a suit brought against them by Katharine M. Edwards of Pittsburgh, Pa., over the construction of a causeway on land of the defendants in Old Lyme that adjoins land of the plaintiff. She asks damages of $5,000.

The injunction restrains the defendants from using or removing an accumulation of rock and stone, from interfering with the plaintiff's use of the material, from continuing with the construction of the causeway and from trespassing on land of the plaintiff's or removing from it any rock, stone, sand or gravel. The property is on the "Neck Road", in the town of Old Lyme.

Daboll and Crandall of New London, who have been employed by the defendants as engineers on the construction work, and Fred Keyes of Waterford, who is the contractor on the work, are named as party defendants.

It is claimed that since the work has been underway since March 1, 1924, the defendants have unlawfully blasted and removed large quantities of rock from a ledge and around a lake on the plaintiff's premises, have cut down and destroyed trees and shrubbery and greatly injured the natural beauty of the plaintiff's place. All this was done, it is claimed, by taking advantage of the plaintiff's absence from the state and in consequence has been done the plaintiff will be obliged to purchase a large quantity of stone to repair a dam which is essential to the maintenance of the lake

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY NOTES

The W. W. Backus hospital has accepted the offer of Mrs. William Geer and Thomas Connor to use all the land between their homes and the Yantic river for cultivation. Part of it will be used for vegetables and part for field corn for the silo.

Results came quickly after Dr. Brenahan's talk at the auxiliary meeting when he spoke of the value of new magazines in a hospital. Immediately afterwards, Mrs. Carl W. Brown, chairman of the literature committee, received a check for $10 for new subscriptions.

In the 50 years from 1873 to 1923 the number of hospitals increased from 149 to 7,095.

Out of the 24 million people who require medical attention each year, ten million are treated in hospitals. They have a daily population of 1,-250,000.

Mrs. Philip Welles of the holiday committee of the auxiliary is making plans for Memorial day.

A rose bush from the banquet of the H. H. Ailyn Rubber corporation was sent to the hospital where it beautifies the main corridor and will later be planted in the hospital grounds.

Ice cream that was enjoyed at the hospital on May 11th was given by the Central Baptist church.

A class of nine nurses in the training school is taking final examinations.

A year's subscription to the Saturday Evening Post and a three year subscription to Fruit, Garden and Home have been received by the literature committee.

Since Easter, donations have been received at the hospital from the following persons: Dr. W. K. Tingley, Rev. J. H. Stearns, Mrs. Dwight Underwood, George W. Carroll, Mrs. E. W. Loomis, Mrs. J. J. Donohue, Mrs. Lutt, Mrs. Everett Hall, Miss Ina Ufford, Mrs. George W. Carroll, Dr. J. J. Donohue. PARK CHURCH CHORISTER PRESENTS HIS RESIGNATION

Ebenezer Learned, for 30 years a member of the choir and for a large part of that time chorister of Park church choir, has handed in his resignation as leader and member of the choir, much to the regret of the members of Park Congregational church and his many admiring friends.

The society committee comprising Dr. Frank S. Bunnell, chairman, Henry A. Tirrell, Weston C. Pullen and Hibberd R. Norman have received the resignation and accepted it with regret only after Mr. Learned had refused to withdraw it.

Miss Annie E. Taft, for many years the organist of the church, has been appointed chorister by the committee and assumes this position immediately but Mr. Learned will remain the choir tenor until his successor can be named.

Mr. Learned first became a member of the choir on April 4, 1897 as the regular tenor and he continued this position until April 26, 1908, when he went to New London to become chorister in that city on May 3, 1908. He remained there until April 2, 1911, when he returned to Park Congregational church as chorister, which office he has most ably filled since that time. During the period of 1895 to 1897 he sang in the choir, even though at that time he was a student at Yale university. For many years he sang under his father, Bela P. Learned, who held the position of chorister for over 30 years. Ever since the organization of the church a member of the Learned family has been in the choir. Mr. Learned's father and mother having been members of the choir, and it is with regret that the church loses the services of a member of a family which has long served the church in the musical part of its services.

FINDS BATAVIA, JAVA, PLACE OF GREAT BEAUTY

Rutherford C. Plaut of this city was as far as she can get from New York on April 8. This was at Batavia, on the island of Java, in the East Indies, whence he wrote to Norwich friends of the beauty of the place. His letter follows:

Batavia, Java, April 8, 1924.

My dear Ones All: Here I am—at it again—writing to you and the thermometer is over 90 degrees, so you can imagine the pleasure I am deriving out of it, and to complete the joy, I have prickly heat, which, I can assure you, is a thousand joys. Oh! If I only could roll on a floor covered with sand paper, but it is not of my troubles but my joys that you wish to hear.

We arrived in the harbor of Batavia on the Island of Java on the afternoon of April the third. Our ship slipped out of the harbor of Singapore through the glassy rivers of the straits of Malacca, and on, past points and shores, that, to me, had never been anything but geographic names. There was some thrill of excitement in being "on the line" in the heart of the tropics, the halfway house of the world. It was not so very hot—only 91 degrees by the thermometer—but the least exertion to cross the deck or to lift a book left one limp and exhausted, with cheeks burning and breath coming fast. The deceptive heat of the tropics was declaring itself.

It was beautiful to see our big ship (the biggest ship that has ever been to these ports) steaming in between long broad waters, made fast to the stone quays of Tandjon Priok, facing a long line of corrugated iron warehouses, behind which was the railway, connecting the port with the city of Batavia. It is a distance of nine miles to the heart of the city of Batavia from where we landed. There was a stretch of swampy ground, dotted and lined with palm trees and banana patches, with tiny baskets of houses perched on stilts, clustered at the foot of tall cocoanut trees, that are the staff and source of life and an economical blessing of native existence. The panorama that met our eye was groups of bare brown children, frolicking in the roads and the mothers with babies astride of their hips, or swinging comfortably in a scarf knotted across one shoulder. Everyday life was going on under the palms most naturally, although to our eyes it was so strange and theatrical. At the pier, we met the sadoe (dos a dos), a two-wheeled cart, which is the common vehicle of hire in the country and is drawn by a tiny sandalwood pony. The broad cushioned seats over the axles will accommodate four persons, two sitting each way. The driver faces front comfortably, but the passenger, with no back to lean against but the driver's, must hold to the canopy frame, while he is switched about town backwards in the footman's place, for one gulden or 40 cents an hour. Guides, or efficient couriers, in real sense, are all too rare. The English-speaking servant is rare and elusive, also, yet a necessity unless one speaks Dutch or low Malay. Of all the countries one may ever travel in, none equals Java for difficulty in being understood.

Batavia is partly seen, when one has driven through the old town of Batavia and seen its crowded bazaars and streets, and has followed the lines of the brick canals, where small natives splash and swim and hundreds of men and women beat the family linens until they are snow white—and when I say "beat," it is just what I mean. They grab the clothes and beat them against a flat board until they are clean. Men draw the boats up and down the canal. But what a difference when we are driving into the long garden court of the Hotel Nederlanden and there behold a spectacle of social life and customs that nothing in all travel can equal for a distinct shock and sensation! We had seen some queer things in the street, but here in the hotel was an undressed parade that beggars description. The hotel is a series of one-storied buildings surrounding the four sides of a garden court. The bedrooms open out directly on this broad gallery and the space in front of each room, furnished with lounging chairs, table and reading lamp, is the sitting room of each occupant by day. Men in pajamas thrust their bare feet out bravely, puffing clouds of rank Sumatra tobacco smoke, as they stared at the new arrivals. The women were about the same only they were more undressed and stared as if we were the unusual and not they. When the gong sounded, the native guests came into the dining room. The men wore proper coats and clothes at this midday Rijs tavel (rice table) but the women and children came as they were. Rice is the staple of the midday meal, and one is expected to fill the soup plate before him with boiled rice and on that heap as much as he may select from eight or ten dishes, a tray of curry condiments being also passed with this great first course. Bits of fish, duck, chicken, beef, bird, omelet and onions rose upon my neighbors' plates and spoonfuls of a thin curried mixture were poured over the rice, before the conventional chutneys, spices, cocoanut peppers and almonds went to the conglomerate mountain, resting upon the rice table below. Hamburg steak, a salad, and then fruit and coffee brought the midday meal to a close. These Dutch can certainly load a whole meal on their knives and shovel with a straight aim into their Dutch interior, and I forgot to say that they start their meal with a finger bowl, but I know now why. Cadden says he likes the food. Perhaps he does. I don't. After a meal such as I have described, the native slumbers, as one naturally must.

The European stores are closed at 1 o'clock for the day. The native stores stores are always open. They all have their autos and the chauffeurs are all speed kings. The governor general, whose salary is twice that of our president, lives in a palace at Buitenzorg, forty miles away in the hills, with a second palace still higher up in the mountains. This ruler of thirty odd million souls, who rules as a viceroy, instructed from The Hague, with the aid of a secretary general and a counsel of the Indies, has, in addition to his salary of a hundred and fifty thousand, an allowance of sixty thousand dollars a year for entertaining, and it is expected that he will maintain a considerable state and splendor. And well he might, I'll say. Governor Wood of Manila was his guest recently and now I believe the viceroy has gone to Manila to visit Wood.

The show places of Batavia are easily seen in a day. The old town hall, and the walled gate of Peter Eberfeld's house, with the spiked skull of that half caste traitor against Dutch rule, are two. The pride of the city, and the most creditable thing I saw, is the Museum of the Batavian Society of Arts and Sciences. The museum is housed in a beautiful Greek temple of a building whose white walls are shaded by magnificent trees. I had intended to give it the "go by" but Cadden and Carrie, who had been in, insisted that I must see it, but, after trying it twice and finding it closed, I came again on Sunday morning and I'll say I was repaid. There is a treasure chamber, heaped with gold shields, helmets, thrones, state umbrellas, boxes, jewelled daggers, and wonderful diamond studded jewelry, which were taken from the native sultans. The necklaces, earrings, head dresses, seals, plates and statuettes of gold and silver are beyond me for description. And now I want to tell you about battek. Peddlers bring to one bales of the native cloth or battek, patterned in curious designs that have been in use since time out of mind. These native fabrics are shown so much that one soon recognizes the conventional design and distinguishes the quality of these hand patterned cloths that constitute the native dress. The sarong or skirt, worn by the native man and woman alike, is a strip of cotton two yards long and one yard deep, which is drawn tightly around the hips, the fullness gathered in front, and, by a swift twist is made so firm that a belt is not necessary. We saw how some of these were made and it was very interesting. The parts that are to be left white are covered with wax and the cloth is dipped in, or brushed over with the dye. This resist must be applied for each color and the wax afterwards steamed out in hot water, so this batcek goes through many handlings and is often a work of weeks. The dyes are applied hot, through a little tin funnel or an instrument tapering down to a thin point, which is used like a painter's brush, but will give the fine line and dot work of a pen and ink drawing. Some of these pieces cost as high as $30. I bought several and all the passengers had the fever. I guess before our boat left Batavia the stock of batcek was depleted.

It was an hour and a half's ride via auto from Batavia to Buitenzorg and it gave us an insight into the native life in the interior. Here we saw the botanical gardens, the great show place and paradise of the island. The Dutch, as we all know, are acknowledged the best horticulturists of the world, and with the heat of the sun and a shower or two every day, they sure have accomplished what they set out to do. The governor's palace is set in the midst of these wonderful gardens, and, from the main gate to the governor's palace is undoubtedly the finest row of trees I have ever seen. These trees, arching about one hundred feet overhead, are called Kanari trees and their tall straight trunks are covered with stag horn ferns, ratans, creeping palms, blooming orchids, and every kind of parasite and air plant that the climate allows. There is a fairy lake of lotus and Victoria regia beside it. The leaf is as large as the head of a barrel and perhaps larger. Here we also enjoyed seeing nutmegs lying as thick as acorns on the ground. The various cinchonas, sugar canes, rubber, teas, coffees, gums, spices, hemp and other growths, which are the products of Java, and which the planters derive their millions from, are in evidence everywhere. The fruits here in this country are wonderful, each one better than the other. There are tons of bananas and they have a beautiful, deep yellow look, and their cheapness tempts one to buy and but when you eat them you are a bit disappointed. They have a dry pulp and taste like pumpkin, but I would be ashamed to tell you how many Minnie and I ate on our forty-mile drive. And then how we did punish the lovely red rambutans. We would have bought them for their beauty alone. They are clusters that look like chestnut burs with spines tinted to the deepest red. The shell pulls apart easily and discloses a juicy, transparent mass of white pulp around three smooth stones. We sure did enjoy these and filled our room with them. Much to our regret, however, we discovered later that they were filled with ants and then "out the window they must go." Then we had plenty of papaya, a small custard fruit like our muskmelon, with curly gray seeds that are healthy to eat as they contain pepsin. The much heralded cherimoyer is grown too, the mangos ripen in every yard, but the fruit of fruits is the mangostun. The natives fasten them together in bunches of twenty like a cluster of gigantic grapes. It is a pleasure to cut the thick fibrous rind and to see the round ball of perfumed snow resting in its cup and they melt right in your mouth. "Are they good?" I'll say they are. There is an offer by a British steamship company of thirty pounds sterling to the captain who will get a basket of mangostuns to the queen, but the fruit becomes bad in six days after being cut from the tree. All classes chew the Betel Nut, bits of which, wrapped in a betel leaf, with lime, furnish cheer and stimulant. It dyes the mouth a blood red and keeps the lips streaming with crimson juice. This practice we found all through India also.

The death sentence is pronounced upon the burglar caught with a weapon on his person, and twenty years in chains if caught unarmed, for in this eternal summer, where people must live with open doors and windows, some protection must be assured those who own portable property. Here you can buy any of the deadly poisons and even opium is raised, made and sold. The native will not quarrel with a foreigner, but he has several ways of killing via the poison route, so be careful how you act in Java. It would not be fair were I not to tell you about the coffee here. Java coffee in Java comes to one in a stoppered bottle or cruet, a dark brown fluid, looking like molasses. This double extract of coffee made by cold filtration is diluted with hot water and hot milk to a muddy gray brown, lukewarm drink that is uniformly bad in every hotel. I would sooner have one cup of George Driscoll's so-called Java than all the coffee in Java. I think I have told you all about Java, except the sacred cannon and that I will tell you when I see you face to face.

Tomorrow we arrive at Manila and then won't we be glad to see the Stars and Stripes. I'll kiss them. I do hope we have some mail and papers there. I have not seen a Bulletin later than February 17th and here it is April 10th.

Give my regards to all.

...Borah's remarks were aimed ...minority report brought from ...his committee to the senate by Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, who disagreed with his four associates in their majority conclusion that Senator Wheeler was guiltless "in spirit and letter of the law," of the charge brought against him. Senator Sterling interrupted Senator Borah once or twice, during his review of the committee evidence, but said he would wait until tomorrow before entering his response.

Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, also broke in to the discussion once to declare that the indictment represented an "attempt by the department of justice to blackmail a senator because he engaged in the exposure of rascality." He referred to the fact that Senator Wheeler's indictment returned after he had led the senate investigation, as committee "prosecutor," into the conduct of former Attorney General Daugherty.

Reciting that Senator Wheeler was charged with agreeing to accept a $16,000 fee from Gordon Campbell, Montana oil promoter, for representing his interests in obtaining government permits to drill for oil, Senator Borah said the witnesses before the committee had also unanimously agreed that the senator's employment was as a lawyer to represent Campbell's interests before Montana courts in very extensive litigation.

Asserting that the grand jury which brought the indictment did not have the facts, Senator Borah promised to express some "personal opinion," later up the bringing of the indictment.

The Montana senator sat almost motionless in the chamber throughout the discussion, which most of his democratic colleagues attended. A motion for adoption of the majority report by the senate is expected to bring a roll call disposing of the issue insofar as Senator Wheeler's seat in the senate is concerned.

JEW-BATING REVIVED AT BUDAPEST UNIVERSITY

Budapest, May 20. — Jew-bating, which for some time had ceased, was revived today at Budapest university under extraordinary circumstances. While Professor Bugarszky was lecturing on General Anatomy some of the students rose and demanded that four of his Jewish auditors be killed on the spot in order to furnish material dissection, "so rarely have we seen Jewish corpses."

The students declared that only the bodies of Christians were submitted for anatomical study, as the Jews buried their poor dead. They asserted that it was unjust to them that Jews should profit through study on the bodies of Christian dead.

Professor Bugarszky called for the assistance of attendants, who succeeded in helping four Jewish students to make their escape from the classroom after they had suffered minor bruises from students who attacked them.

CONFERENCE ON TRAFFIC PROBLEMS OF THE FUTURE

New York, May 20—A shift of industry and population from New York City to New Jersey as a result of congestion in the metropolis was predicted by Governor Silzer of New Jersey in an address today at a conference of officials and representatives of civic organizations in more than 400 towns, cities and villages in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. The convention was called to discuss the traffic problems of the region.

Governor Silzer urged cooperation between New York and New Jersey in the solution of transportation difficulties. As one means to this end he suggested the building of a bridge over the Hudson river from 178th street, Manhattan, to Fort Lee.

The limit to the construction of the high buildings in lower Manhattan, which have given fame to New York's sky line, has been reached, said a paper prepared by Daniel L. Turner, a consulting engineer.

In view of the congestion created by the modern sky-scraper, Mr. Turner advocated the construction of super highways, reserved exclusively for passenger automobiles

"It is sufficient to say that I consider it an express traffic lane, without other traffic interference, is capable of developing approximately seven times the capacity of an ordinary 30 mile highway, reserved exclusively for passenger automobiles

"It is sufficient to say that I consider it an express traffic lane, without other traffic interference, is capable of developing approximately seven times the capacity of an ordinary high speed highways, reserved exclusively for passenger automobiles

By 1960, more than two million motored vehicles will be registered in New York city, Mr. Turner predicted, citing the fact that in 1923 there were 371,000 registered vehicles here.

No Fear Of Honest Study Of Theology

Hartford, May 20.—Rt. Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Connecticut, in his annual address to the diocesan convention, made extended reference to discussion of the creed, in theological circles, saying in part that "Christian truth has naught to fear from reverent scholarship, honest study and investigation."

As regards investigation, he said: "The church may well be patient and not attempt foreclosure by authority. The articles of the creed as they come to us must of course be interpreted in accordance with truth as made certain in the light of scientific discovery. We do not now think of hades as a subterranean region below the earth's crust. We know that the right hand of the Father is not a fixed locality in space. The language of those articles is figurative but none the less accepted as true. By the resurrection of the body many of us want to know what St. Paul meant and took pains to teach.

"No fact, however, has been discovered by science or brought to view by scholarly research to disprove the story of Christ's birth which is by scholarship acknowledged to belong where it stands in the gospel according to St. Luke."

Bishop Brewster said that in the present controversies over the creed the veil of reverence has been plucked aside and the mystery laid bare to the scrutiny of analytic criticism, until many of our people are in no little perplexity and confusion of mind." He said that the ancient creeds have come down with accumulated authority and testimony of Christian generations. There is adduced high scientific authority of the present day to the effect that a man does not violate his intellectual integrity in believing the articles of the creed which has recently been much debated.

"This article is itself the source to which may be traced the devotion, the chivalry, the art, and architecture which glorified the middle ages. Upon ruder ages it had potent influence and has since been an effective factor towards maintaining the finer elements of our civilization.

"The history of the Catholic creeds has seen modifications of affirmation through interpretation. The basis, however, of historic fact remains while attempted explanations and denials lie in fragments along the way. To the historicity of this basis of fact the church is committed, while it may and should allow the freedom of inquiry and research."

RAPID TRIAL OF BANDIT FOR MURDER

Buffalo N. Y., May 20.—Frank H Minnick, leasing the electric chair of ... Rufus Eller, a jewelry ... in a holdup on May 10, ... fate tomorrow. His ... moved in county court yesterday, progressed with startling rapidity today after the last juror entered the box at noon.

District Attorney Guy B. Moore had rested the state's case before adjournment of court tonight, calling only nine witnesses and leaving undisturbed in her cell at the Erie county jail Stella MacKowska, 19-year-old bobbed-haired companion of Minnick alleged to have run out of the August Hoyler store with two trays of diamonds while Minnick covered the proprietor and his clerk with his revolver. It had been expected that Miss ... would be called to testify against Minnick. Whether she would be allowed to testify against Minnick's evidence in the trial of George W. Bittle, third member of the holdup party and plead guilty to a lesser charge, or be forced to stand trial on the first degree murder indictment against her was not indicated.

JOHNSON'S OPINION OF JAPANESE EXCLUSION

Washington, May 20. Chairman Johnson, of the house immigration committee, asserted in a statement today that it "must be apparent to all," that Japan is violating the gentlemen's agreement, and that congress should have put "all of Japan in the barred zone along with the rest of Asia."

Declaring that "additional Japanese lines are being crowded into service," in an effort to land immigrants on American shores before the Japanese exclusion clause would become effective July 1, Mr. Johnson said "it must be apparent to all that the gentlemen's agreement is being observed in the breach."

"What congress should have done," he asserted, "was what it tried to do in 1917, namely, put all of Japan in the barred zone, along with the rest of Asia." Almost 2,500 Japanese have invaded Hawaii within ten months and over 1,000 have come to the United States within that time. This was not contemplated by the agreement."

White House World Court Conference

Washington, May 20.—Republican members of the senate foreign relations committee, faced with a democratic threat to force senate action on the world court question before adjournment of congress, gathered at the White House tonight to talk over the whole matter with President Coolidge

The visit to the White House of the republican members headed by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the committee chairman and himself the author of a world court proposal, was preliminary to a meeting of the full committee tomorrow on the world court question.

This committee meeting was called by Chairman Lodge several days ago at the request of Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking democratic member, who indicated in a public announcement that unless some action soon was taken he would move to discharge the committee, thereby bringing the world court question to the senate floor

Senator Lodge after calling the committee meeting, informed the president that republican members desired to consult him as to the course of action to be pursued and tonight's conference accordingly was arranged. The meeting was preceded by a lengthy conference between the president and Secretary Hughes.

The conference was described as primarily for the purpose of ascertaining ways and means of giving effect to the president's recommendation for American adherence to the permanent court of international justice.

It was attended by Chairmen Lodge, and Senators Brandegee, Connecticut; Moses, New Hampshire; Wadsworth, New York; Pepper, Pennsylvania; and Lenroot, Wisconsin. Senators Borah, Idaho, and Willis, Ohio, also members of the committee, were absent from the capitol and Senator Borah, Idaho, although in Washington, did not attend. The absence of Senator Borah was declared by the other senators not to be significant as he had been consulted and his views ascertained by those who met with the president.

STATEMENT BY COUNSEL IN HOUSE SHIPPING INQUIRY

Washington, May 19—Chauncey G. Parker, general counsel of the shipping board, testified today in the house shipping inquiry that he had refused to listen to overtures from Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania, and Moses, and Keyes, New Hampshire, republicans, that the board settle a claim on the basis of Mr. Pepper's opinion, while the Atlantic Corporation of Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

The corporition has a claim of $1,024,000 against the board for payment on the construction of 10 steel vessels in addition to $900,000 as an offset on a government mortgage of $3,500,000 on the plant.

In previous testimony the committee had developed that Senator Pepper had been asked by former Chairman Lasker for an opinion in the case. His findings were rejected, however, and the board instituted foreclosure proceedings against the company.

Asked by Representative Conally, democrat, Texas, if any pressure had been brought to bear on the board since the committee last considered the case, Judge Parker told of an interview three or four weeks ago to which Senators Pepper, Moses, Keyes, Charles H. Tyler, an attorney for the company, and Albert Hislip, of Portsmouth, participated

"Senator Moses was the spokesman," he said. "They said to me that President Coolidge was very anxious that a settlement should be made on the basis of Pepper's opinion and also asked me if I would urge the board to adopt that recommendation."

"I told them I regretted very much that I was unable to take that course; that the board already had passed on the claim and had given instructions to the legal department to proceed with litigation and enforce the claims."

COOLIDGE TAKES THE CHLORINE GAS TREATMENT

Washington, May 20.—The chlorine gas treatment for colds, one of the discoveries of the chemical warfare service, was taken by President Coolidge today in an effort to remove the remaining traces of the bronchial infection which confined him to the White House last Saturday and Sunday and since has slightly troubled him.

The president took the treatment on the recommendation of Secretary Weeks to whom it was administered with beneficial effects sometime ago. Accompanied by Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, the White House physician, Mr. Coolidge after lunch went to the army dispensary and sat for 45 minutes in an air tight room while the chlorine gas was circulated in the room under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel M. A. Delaney, attending surgeon of the army medical center.

Another treatment may be taken within a few days by the president.

FEDERAL FARM LOAN BOARD DEBATED IN THE SENATE

Fight Renewed in the Senate Against Nominations of the Late President Harding—Senator Howell Maintained That the Appointment of Charles E. Lobdell at a Salary of $25,000 A Year Was An "Unlawful Procedure in the Creation of a New Official"—Charge Was Made That "Looseness and Gross Misconduct of Affairs in the Board, Indicating Incompetence," Was Evidenced by the Lack of Books of Account.

Washington, May 20. — The fight against the nominations of members of the federal farm loan board by the late President Harding was renewed late today by Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, this time on the floor of the senate after the nominations had been favorably reported by the banking committee.

Entering a series of charges involving the conduct of the board and declaring the question had arisen as to whether the "senate could afford to put its stamp of approval on the methods," of administration adopted by the board, the Nebraska senator was met with the assertion by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, a member of the committee, that the nominations had been approved after a complete hearing.

The nominees—Lewis J. Pettijohn, of Kansas, Elmer S. Landes, of Ohio, Merton L. Corey, of Nebraska, and Edward E. Jones, of Pennsylvania—were given recess appointments a year ago by President Harding and their names were sent to the senate last December by President Coolidge.

Senator Howell charged that there had been "a violation of a cardinal principle of public policy" which should be assessed against the board in the matter of the appointment of Charles E. Lobdell, its former chairman, of the post of fiscal agent, at a salary of $25,000 per year. This action, he declared to be "unlawful procedure in the creation of anew official."

Other charges included:

"Looseness and gross misconduct of affairs in the board, indicating incompetence," and evidenced by the lack of books of account.

"Unlawful withdrawal and expenditure of public funds to the extent of $65,000 to $75,000.

"Looseness and neglect in disbursement of public funds; no receipts or vouchers being kept."

"Missapplication of public funds, including presents to employes and advances and loans."

The Nebraska senator said Commissioner Lobdell opened an account in a local bank in December, 1922, with $5,000 drawn from the treasury and this account was supplemented from time to time, the senator declared, "without voucher or receipt."

"One of the nominees," he continued, "drew $2 000 on account of salary but was called upon to replace it."

Senator Howell said he had asked at the board's offices for the books of the organization and had been told the records were kept by the treasury.

"At the treasury," he continued, "I was told they only kept an account of receipts and expenditures. The amazing conclusion was that there have been no complete record of the operation of this board which handled $881,000,000 of the public money."

Senator Howell said his charges in part were based on testimony taken by the senate banking committee in the course of hearings on the nominations.

"The remarkable position taken by one commissioner," he added, "that he didn't see why any books were necessary beyond checks and correspondence so long as the twelve banks were satisfied with what they were getting."

Senator Glass declared the committee had been "entirely satisfied there had been no carelessness in the handling of public funds," and protested against the matter being brought into the open senate.

MIDDLETOWN MAN CLAIMS HE WAS BEATEN AND ROBBED

Middletown, Conn., May 20.—Claiming that he had been assaulted and robbed of several hundred dollars by two men whome he gave a lift to, Saybrook last Saturday night and that for the past three days his mind was a complete blank, Herbert G. Wadhams, manager of a feed agency here, returned to his home tonight. Early tonight Wadhams telephoned to this city from Branford asking that relatives call for him as he was unable to make the trip home alone.

Wadhams said that on Saturday night he telephoned his wife that he was going to Saybrook to the railroad station with two men. At this time he had several hundred dollars belonging to the company and account and check books. On the way to the station, according to Wadhams' account, he was struck over the head by one of the men and his money taken. That is the last he remembered until his memory was restored while walking through a woods near Branford.

His automobile was found in front of a hotel in New York city last Sunday morning with the books and papers scattered on the floor in the rear of the machine. It was thought at the time that Wadhams had met with foul play and Chief of Police Charles A. Anderson, of this city, went to New York in search of the missing man. State police were also notified and a state-wide search begun.

Wadhams, when he returned to his home tonight, bore a long scar across his forehead where he aparently had been struck and he was weak from his wanderings of the past few days. He does not recall where he has been since Saturday night or what happened to him after he was struck. He was unable to give the police a description of the two men he claimed he took to Saybrook and he will be questioned by the police tomorrow morning when he will feel better disposed to answer their questions.

FREE MARKET LEFT FOR FRENCH FRANC

New York, May 20.—The French government, it was learned authoritatively today, has abandoned temporarily its activities in suport of the frans, and a free market has been restored for trading in the currency.

Inquiries among members of the banking group headed by J. P. Morgan and Company which established the credit of $100,000,000 early in March to rescue the franc from a "foreign offensive" revealed that the Bank of France had returned portions of the loan used to bolster up the exchange. The credit, however, is still available for future use, if necessary.

The decision of French interests to allow the franc to take its course has resulted in a reaction of more than 1 1-2 cents from the high level attained on the upward movement. Accently the currency has given evidences of stabilizing slightly above five cents. Except for a brief flurry of selling after the French elections, the volume of business has been relatively light.

WORKING FOR A NEW MEDICAL PRACTICE ACT

Hartford, May 20.—The Connecticut Homeopathic association in annual meeting today appointed Dr. Edward B. Hooker, of Hartford, a legislative committee "to act with committees from other medical societies, the Connecticut Chamber of Comerce, and professional and civic organizations, before the general assembly of 125 to secure a new medical practice act which will prevent return of the present conditions which are under investigation by a special grand jury."

Dr. Herbert A. Roberts, of Derby, the secretary in his report, blamed the state council of health for fairule of state medical societies to report lists of approved medical schools. He said that the state council year after year had failed to call attention of the secretaries of these societies to the provisions of the law.

MAYFIELD COMMITTEE HEARS OF KLAN ACTIVITIES

Washington, May 20.—Charges of Ku Klux Klan activities in the election of Senator Mayfield of Texas, particularly in reference to the use of money, occupied the attention today of the senate committee investigating the question. The use of Klan money in the 1922 elections was denied by N. N. Furney, cashier of the Imperial Palace, and by J. E. McQuinn, auditor and assistant cashier, and was asserted by J. Q. Jett of Whitepath, Georgia, a former klan employe.

Both Furney and McQuinn were emphatic in their statements that no klan money had been used, and Jett was equally positive that Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans, had turned $25,000 over to Furney for use in the Mayfield campaign. This Furney denied.

It was impossible for any klan money to be used at any time for any purpose without his knowledge, Furney told the committee, and Chairman Spencer at once interjected an inquiry as to whether the klan had expended any money in Texas. Directly or indirectly in the election of Senator Mayfield. Furney replied with an emphatic "No, sir."

Not only did Jett insist that Imperial Wizard Evans had given Furney money for use in the Mayfield elections, but he asserted that the klan "all the way down," were "stealing" klan funds, and that all employes were "grafting."

"Is there anything in your records or in any papers of your organization," asked Senator Neely, democrat, West Virginia, "that shows that the organization spent any money in the Mayfield campaign in Texas, either during the primary or general elections?"

"No, sir," McQuinn answered, "the organization did not spend a cent in those elections."

Repeated appeals were made to the committee by Mayfield's counsel to restrict the attorneys for Peddy in their examination into the affairs of the klan to matters relating to the Mayfield election. Despite the admonitions of Chairman Spencer to refrain from a general inquiry into klan affairs counsel for Peddy continued to delve into the accounts of the klan, and wound up the day by calling for further records.

Efforts to get into the record a disclosure of the number of members of the klan in Texas were frustrated by Mayfield's counsel but klan officials were permitted to testify that there are "between" 150 and 175 klan organizations in the state, and "maybe" more.

ANGRY CONGRESSMAN BECOMES BELLIGERENT

Washington, May 20.—Another near-fight developed on the floor of the house today when Representative Howard, democrat, Nebraska, refused to heed an appeal by Representative McClafferty, republican, California, to withdraw a demand for a quorum call. The Nebraska representative lurched forward with clenched fists toward the California member but several members intervened. McClafferty said later he had made no remark to which Howard could have taken exception, while the Nebraskan declined to discuss the incident.

WILLIMANTIC

As part of a business methods committee program carried out at the weekly session of the Willimantic Rotary club Tuesday noon, August E. Greene spoke in a most interesting manner on "The Progress of manufacturing." Tracing the development of industry in general from the beginning down through the domestic age to the present manufacturing era, Mr. Greene held the undivided attention of his audience. Clifford W. Oat, former manager of The Bulletin branch office in Willimantic was given a rousing welcome as he entered the hall to be guest of the club for dinner. President Harry W. Standish was in charge. Martineau, representing certain of the essentials of life, namely, teeth, throat, stomach and embalming, were organized as a quartet and pleased with a rendition of Let the Rest of the World Go By. At a suggestion of an outside party, President Standish read a communication in which it was recommended that, due to recent activities in his family the nickname now held by Millionaire Lou Kingsbury be changed to that of Grandpa Lou. This was voted done. As a gift from his new granddaughter Mr. Kingsbury passed around cigars to the smokers and lollypops to the "suckers." A grandfathers' quartet, consisting of L. A. Kingsbury, Fred D. Jordan, Frank M. Smith nad Charles W. Alpaugh sang I Want a Girl.

Two divorce cases were heard at the session of Windham county superior court held in this city Tuesday, Judge Frank D. Haines on the bench. The first was the contested divorce case of Mabel Wiley Kelly versus Leon Stanley Kelly. The latter is known as an instructor of physical culture and teacher of hygiene at boys camps. For several years a Mr. Kelly conducted a camp [illegible] at Crystal Lake, Eastford, and has conducted a school for boys at Woodstock. In this work he has been engaged in a number of places throughout the country during the past fifteen years.

Mrs. Kelly was the first witness. She testified that she was deserted by her husband in 1920. They had been married February 13, 1918, at St. James' Episcpoal church, New York city. She continued in social work in New Haven and Mr. Kelly went to Florida. Later both went to Crystal Lake, Eastford, where Mr. Kelly showed signs of being irrational. He would stay out until late at night sitting on rocks and did not seem to care for her companionship in the least. In May, 1920, she sent for her father to talk with her husband and the following month the latter left her.

She attempted to have him come back and he once wrote to her and said that he would return, but he never did. She is now engaged as instructor at Miss Bennett's school at Milburn, N. Y. During her married life she had always supported herself, having received nothing from her husband. George L. Wiley of New York, father of the petitioner, testified to being summoned by his daughter. In a two-hour talk with Mr. Kelly the latter told him he was sorry he had mistreated his wife but that he was so absorbed in the boys of the camp he could not seem to think of anything else. When he left the couple he thought that all matters had been settled, but within a month his daughter had been deserted.

Attorney Hoyt, of New Haven, counsel for plaintiff, announced that evidence for the plaintiff was all in with the exception of depositions from witnesses at the Bennett school at Milburn, N. Y. Mr. Kelly, the defendant, was not present in court. Judge Haines announced that before he would give his decision he would go over the depositions. The witnesses were not cross-examined by Mr. Kelly's attorney, Subin S. Russell of Putnam.

The divorce suit of Carl A. Stahnke vs Harrie J. Stahnke was heard and plaintiff was granted a decree on grounds of desertion. The father was made custodian of the three minor children, Carl B., 16; Florence 15, Frank 12 and Fred A., 8. The three youngest were placed in his charge.

The defendant was not opposed to the suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion but wanted reasonable time to visit with her children. The couple were married on May 1, 1907, and plaintiff was deserted by his wife on April 15, 1907. Mrs. Stahnke resided in Canterbury for a time and then returned to the town of Bethany where they had been married. James F. Coffee and Howard Rix, neighbors of plaintiff, testified in his favor. The eldest boy, Carl B., 16, plans not to live at home. The mother has the right to see the younger children but not at the home of the father. During July and August she must notify Howard A. Rix of Danielson, that she wishes to visit the children and he in turn must notify the father to bring the children to that place. Both father and mother must conduct themselves in such a manner as not to cause ill feeling between the children and either of the parents. The court emphasized these instructions.

Court was adjourned until this (Wednesday) morning at 10 a. m.

JEWETT CITY

About two hundred men from Griswold will be benefited to a greater or less extent by the passing of the bonus bill. It is doubtful if among all those who entered the service from this town there will be any two whose adjusted compensation will be the same.

The passing of the measure called forth a wide difference of opinion among local veterans, and served to show that not all are strictly in its favor.

Not a few local men are at the present time keeping up the war risk insurance, which they took out upon entering the service.

In all these cases, the amount they felt as though they were able to continue has been converted into 20 year endowment policies. Some local men included in this latter class, are wondering today just what, if any bearing or effect the proposed policies to be given by the terms of the bonus bill will have upon the risks they already hold.

It is doubtful if any 200 veterans who will become the holders of the new government policies, will be found to have covered a wider varying range of service than those from Griswold. The men from this town went everywhere, and made favorable showing whereever called, from the actua trenches in France to the many wartime duties on this side of the Atlantic.

Some fine local sentiment was expressed Tuesday, when a Jewett City soldier, says he dislikes to see patriotism commercialized, or money paid as a bonus, to any man who got away with a whole skin. Yet many believe here, that the as yet unpaid economic handicap, which many a Griswold boy had to suffer, will receive partial recognition by the benefits of the bonus.

The Jewett City boys who marched off to the wars proved themselves to be no inferior grade of patriotic, neither are they now government paupers. Yet some gave over fine positions, while others lost educational advantages, which are actual conditions they never can recall Botanies class it among the eastern New England flowers, and say that long periods of years may mark the difference in times when it may occur in well known habitats. Its peculiarities exist in its hollow stem, and its leaves, which are repeatedly three-forked, until they resemble on the water nothing more than a mass of floating hair. From finding more for 30 years, Miss Adams discovered this secluded pond with one end yellow with its strange blossoms.

Gilbert Miner, adjutant of Orville La Flamme post, American Legion, received Tuesday from the Bureau of Naturalization an appeal to help look up any veterans of the World war, who live in Jewett City, that have failed to get their naturalization papers, being held for them at the bureau in Washington.

These defenders were naturalized in camps, during the mobilization, and in courts throughout the country, while the military units were being transferred from the mobilization quarters to the actual theatre of war. The government states, that it is of utmost importance that these men now receive evidence of their citizenship.

Mr. Miner will give the matter his attention, and asks that if a comrade knows of such cases the importance of this request be made known. Without tangible evidence of naturalization the husband, the wife or the widow would have difficulty in proving American citizenship.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PALACE THEATRE

Among the numerous actors now appearing on the screen, Alan Hale, perhaps, holds the most unique position. Mr. Hale is what he terms a "regenerative heavy." He is neither a villain, nor a romantic leading man, neither an old character type nor a school boy type. He is, peculiar though it may seem, a composite of all of them and still quite different. Seldom has Hale ever been required to wear a wig or a beard, or even exaggerate the lines of his face yet he has played miners, aristocrats, knights, Swedish, Austrian, German and English types and business men. In Robin Hood he was a knight, in The Covered Wagon he was a very typical Westerner, in Main Street he played a Swedish character.

How many wives who wonder why their husbands turn to drink or other women stop to think that they themselves may have driven them to it? Constance Talmadge asks the question. It isn't often that a woman can be brought even momentarily to consider this question from the man's point of view. But Connie has just had an impressive lesson during the filming of some of the episodes of Dulcy, her filmization of the Broadway stage success.

In Dulcy Constance Talmidge plays a wife who would drive many a husband to the lunatic asylum. And all because she insists on trying to help her husband with his business.

"Dulcy," whom I play in my new picture, "is a wife who insists on mixing in, despite her husband's pleas, just when he is making a bluff for big stakes. She means well, but her mistakes nearly drive her husband and the others involved to the madhouse. Wives should respect the privacy of their husband's business affairs."

Dulcy was directed for Producer Joseph M. Schenck by Sidney Franklin and is a First National picture. It will be shown at the Palace theatre commencing tomorrow for three days.

The adaption is by John Emerson and Anita Loos. Jack Mulhall is Miss Talmadge's leading man in Dulcy, and the supporting cast includes also Claude Gillingwater, Johnny Harron, May Wilson, Anne Cornwall, Frederick Esmelton, Andre de Beranger, Gilbert Douglas and Milla Davenport.

"All quarrels can be avoided if your husband will do just as you say." With this philosophy, Helen Blake settled merrily into her first year of matrimony in the smart suburban house that Richard had built for her. But Richard had a balky streak and he hadn't lost his eye for a pretty ankle and a seductive gown, even when they didn't belong to his wife. The matrimonial engine started missing fire with Helen at the wheel, and—Well, see it for yourself. It's all in Don't Doubt Your Husband the newest Metro picture starring Viola Dana, opening here tomorrow. Nobody who's married or who thinks of getting married should miss it. Harry Beaumont, who directed Beau Brummel for Johnny Barrymore, has scored another triumph with this picture, and Miss Dana has one of the merriest roles of her career.

Broadway Theatre.

Barrie Oliver, appearing at the Broadway theatre the last three days of this week with his revue, including five dainty girls whom he calls his "Mississippi Misses," is a young man who, denying any ambition to become Rudolph Valentino's rival, might nevertheless be a logical successor to the sheik if one is to count "fan mail," or consider the opinions of many fair ladies of the land.

Other acts scheduled are as follows: Edward, Blum, the boy with the sticks; the popular couple, Gordon & Rica, comedy vaudevillians; Ruth Day in Moments of the Day; and Brown-ling and Roberts, blackface comedians.

Gowns, gowns and more gowns. You never saw so many and such beautiful creations in your life as are shown by Agnes Ayres in her role of a captivating designer of women's frocks, dinner gowns and what-not in her new Paramount picture, Bluff, a Sam Wood production in which she is featured with Antonio Moreno, at the Broadway theatre starting tomorrow.

There's a pleasing theme running all through, of course, and there's bright comedy, a bit of gripping pathos and a dash of old-time gripping melodrama, too, with Miss Ayres and Tony doing more finished work than in either The Heart Raider or The Spanish Dancer.

Opening New Studio.

Mary Dawson Sullivan after an absence of several years has returned to her native city and opened the Laurel View Studio, Room 410, Disco building, for an exclusive line of millinery and art novelties. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Representatives of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company and of the Crystal Water company will appear before the state highway commissioner in Hartford today (Wednesday) to discuss phases of the undertaking of laying high pressure gas mains of the lighting company along the state highway from Morin avenue at the northerly line of the borough to Elmville, where the new mains run along the same side of the state highway as do the mains of the water company, which recently instituted injunction proceedings that has since held up the work of putting in the gas pipes. The water company mains are at a lower level than it is proposed to lay the gas mains, but in close proximity to them.

Conferences have been going for a week or more between representatives of the interested corporations, and today's meeting with the state highway commissioner at Hartford will be another of these.

While these conferences have been under way work on the new line has been abandoned temporarily. It is indicated that there is a prospect of an early adjustment of the differences and resumption of laying the new mains, which are to run between Danielson and Putnam.

On the state highway between Danielson and Wauregan, near where what is known as the Atwod brook crosses the highway, a dead doe was found early Tuesday morning. The matter was promptly reported to Chief John McFarland here, he, in turn, reporting the matter to County Game Warden Charles Letters of Putnam.

Mr. Letters promptly came here to investigate the matter. He found the doe, which had two [illegible] and a hole gouged in one [illegible]. Evidence seems fair to conclude that the animal had been struck by an automobile while crossing the state highway, some time during Monday night. The carcass was in such poor condition that Warden Letters turned it over to a farmer living in the vicinity.

Death came Tuesday morning to Mrs. Bridget Kelley, [illegible] for more than half a century resident of the West Side. Mrs. Kelley had been seriously ill only since last Friday, the date of the death of her son Stokes Daniel Cooney, with whom she made her home for years. Her death came as a shock and a surprise to the many who had known her during her long residence in Danielson.

Mrs. Kelley was the widow of Michael Kelley. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Mary Bedard, wife of Mutty Bedard, of the West Side. Mrs. Kelley was a native of Ireland. She was one of the oldest members of St. James' parish.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Mrs. Arthur Lesperance was held from her home in Goodyear with services at St. Joseph's church in Danyville at 9 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the funeral. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Edmund Marchand, Adelor Magrey, Alphonse Richards, Odilon Gamache, Arthur Allard and Geo. Lequerre. There were beautiful floral pieces. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

Benjamin F. Blodgett, 81, died Tues-day morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alvan M. Thompson. Mr. Blodgett was born in Monson, Mass., the son of Alden and Elvira Cady Blodgett. Surviving him are his widow, Roxanna Bragg Blodgett; three children, Mrs. Roy A. Bush of Worcester, Albert A. Blodgett of New York, and Mrs. Alvan M. Thompson of Danielson. There are three grandchildren, Helen B. Bush, Henrietta and Ruth Thompson and a sister, Mrs. Julia Lovell of Warren, Mass.

Funeral services for Benjamin F. Blodgett will be held Thursday at eleven o'clock at the home of Alvan M. Thompson. Committal service at Pine Grove cemetery, West Brookfield Mass., [illegible].

Announcement was made here Tues-day that Mrs. Evelyn Spencer, who for the period of one month is in the service of the Connecticut State Fish and Game commission, will be at the assembly hall of the high school in Putnam Wednesday afternoon, May 28, to give a lecture pertaining to the value of fish as a food and a demonstration of cooking fish after the most approved and improved methods. All of the women of the town of Killingly and other nearby towns are being invited to attend this meeting, which is to be at 3 p. m. standard time. Mrs. Spencer is an expert in her line and what she has to say and the demonstration she is to give will be at the expense of the state and for the benefit of all interested in becoming familiar with the preparation of fish for the table. Last week, at a demonstration Mrs. Spencer gave in Hartford, 1,200 were in attendance, and it is hoped to arouse at least approximate interest in her visit to this section of the state. Her time being so limited, she will not be able to come to Danielson to give a demonstration.

Thomas Beckett has been named as chairman and Ira A. Warren, Arthur Rianville, Joseph Burton and Louis A. Woisard are other members of the committee of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, to make arrangements for the big event the post has arranged for May 31, when a "Forty and Eight" will be instituted here, bringing representatives of the Legion from many parts of the state, as told in The Bulletin Tuesday. Thirteen members were received at the meeting, increasing the roll of the post to 174. Commander Pelletier and Adjutant Reardon of Oscar Swanson post of North Grosvenordale attended the meeting, which was an exceptionally interesting one.

It is not often that heaters and other means of warming houses by burning coal and wood are in use as late as this in the spring, but a drop of the temperature into the 50's during Tuesday brought this situation about.

Twenty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Lambert gathered at their home on Railroad street for a May basket party. A beautifully made basket laden with fruit and candy was presented Mr. and Mrs. Lambert. A feature of the evening was the shadowgraphs conducted by Mrs. Clara Fisher of Worcester, a friend of the family and a novel entertainer. Ice cream and fancy cakes were served. Dancing was one diversion of the evening and games were played. The party included visitors from Central Village, Abington, East Killingly, Putnam and Worcester.

As was to be anticipated, friends of the bonus measure were jubilant Tuesday upon reading of its passage through the senate over President Coolidge's veto. Many former service men here favor the bonus measure, but they are not unanimously for it. There also appears to have been a division of opinion among civilians as to whether the measure should have been enacted into law, but the result has been accepted gracefully by those opposed; that is, in about every instance that has come to attention.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. A. L. Cundall is to have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home on Maple street for a meeting.

May kept up its chill and gloomy record Tuesday by turning in another rain storm that had its inception in the northeast.

June 12 is the date set for the graduation of public schools in the eighth grades of schools in the town of Killingly. Graduating exercises are to be held in the town hall.

Today (Wednesday) is the final day for paying town taxes. Although Tax Collector James R. Walsh has received a large proportion of the money due the town there are numbers of delinquents, as usual.

Preparations are being made to oil certain streets in the borough, as has been done each spring for several years past, through arrangement with owners of abutting property.

N. A. Jordan, who last fall purchased the Rawson farm at Elmville, has greatly improved the property and now is engaged in setting out fruit trees, berry plants and otherwise preparing to make it especially productive.

Clayton Wright of Elmville was engaged Tuesday in closing the sale of his farm place at Elmville to Moosup parties. Mr. Wright said he expects to remain in town.

Only a few days remain for handing in lists of taxable property in the borough, in accordance with a notice the borough assessors have given some time since.

Following the mass at St. Mary's church over a thousand people took a last farewell of the pastor whom they had known for over fifteen years and for whom they mourned.

The Westerly session of the superior court for Washington county opened Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, with Justice Edward W. Blodgett on the bench, before a jury which it took practically all day Monday to empanel, with Walter S. Price, of Westerly, as foreman. Dunn of Westerly, associated with him.

"I understood you knew Mr. Fisher before the night you saw him," said Mr. Cianciarulo.

"No."

Mr. Cianciarlo read Mr. Way's testimony on this point as given in the district court at Kingston. He then asked: "Do ou know the defendant here?"

"I do now. I was introduced to him this morning. That was the first time I've saw him."

LIABILITY AUTO INSURANCE.

Massachusetts, along with other states, has been much concerned with the number of automobile fatalities and the increasing dangers of its highways. A strenuous campaign for greater safety has been conducted by its registrar of motor vehicles, which campaign has not had clear sailing, having encountered more obstacles that ought to have been expected.

In the Massachusetts legislature at the present time there is a bill which would make it necessary for every automobile owner to carry liability insurance. This would mean that some protection would be afforded for the injured person in case an accident happened, whereas without such insurance no chance of recovery would exist in a great many instances. In the lower house of that legislature the idea has gained approval. What will be the decision in the senate awaits developments.

The contention is of course that if each one who owns a car is forced to buy insurance he will be brought to realize his responsibility and strive to bring about greater safety. The legislation would add an expense to the motorist and there might not be as many broken down machines on the road if insurance was required.

On the other hand there is no certainty that the forced buying of insurance would develop any greater safety. It is to be remembered that it was only a short time ago that a fatal accident occurred at Norwalk, it is believed, when the driver had previously boasted about his recklessness and refused to drive more careful because he was insured.

The need is for decreasing that large amount of irresponsibility that is to be found on the highways. Whether insurance that is compulsory would do that is a question. But whether it would, or not, there is good reason for believing that some protection should be afforded the other fellow in case of accidents for which the irresponsible are to blame. If everyone is obliged to carry liability insurance those injured and those whose property is smashed up would be in a position to recover.

THE JOHNSON RELEASE.

Senator Hiram Johnson of California has released the delegates pledged to him as candidate for the republican nomination for president. It is true that the number was so small as to be insignificant but his action is in keeping with what the showdown calls for. In fact Senator Johnson might well be the one to make or second a motion for making the Coolidge nomination unanimous by acclamation. He couldn't control that handful from Wisconsin that is for LaFollette but otherwise he is the sole one who has insisted upon being shown that the republicans of the country are strongly and enthusiastically for Calvin Coolidge.

Senator Johnson might have held to his course and insisted upon making all the trouble possible in the Cleveland convention. It would have been grossly unwise to have done such a thing, but his campaign was founded upon nothing any better. In spite of repeated evidence, at the very start, from states where he felt the greatest confidence, that he was not the man wanted, it was only after it had been demonstrated that he had absolutely no chance that he threw up the sponge and acknowledged the corn when his own state turned him down.

His repudiation is sufficient without holding the 15 delegates or so to their promise. He has taken the right attitude in releasing them, and it would be still more to his credit if he would announce his acceptance of the party's verdict and declare that he was going into the fight to see that the republican ticket is carried through to success. His action in releasing his delegates might give that impression but for the attitude which he is maintaining in the senate toward the administration. There he is and has been doing his best to aid and comfort the radicals and the democrats in their alliance, regardless of what happens to the country.

In notifying his delegates that they need not stand by their pledges he is to be commended but he has gone only part way. He has not as yet fully accepted the verdict of the republican party in primaries and conventions.

DEBT SETTLEMENT.

No decision has as yet been reached concerning the new premier of France. That there will be one seems certain, and none is more prominently mentioned than Edouard Herriot. It doesn't appear to be a case where he is enthusiastically anxious to assume the responsibilities, but from the change which is indicated by the recent election he seems to be the logical man to take hold of the reins and guide the affairs of the nation.

Though he hasn't consented, since perhaps the time hasn't arrived for a clear cut decision, he has been making known some of his views, and among them is to be found his commitment to the payment of the French debt to the United States. This is a subject that has received no little discussion ever since the British debt settlement was arranged. France has never been regarded as a country that would repudiate such a debt, but it has not indicated an eagerness to come to a settlement. France may well be said to be in no condition to pay any such sum of money, but there have been repeated instances when that point has been countered by referring to large expenditures in other directions.

From what Herriot has said it can be believed that should he become premier he would make the debt adjustment one of his early moves. He understands the value that would be attached to French credit through such an arrangement. As long as France intends to adjust it some time the sooner it can be done the better for all concerned. When he talks about the attitude this country would take and expresses the hope that we would be reasonable, he understands how much more favorable the arrangement is certain to be when the debtor nation furnishes the inspiration.

A settlement of the European problems through the Dawes plan would place France in a more favorable position, but the desirability of debt adjustment is one that may well interest all nations, whether large or small.

POOR SPORTS.

There are those who lose their heads completely among those who should be considered good sports as among others. It is only on that ground that the conduct of the gathering in Paris when the American rugby team defeated the French team in the Olympic contest can be explained.

When an international contest is arranged it is to be expected that the winner will be shown the same respect whatever nation he happens to represent provided he plays fair. While the French fans may be desirous that their favorites should win, that doesn't justify them in hissing those who prove themselves superior. Perhaps they would be unwilling to accord them the same amount of enthusiastic applause as would be the case if their own representatives were victors but there is no justification for rowdy tactics.

Wherever such demonstrations take place, whether in this country, France or elsewhere, it reflects bad sportsmanship, and it retards rather than helps the good feeling and fellowship that should accompany international contests.

It is always conceded that the home team can be expected to get the benefit of the crowd's sentiment, but that doesn't justify disorder. When the representatives of various nations gather to test their ability in various ways it is to be expected that the best will win. Otherwise there would be no such contests. Favoritism may not be hidden but it should not be allowed to antagonize the winners. When such manifestations do appear it cannot be believed that it represents the best element of the sporting fraternity, but rather that element where fairness gets too little respect. Such displays nevertheless hurt

NEW INVENTIONS.

It was not many years ago that talking over the telephone was considered a wonderful thing, and it was because nothing of the kind had been done before. It has been greatly developed since that time until it is possible to talk great distances by wire.

With as much, if not more, surprise there came the wireless and the radio which is yet in its infancy, though great strides have been made with it since first brought out.

Now comes the announcement and demonstration that pictures can be sent over telephone wires and reproduced at the receiving end within a few minutes. This is the result of an idea which has received long study, but which has apparently been brought to the point where there is no doubt about its success. Results which have been shown are convincing, and the surprise is even greater than that attending the automatic printers

All of these developments clearly show that scientific development is not standing still in this country. New Ideas are being advanced and perfected every day. Distance has been all but eliminated, it is possible to hear what a speaker in a far off city is saying and now pictures are being obtained by wire in the satisfying of the wild scramble for speed.

There hasn't been such a thing as halting in the past and it is not to be expected that there will be in the future. Science is constantly moving forward and that which is not obtainable today may be just around the corner and be available tomorrow. Advancement is constant and only perseverence is apparently needed to reach the sought for goals.

EDTORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: How the ears of the weatherman must be stinging!

When LaFollette talks about running on a third ticket he must rate himself higher than Roosevelt.

Many people act as if they were afraid the divorce mills would go on short time because of a lack of business.

May has offered little encouragement but the strawhat season has opened with a liberal number of patrons.

Perhaps the granddaughter of the oil king who was arrested for driving 29 miles an hour was trying to get 29 miles on a gallon.

There's no use in sympathizing with congress for the bad impression it has made upon the country. It has put its own head in the noose.

Long Island is to have nine grade crossings eliminated which means that the reckless will be restricted in the number of places where they can tempt death.

Picking dandelion blossoms and swatting the flies is intended to decrease the number of each in the future. But who will be able to prove it by the census report?

Some in the house considered the president's veto of the bonus bill an insult. Why, of course! Who should dare to interfere with a political grab that will squeeze four billions or more out of the people!

HAPLESS REFORMER

"When you girls wake up to what you have done," began the critical man severely as the fair creature before him nonchalantly to use the contents of her vanity box with expertness and dispatch, "you'll throw all that truck into the lake and just about sob yourselves to death!"

"Dont you think it improves us?" asked the fair young creature.

"Mebbe so," admitted the critical man, "but I don't know that that's anything to boast about. Most improvements aren't.

"Nothing since the introduction of the automobile and jazz has contributed so much to that restless, dissatisfied feeling as has the plucked eyebrow.

"The attenuated eyebrow pleases neither its wearer not the individual gazing upon it. Susie Jones' eyebrow is precisely and exactly the same as the eyebrow adorning Milly Smith, and Milly Smith's looks so identical with the one Genevieve Boggs has on that the observer says, 'Oh, hang! Who cares for eyebrows anyhow?' And lashes—well, if 10,000 girls insist on sticking their eyelashes full of the same brand of black paste, 10,000 sets of eyes will have the same enhanced glitter.

"The modern man goes to a dance and he might just as well stay home and look at one photograph of a girl through a kaleidoscope, because when he looks around at the party he sees 100 replicas—beautifully shiny, perfectly marcelled hair, exquisitely caught in by nets, so that not one strand straggles, and most of it even parted on the same side—then, arched brows, long, blackened lashes, carmined cupids, bow lips, curved rouged cheeks, small white noses. And the same long, thin arms and lank stringbean shapes floating around on the same silken ankles and slippers!

"Why, I give you my word that there have been times when if a girl had wandered in with natural eyebrows, not even brushed in shape, a shiny nose and some scolding locks at the back of her neck, and who was about 20 pounds overweight, the concerted whoop of relief from the assembled gentlemen which would have gone up would have taken off the roof.

"No woman ever cherished the heirloom diamonds the way you girls cherish your vanity cases, and if one of you ever got wrecked on a desert isle and found her powder and rouge hadn't landed with her, she would dive back into the cruel surf with a long, low moan of pain. The night I took Abalona Flakes to the Sques-Gee club dance she halted with one foot out of the car, a look of utmost horror on her lovely countenance. 'Jasper!' she gasped, 'I've left my vanity case back home! For goodness sake, speed up the car and turn around!'

"'We're late now,' I objected. 'Do you hafta have it? Isn't there powder in the dressing room? And, anyhow, your face looks fine!'

"'Do I need it!' she repeated in the tone a mother would use if some heartless person asked her if she really liked her child. 'Why, I absolutely have to have it! I haven't touched my face since I left home a half hour ago, and that stuff in the dressing room is not the shade I use!'

"'Why, they need their vanity cases themselves, you poor fish!' she cried.

"So I gave it up and drove her back home, and—say, she purred like a kitten when she got her hands on that bunch of face falsifier. Her relief was just beautiful to see! A bridegroom I know about just got mad and walked off when his bride held up the wedding an hour and a half searching for her vanity case to apply the final touches, and after a few more men assert themselves that way you'll see the sense in my remarks—what's the matter?

"I can't find my lipstick! the fair young creature said distractedly, upsetting all the cushions and magazines and tearing around quite madly. 'My lips look perfectly dreadful—get up; maybe you're sitting on it—oh dear!'

"Why, they don't even hear you when you talk!" cried the critical man in great astonishment. "Well, I did my best, anyhow!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Edouard Herriot, as leader of the Radical Party, has become an outstanding figure in French politics as a result of the recent elections which gave to the Extreme Left a majority in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Herriot is a native of Troye. After a brilliant career as a student he became a teacher, and was for some years professor at the Lycee of Nantes, and afterward at the Lycee of Lyons. He then stood for election to the town council of Lyons, and, being successful, soon attained much power. In 1906, he was made mayor of this, the second city of France. As mayor M. Herriot always tried to remove his administration from the sphere of politics, and economical progress was his great aim. He was organizer of the great international exhibition which opened in Lyons just before the war broke out. In 1913 he was elected senator from the Rhone department, and in the Briand cabinet he held the post of Minister of Public Works.

ELIMINATING WASTES

In a laudable effort to teach its employees the value of economy, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation has issued a bulletin pointing out how items usually considered unimportant cost the corporation many thousands of dollars each year and thereby affect the progress of the workers themselves. In calling attention to various items of needless waste, the point is made that "waste is one of the things that is preventable without hardship. In the long run it is not always the other fellow who foots the bill. Waste and wages are both paid from the same pocket-book."

The co-relationship of waste elimination and individual self-interest are often not realized. Yet in every business organization the success of the company or firm means greater success for each individual on its payroll.

Eliminating waste in trivial matters not only contributes to the direct financial advantage of the company, but, what is of still greater importance, it lifts morale and heightens efficiency.

The Bethlehem Corporations bulletin points out some of the items often wasted and what the company paid for these items last year, as follows: electric light bulbs, $200,000; shovels, $30,000; windows, $25,855; brooms, $17,255; paper towels, $14,730; soap, $8,161. The same bulletin states that a wasted shovelful of coal means the loss of 4c; a piece of tin plate 5c; 100 pounds 4x4 billet, $2.00; brick 5c to 33c.

Thrift does not mean merely saving one's money. It means also economy in the trivial materials of routine life. To waste these, even though the amount involved is very small, is unjust to others as well as to ourselves.—American Society for Thrift.

HAMSUN OFTEN WENT HUNGRY

Knut Hamsun could not make a living for himself. He tried many jobs in different parts of the world, was discharged more than once, became a tramp and finally worked his way back home to stay.

Born in Gudbrandsal, Norway, in 1860, he was clerking in a country store when 15 years old and dreaming of the books he would write. At 18 he used all his savings to bring out two works that did not stir even a ripple on the ocean of fame. Then he came to America to be a minister, but barely succeeded in keeping soul and body together by doing all kinds of manual labor. Returning to Norway, he could not make a living, and was back in the United States in 1886. Out of pocket and hungry, he was given a job as conductor on the old Halsted Street horse car line in Chicago. With a wonderful memory for the names of books and authors, he could not remember the names of streets, and passengers were wrathful when they missed their corners. Absorbed in a book, he frequently forgot to jerk the rope.

Discharged, he became a tramp, worked as farmhand in North Dakota and Minnesota, and sometimes lectured.

Shipping from New York on a Newfoundland fishing smack, he worked for three years on the fishing banks before he made his way back to Norway, where he attracted some attention by writing a book on Intellectual Life in North America. He tried politics, journalism and farming. Finally he began his brilliant series of novels. He told of the cruelty of cities and of crushed souls and of the healing virtues of life in the country. Hunger was his first story to win widespread interest. His works were translated into Russian, and into many other languages. Then fame and comparative riches came swiftly.

When he was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1920, his novels had been translated into 23 languages, and, at 60, he had long been Norway's greatest living author.

Stories That Recall Others

Margaret, aged ten, could not get to sleep

Why? Because her father snored.

She rolled and tossed and finally in desperation went to her father's bed and shook him lustily.

The Community's Representative.

An old timer in politics tells the story of a man although grossly incompetent was elected to a responsible office.

An attorney had occasion to visit the official's office, coming from out of town. The official had increased his incompetency with the aid of liquor and the attorney had a hard time trying to find out what he wished to know. Exasperated the attorney said: "I don't understand how the people ever put a man like you in office."

THE KURILES

The Kurile Island group, the first foreign territory which the American round-the-world fliers will reach after leaving Attu, the westernmost Aleutian Island, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Applying a little imagination to the world map," says the bulletin, "one might fancy the chains of islands that stretch from Alaska to Asia and down that continent's east coast to be a continuous gigantic popcorn string like those hung on Christmas trees. Attached to one 'limb' at Alaska the string is festooned across to a Kamchatkan 'twig,' and is then allowed to make a second graceful loop to another anchor point in northern Japan. This second festoon—almost a perfect arc of a circle—is the Kurile chain.

"The Kamchatkan peninsula is Russian territory. No arrangements were made with the Russian government in regard to the world flight; therefore the fliers will not touch at Petropaviovsk, a real port and town on the Kamchatkan coast, but will fly directly from the almost uninhabited Aleutians to the equally sparsely peopled northern Kuriles. The Kurile group, and therefore Japanese territory, begins less than ten miles from the southern end of Kamchatka; and the fliers will doubtless sight the grass-covered sand-hills that mark this projection of the continent of Asia before they begin their southarwd flight over the stepping stones of the Kuriles.

"Shimushu, the northernmost of the Kuriles, differs from all its fellows in not being mountainous. It is a small island, not more than ten miles in length and perhaps seven miles wide, made up of undulating hills and swampy valleys covered with grasses and scrub trees.

"Five miles farther south lies Paramushiri, second largest of the islands, where the airmen will make their first stop on foreign land. This is roughly 50 miles long by ten wide and is a striking contrast to the first Kurile to be encountered. It is thickly studded with mountains, some of them nearly 7,000 feet high, one of them an active volcano from which steam is ever rising. Streams furrow the island, and in season salmon are numerous. Some fishermen and canners journey to Paramushiri in the fishing season, but only a handful of people reside on the island permanently.

"As the aviators fly southward on the next leg of their journey they will pass over island after island which will be small editions of Paramushiri—mountainous, snow, rocks, scrub-covered valleys and now and then a steaming volcanic cone. Kurile mythology is said to have originated from a Russian word meaning 'to smoke.' The Japanese name for the Kuriles is Chishima or 'Thousand' meaning innumerable islands. On a number of these islands are the remains of deserted fortifications abandoned when the fight against cold in her bleak northern aspect proved too hopeless.

"Uruppu, the largest and most valuable of the Kuriles, will mark the second stop of the fliers in the chain. This island is more than 100 miles long and about 15 miles wide. It is close to the southern end of the group where nature's kindlier mood is indicated by its dense forests and its permanent settlements. About 1500 people reside on the island and it is divided into four government provinces. Bettobu Bay, where the flying boats will come to rest, is on the Asiatic side of the island protected, from the Pacific swell.

"The Kuriles as a whole are useless as a place for the mariner either of the water or the air. There are many half sunken rocks off shore while treacherous currents flow between the islands with each flood and ebb tide. Fogs are frequent and gales may blow at any season.

"The chain has been a sort of 'wooden nutmeg' to Japan. The Japanese of the Dark Ages, content with their local affairs, did not know of the islands' existence, except perhaps the southernmost two or three.

"When Russian adventurers reached Kamchatka early in the 18th century they pushed down into the Kuriles in search of furs and later worked their way eastward to the Aleutians. When the Japanese began to take an interest in the world outside their principal islands they found the northern part of the Kuriles under Russian control. The same thing had happened in Sakhalin, a much more valuable territory. In 1875 Japan was induced by Russia to trade her rights in Sakhalin for Russian rights in the Kuriles. Japan has felt ever since that she was imposed upon in this transaction, and in this feeling some observers see the reason for the rapid building up of the modern Japanese army and navy.

"The southernmost Kurile Island, Kunashiri, is just off the coast of the northernmost principal island of Japan, Hokkaido, and is more nearly a part of Japan proper than the other islands of the group. When they fly over the island the aviators will again come in touch with civilization as represented by farmhouses and telegraph lines. Above Hokkaido they will again see a land patched with fields and lined with railroads and can look upon the longest uninhabited stretch of their route as behind them."

Items in which there are changes from last year are the following:

In the water department the interest item is $25,656.25 this year as compared with $26,887.50 last year and there is an item of $5,000 for first instalment of 1923 bonds which was not in the estimates last year.

The finance department is calling for $7,400 for salaries and tax commission as compared with $6,500 last year but the $9,000 asked for court house expenses is $2,000 less than last year. Election expenses are to be $3,800 which is $1,500 more than last year. The item of $36,500 for interest is $1,000 less than last year. There is a new item of $2,500 to take up the traffic beacon note for that amount. NO DEFENDANT APPEARS IN CONTESTED DIVORCE

Judge John G. Booth, in the superior court here, Tuesday morning, started to hear the divorce suit of Hertha Lancaster Norton, of New York, against Harold H. Norton, of Groton, which was on the contested list, but as there was no appearance for the defendant, the case was continued after it had been partly heard and will go on the uncontested list later.

The couple was married June 17, 1919, and divorce was sought on the ground of intolerable cruelty between June 1, 1922 and Aug. 4, 1923. Alimony and the custody of a four-year-old son and a 10-months-old daughter were asked for by the petitioner.

Mrs. Norton was the first witness. She told of their marriage in Groton and living with husband's mother from June, 1919, to January, 1920. Following that with her husband the witness went to New York to live where after a short time her husband became abusive, using both force and profanity. Following the residence in New York the witness again with her husband returned to Groton to live, then again he became cruel.

She lived with her husband's mother in Groton until July, 1922, when she went to Maine. Her husband then came and asked the witness to return with him which she did. From November, 1922, to April, 1923, he became more cruel. About three weeks before the second child was born her husband struck her and pushed her against a table as a result of which she had to undergo an operation. On July 3, 1923, the witness left him because of an argument and a girl living in Norwich.

Joan Francis told of being employed by Harold Norton and of boarding with him. The witness told of Mr. Norton's striking his wife and of his coming to Norwich to see the [illegible].

At this point the trial of the case was discontinued.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Plainfield, May 20—In a rather one-sided, uninteresting game here this afternoon the diamond squad of Plainfield High fresh from a victory over Norwich Free Academy, plastered another defeat onto Stonington High, with a score of 13-4. The Stonington team was far more outclassed than the score would show, the local boys having everything their own way from the first inning, and keeping the game well in hand. Belknap was on the mound for Plainfield, and pitched a good game, keeping the hits of the Stonington team scattered, and most of them being infield hits, which were readily snapped up by the snappy infield of the Plainfield team. Pupillo, who was on the mound for Stonington, although not being hit quite so frequently as Belknap, was hit harder, and most of the hits resulting in runs. The Stonington team was rather weak in the fielding department of the game, making several costly errors, the most noticeable series which Tyler singled in the eighth advanced around the bases, and scored on successive errors by the Stonington team. Tyler starred at bat for Plainfield, getting a triple, a double and two singles out of five times at the plate. Pupillo hit once for two bases and Main scored three times. The only Stonington boys. How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

How should infield play for the batter?

When a club faces a situation like this it is going to bunt. Consequently, the second baseman should pull over towards first so he can cover that bag in case the first baseman has to come in to field the bunt. This forces the shortstop to move over towards second to take a throw either from the pitcher, third baseman, or first baseman in case they field the bunt and have no possible chance of nailing the runner at second [illegible] on first. The first and third basemen and the pitcher should run in and get that bunt at all costs in order to throw the runner out at second. He is the man you want to get on this play. If you don't a long fly or a single will cost your team the game.

SIR GALLAHAD WILL NOT RACE EPINARD AGAIN

Paris, May 20—(By the A. P.)—Captain Jefferson Davis Cohn, owner of Sir Gallahad III which worsted Epinard in yesterday's match race at St. Cloud thinks the proposal of a revenge race for 500,000 francs is "absolute bumptiousness," he indignantly declared today.

"Under no circumstances," he said, "will I consent to any match for money. I have not been consulted in regard to this proposed return match and have received no challenge.

I think Sir Gallahad will not run again for three months. I have had him training since January 1 and he has had five races during that time. I cannot train such a nervous horse for any longer period of time."

BULKELEY LEAVES TODAY FOR THREE DAY TRIP

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 20—The Bulkeley baseball team will leave the school building this Wednesday morning by automobiles at 11 o'clock for Milford, where the strong and formidable Yale Preparatory school nine will be met on the diamond. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock at Milford and the Bulkeley squad which will consist of thirteen players besides the coach and manager, is expected to arrive in Milford at 1.30 o'clock. This game will be the first of three unusually hard games to face the State champions.

The next game on the Bulkeley schedule is with Springfield Technical High of Massachusetts. Instead of coming to New London after the contest with Milford, the Bulkeley squad will journey to New Haven and then to Hartford and finally to Springfield. The Bulkeley squad will spend the night in Springfield at the Clinton Hall hotel. On Thursday morning the Bulkeley team will hold a workout at the Eastern League diamond where the contest with Springfield Tech is to be staged. Batting practice and infield work will be the feature of the morning workout.

The game with Yale Prep is an unusually tough one. Annually the Rosenbaum institution has turned out a good team and a year ago had one of the best prep school teams in the country. So far this season a good record has been hung up by the Prep school team which is higher in its standard of athletics than the ordinary run of High school teams that oppose it. A year ago Milford had Anderson a pitcher that is now with the Yale freshmen. He has turned in some remarkable performances with the Yale fresh nine this year, pitching twenty-five scoreless and hitless innings against four of the best prep schools and college freshmen teams in the state of Massachusetts and Connecticut. Recently Goddard Seminary invaded the Yale premises and with Anderson on the mound for the Yale yearlings, the game went thirteen innings to a tie game 2-2. Anderson allowed but three hits during the entire thirteen innings and it was only his good pitching that gave the Yale freshmen a tie game. Yale Prep has a twirler that is almost as good as Anderson and with a slugging team behind him, the Bulkeley team will have no easy time in banging out a victory.

Bulkeley faces the inevitable this week—defeat. Yale Prep and Springfield Tech are two teams that are to be feared by any team and with the pitching situation not so good at Bulkeley as in some other school, it looks as though Bulkeley will meet a stronger team than it is this week. The seven straight victories that accompany the Orange and Black to Milford and Springfield will be broken. But on the other hand in case Bulkeley comes out on the winning end, there will be no stopping of the Connecticut interscholastic champions, this season.

No practice was held this afternoon due to the unfavorable weather. Pastel is certain to get the assignment for the game with Rosenbaum Prep and Daniels will work the game with Springfield Tech. Monall may get the assignment over Parisi for the Palmer Mass. game.

MISS HOLLINS CONTINUES TO PLAY BRILLIANT GOLF

Garden City, N. Y., May 20—Miss Marion Hollins, of Westbrook, L. I., former national champion who is staging a come-back, followed her easy qualifying victory with a decisive triumph today in the first round of match play for the women's metropolitan golf title at the Cherry Valley club. She disposed of Mrs. Albert McDonald, of the Home Club, by a margin of 8 and 7 in their 18-hole match.

Tomorrow Miss Hollins is expected to encounter a stiffer test in the second round against Miss Maureen Orcutt, school girl star of Haworth, N. J., who also won her first round match decisively from Miss Dorothy Clemsen, Scarborough, N. Y., 4 and 3. The only upset of outstanding importance in today's play was the defeat of Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, of Morristown, N. J., top-ranking metropolitan star, by Miss Elsie McMahon, of Scarborough.

Arrows vs. Valiants

The Arrows Baseball club will play the Valiant A. C. Sunday at the Lake street grounds. As both teams stack up evenly in fielding and hitting a good game is expected. The Valiants have not yet met defeat and are confident of winning Sunday. The Arrows were defeated at Taftville recently by a much older and experienced team by one run, but they expect to snatch a victory Sunday. Greene will pitch for the Arrows and Burns will do the backstop work. Shea or Jackson will do the hurling for the Valients and Mingo will catch.

The Axis Baseball team of New London would like to play any team averaging 16-18 years old in Norwich. We would like to arrange a game for this coming Sunday, May 25, at Norwich. For games write to Manager Norman King, 23 Whittlesey St., New London, Conn.

New York, May 20—A field of 3[illegible] golfers, all but 23 of whom are professionals, will compete [illegible] eastern and western qualifying tournaments for the national open golf championship, the United States Golf Association announced today. [illegible] more than the small army of mashie wielders that battled at Inwood, Long Island, last July for the 1923 title, which was won by Bobby Jones, youthful Atlanta amateur star.

This year's field is divided for sectional qualifying tests [illegible] time. Of the total entries [illegible] will contest for the 41 qualifying places allotted in the Eastern [illegible] at Worcester, Mass., May 27 and [illegible] while 156 will seek to emerge among the qualifiers in the western [illegible] at Oak Park, Ill., on the same dates. Ties for the last place in both cases also will be permitted to compete in the 72-hole championship round to be held June 5 and 6 at the Oakland Hills club, Birmingham, Mich. Jones is exempt from the qualifying play.

The entry ranks include practically all of the leading amateur and professional stars from all parts of the country, the only notable exceptions being Jess Sweetser and Francis Ouimet, former amateur titleholders, and Jim Barnes, 1921 open king. Barnes was among a score of players whose entries arrived after May 14 the closing date and were rejected by the Professional Golfers' Association which is in charge of the qualifying tournaments.

Of the amateurs, six are entered in the eastern section, including Max Maxson of Philadelphia, the national champion, and Jess Guilford, of Boston, former champion, while the 17 on the western list include Chick Evans, S. Davison Herron and Ira Couch of Chicago.

The 36-hole qualifying tests will be played on a basis of 18 holes daily. Starting at 9 a. m., the first western pair to get away will be James Lindsay, of Oak Park, and Al Espinosa, of Chicago, while in the east the starters will be Thomas Fazio, of Peekskill, N. Y., and John Gardner, of Middletown, Conn.

Among the pairings for the opening day of eastern qualifying [illegible] are Henry Cuici, Bridgeport, Conn., and Alex Smith, Groton, Conn.

NEW LONDON LIONS CLUB OUT FOR FIRST PRACTICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May [illegible] Airplanes may soar peacefully, but when the Lions roar look out. The Lions baseball players who have been kept in confinement during the long winter, are anxious to throw off their long winter sleep and get into action once again. So upon the request of Lion Phil Carney, who stated that this year's Lion's team would have little or no chance against the Norwich Lions club and other clubs in the nearby cities when they meet for the Lions championship, if they do not begin practice in preparation for their opening contest immediately. This short speech was delivered at the weekly luncheon at the Hotel Mohican this noon and immediately after it was delivered by the anxious Phil Carney, every one present at the luncheon but two, immediately volunteered their services for the Lions' cause.

Being swamped with applicants for the various positions, Lion Phil Carney set Friday night for the first practice session at Caulkins Park. After Phil Carney gets an idea on the material he has on hand, the Lions team of Norwich will be challenged for a game or a series of two out of three.

MISS WILLS READY TO BEGIN EUROPEAN CONQUEST

London, May 20—(By the A. P.)—Miss Helen Wills of California, who has come across seas to compete in the olympic and other international tennis matches this season, arrived at Southampton today on board the steamer Berengaria from New York.

The Berkeley school girl, who holds the American championship, made an instantaneous hit with the British ship news reporters, who have been busy regaling readers of London news papers with descriptions of her complexion, which is likened to that of an English schoolgirl, her gray eyes, her modest reserve and her eagerness to begin practice at Wimbledon this week.

"The first thing that strikes one about her is that not a single photograph that has been published in England does her striking beauty anything like justice," says a despatch from Southampton to the evening Standard. "No lovelier or more striking girl has ever been seen on the historic courts here."

Miss Wills put in two hours every morning and afternoon during the voyage across batting balls against the walls of the Berengaria's deck. It is expected here that she will enter some minor contests prior to the Wimbledon tournament.

Wheeler School Wins

Wheeler School, North Stonington, defeated Stonington High second team Monday afternoon on Wheeler's grounds by a score of 20 to 1.

The Wheeler team showed great improvement over its previous games batting the ball continuously and consistently, and taking advantage of the numerous errors made by their opponents. Thorp, who did the mound work for Wheeler, pitched a steady, strong game, allowing but one hit. A return game will be played in June.

Stafford Team After Games

The All-Stafford Baseball club has organized for the coming season and plans to play about twenty five games in Stafford Springs. This club has played in Norwich and Taftville and has always given satisfaction. The management would like to hear from any first clubs in this section desiring good fast baseball. Write John J. Lyons, manager, P. O. Box 586 Stafford Springs, Conn.

The Norwich Town baseball team accepts the challenge of the Baltic All-Stars for a game Saturday afternoon at 2:30 D. S. T. on the Norwich Town Green.

PLATFORM DRAFTED BY INDUSTRIALISTS

New York, May 20.—A platform of American industry, suggested to the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers tonight by a committee of more than 100 industrialists for adoption by the major political parties, called for the creation of an international court of arbitration free from entanglements of the league of nations.

Recalling the defeat of the league of nations proposal in the 1920 election, the platform endorsed the world court as the only means of "international cooperation, without compromise of national independence, to minimize the danger of war."

Other planks in the platform were:

Exercise of every possible power to insure conduct of public and private affairs on a high plane of honesty and morality.

Maintenance of the independence of the judiciary, especially the supreme court.

Recognition of the principle that placing the greatest load of taxation on a small class would result in impoverishment of a[illegible].

Retention of the transportation act to enable railroads to earn a fair return on their investments.

Retention of the present tariff law.

FRENCH AVIATOR'S PLANE WRECKED IN LANDING

Shanghai, May 20. (By the A. P.) The wreck of Captain Pelletier Doisy's airplane which was damaged when he landed here from Canton, on his flight from Paris to Japan, has disorganized his plans, pending advices from Paris. Officials are convinced however, that the flight will not be abandoned.

The flier might, however, be delayed indefinitely awaiting a new airplane from Paris, or he may possibly accept the use of a machine which General Ho Fung-Ling, military governor of Shanghai is reported to have offered.

The reception of Captain Doisy at the French club was converted into a scene in which laudation mingled with comiseration. The French consault general, M. Wilden, and the officials openly wept with Doisy and his mechanician. The disaster is attributed to a bad choice of a landing place and its adequate marking.

NEW YORK PATROL BOAT BRINGS SEIZED WHISKEY TO NEW LONDON

New London, May 20.—The government is determined to put a stop to the flow of liquor from the vessels, sail and steam, that are awaiting traffickers at Montauk Point. This evening a cargo of some 400 cases of Scotch whiskey was brought into port by a New York patrol boat which yesterday; brought in some 40 cases of Scotch. The liquor was seized in two shacks owned by two fishermen at Fort Pond Bay. The announcement of the seizure was made to the customs officials here this morning and Deputy Collector Comstock sent the New York patrol after the liquor. It was this evening at 8 o'clock when she returned, but she brought back the goods. The liquor's presence in the shacks was learned from patrol boats cruising about Rum Row, and then it was seized. Field glasses were used on the patrol to observe what was going on and these detected that liquor was being stored in the shacks. It is known that fishermen are taking much of the liquor that comes from the vessels in Rum Row and the story is that the fishermen take the liquor and place it in sacks so that if they are molested by government officials they can throw the liquor overboard and it will sink for liquor in cases does not sink, so the possessors of it are detected. The patrol boat left here at 10 o'clock this morning and was expected back before dawn, but was delayed in transferring the liquor from the shacks. It was not learned who the owners of the shacks are, nor was it disclosed whether they rented the privilege to store the liquor to others. The liquor seized is now in the basement of the customs house where 2,000 cases of bass ale and stout was deposited that was seized in transit via the Central Vermont railroad a few days ago. The 40 cases brought in by the patrol boat is also in storage at the customs house so that the volume of liquor here now is the largest that has been in storage since prohibition became effective.

New London, May 20.—Five persons, two men and three women, were in the police court this morning, for infraction of the rules that are to be regarded in the operation of automobiles. The infractions were not of a serious nature, but they were defiance of rules laid down in this city for the safety of all who manipulate cars. Edmund E. Darrow was arrested for turning his car around in a restricted area. He pleaded guilty reluctantly, for he claimed he was only technically guilty. The court allowed him to get away with that way of accounting for a positive violation of the city ordinance but he was given to understand that the next time he offended the penalty would be very different.

The funeral of Margaret Mortimer, widow of Owen McManus, was held this afternoon with a private service at her home, 26 Morse avenue. Rev. Frederick W. Haist, rector of the Seabury Memorial church, Groton officiated. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Stonington.

Mrs. William Sheehan and infant daughter of 17 Cliff street and Miss Hester Farrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Farrell, of 15 Linden street, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Frank B. Walker, wife of Manager Walker of the Hotel Mohican, is visiting her mother and sister in Boston.

Thomas E. Donohue and Mrs. Donohue, superintendent and matron respectively of Hillside home, who left for England a week ago, have arrived at Southampton, and will be absent from New London about six weeks.

Mrs. Mary E. Taylor of Brooklyn, N. Y., a former resident of New London, has arrived and will spend the summer with Mrs. David Quinn, 154 Green street.

Antone Longo (not the taxi driver) will have a bill to pay for damage to his Ford beach auto or suburban car of Philip Butler, a farmer, that will make a noticeable hole in his bank account. This evening at 7.30 on lower Bank street, Longo was driving north in a heavy Mack truck, a wrecking outfit with derrick, when something attracted his attention behind, and the Mack struck the Butler car a blow that drove it perhaps thirty feet and upon the sidewalk. The Ford was at the curbing and no car was approaching from either direction. The Butler automobile was filled with bottles of milk in pints and quarts in cases and there was a 20-gallon can well forward in the Ford. The crash broke the bottles and upset the can and milk was immediately flowing in a river from the Ford. The Ford brought up against a telephone pole and came to a stop with the spokes in the wheels broken and the car in a dilapidated condition. Longo stopped and gave his name to Butler. The noise of the collision was like the report of a cannon. Mr. Butler's little son had left the car or he might have been hurled against the pole. The accident was reported at the police station. Mr. Butler has been operating automobiles the past fourteen years. Last Sunday he had his first accident and now he has another and more serious one. Sunday Mr. Butler, in an Oldsmobile, was drawn up alongside the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium when a car rubbed against him and tore away the mudguard. The driver came back and made a settlement for the damage he had occasioned.

Chilton R. Cabot, of Montville, Mrs. J. S. Cousilick, of Saybrook, Mrs. Alexander Smith, of Groton, and Mrs. Edith Mary Schley, of Old Lyme, each was presented for parking cars on State street for a greater period than thirty minutes. Judgment was suspended in each case for 24 hours. The women were very frank in making statements to the court for each said she "just forgot" and left her car longer than she meant to.

Robert Finn, of Thompson court, was taken into custody early this morning by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Clarence Wells charged with the theft of a suit of clothes valued at $35 and $10 in cash from William N. Holt, a lodger at 32 Golden street. The case was continued to Saturday morning. Finn was ordered to furnish a bond of $300 for his appearance at that time, but being unable to obtain a surety on the bond, he was remanded to jail.

According to Holt, who is a printer in the employ of the Bingham Paper Box Manufacturing company, he had employed Finn at various times and meeting Finn on the street last night invited him to his lodging room. There, according to Holt, the couple had a drink or two of gin and after a brief time, Holt claims to have fallen asleep on the bed. When he woke Finn was missing and so were Holt's clothes and money. Holt went to the police station where he lodged complaint against Finn. Two hours afterward Finn was located on Bank street. Following his arrest Finn admitted having stolen the clothes and money and declared that he had sold the clothes at a Bank street pawn shop for $10. When arrested Finn had less than $6 in his possession.

Peter J. Terson was found roaming aimlessly about midnight on Broad street and declared that, in Williams Memorial park, he had been robbed of $27 and a gold-filled watch by sailors. The police gave little credence to Terson's story, for he had been drinking and there was no evidence to show that he had been robbed.

Terson was found near the corner of Cottage street, hatless and with bruises about his face and head. He was escorted to the police station by two young men and there Terson declared that he had been set upon by the sailors and relieved of his purse and money. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was assigned to the case and going to the park he found Terson's hat, a toupee, empty pocketbook, blank book and a bunch of keys near where Terson declared he had been seated. Also found there were two sailors asleep. They were taken to the police station, but easily satisfied the desk sergeant that they had not been implicated in the alleged robbery for before they knew what was whatted of them they declared that they had observed Terson in company with two youths a considerable distance from the park.

Terson is known to have been drinking from a bottle in the park earlier in the evening and is believed to have fallen and in that manner sustained his bruises and cuts. He is a barber by occupation. Before being sent to his home Terson admitted falsifying his statements.

Raymond Buckley, of Bayonne, N. J., a patient at Lawrence hospital, was discharged today.

An agreement has been filed for record a tthe office of the city clerk whereby the estate of Annie Hahn will dispose of the property consisting of a house and lot at 220 Huntington street to Simon Plattus, on or before June 24.

M. H. Clark, a chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base, has complained to the local police that a fountain pen was stolen from him within the past ten days. The pen is particularly valuable to Clark because of its having been a gift. It bears his initials and gold stars are worked in the surface of the barrel.

The funeral of Mrs. Gaetanino T. Pace, widow of Pasquale Pace, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, with Rev. William C. Fox, of Groton, deacon and Rev. John J. McGrath sub-deacon. The bearers were Andrew J. Collins, John Turello, Marion Palmetti, Rocco DiBiasi, Joseph Alferio and John Andriola. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth R. Huntley, wife of John B. Huntley, was held at her residence in East Lyme this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. P. S. Collins, of Flanders. Burial was in Flanders cemetery.

The funeral of William T. S. Tabor, formerly of Groton, where he was employed as a special mechanic by the New London Ship & Engine company, took place this afternoon at 5 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The body was forwarded to Eaton, Me., Mr. Tabor's former home, for burial.

Funeral services for Miss Hannah Jerome were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 258 Huntington street. Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. The bearers were Frank L. Alexander, Lawrence Perry, Lawrence Jerome and Prentice Alexander, of Waterford, and Charles Ogden and Frederick E. Damon, of New London. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

BOY OF EIGHT, FISHING, DROWNED FROM WHARF

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 20.—Danny Radcliffe, 8, step-son of Mrs. Knudsen, residing at 98 Tenth street, was drowned this evening from the Naumaug boat club wharf on the Thames river. The lad had been gone from the house an hour and a half and was fishing from the wharf. His stepmother became alarmed and sought for him through the police station. It was learned that he had been on this wharf fishing. Officer Ray was sent to investigate and found a fish line attached to the wharf. Pulling up the line it was attached to the boys arm and thus the body was recovered.

Tuesday night was Ladies' Night at Putnam Lodge fo Elks. Several hundred members and as many guests assembled in the lodge in Elks Block, Main street. The old order of arrangements was departed from this year and the supper was the first thing on the program.

In the lodge room attractively decorated tables were arranged for the young women guests. The men were served on the a la carte plan. The grill committee served an excellent lobster salad supper, beginning at eight o'clock.

Following the supper the party went to Music Hall on Livery street. Here the entertainment consisted of dancing, interspersed with seven acts of vaudeville. Music was furnished by Sammy Walsh's orchestra. At 11 o'clock the Elks' toast was given.

Another vein of gold has been discovered on the farm of Louis LaPoint Woodstock. It is said that the second vein is much richer than the first vein discovered but lies very near it. The aid of geologists is to be sought to determine the course of the vein. According to the owner of the mine he has been made an offer by financiers for his farm.

The junior prom of Woodstock academy held recently was the first of these school affairs in this end of the county. The hall was decorated with a profusion of flowers and greenery. Music was furnished by Frink's orchestra and ice cream and cake were served.

A. Von Flatern, for many years a N. Y., N. H. & H. freight conductor, was taken to the Peter Bent Brigham Memorial hospital in Boston this (Wednesday) morning for observation. Mr. Von Flatern underwent an operation at the Day Kimball hospital in March. Since being removed to his home on Arch street he has not made the improvement desired and his physician advised his being put under the care of a specialist.

Mr. Von Flatern thinks his trouble, which is internal, arose when he stopped the fall of a heavy bale of rags to save a brakeman on his train, the Boston local from being injured. Following this experience he has had more or less trouble with his side, and finally had to give up his run and go to the hospital.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Seeing the Hippopotamus

"Say," said the Turnip Town Zoo [illegible] in Kalamazoo:
"I can we would have to take a train
And it [illegible]
[illegible] Turnip Town
We can [illegible]
Or an aeroplane across the dell
Or a trolley car with a clanging bell.
So, boys and girls, it's up to us
To be in time for the big circus.

Goodness me, I didn't know my typewriter could write such beautiful poetry. Perhaps it feels happy because I bought it a lovely new ribbon yesterday.

But, goodness me! again. I must tell you where Little Jack Rabbit is. Yes sir. That's why I'm writing this story. Well, here he is, looking at the Picture of Hippopotamus and her little baby in Little Jack's own circus! [illegible] Uncle Jack owned a zoo.

"Come, Tootsie," cried the bunny boy.

"Come, Tootsie," cried the bunny boy to his baby hippopotamus mother, "come and I will show you to Little Jack Rabbit. Then we will go back to the Old Bramble Patch to see your baby."

But Tootsie wasn't used to rabbits who carry knapsacks and wear jackets, so she merely stood close to her baby and never even answered. "Please to meet you!" "How's your ma?" "Did you motor up or take a car?" But nice Photographer Crane didn't care. He got busy right away and before you could say "Winky Pink!" he had a beautiful picture for all the little boys and girls to see in the Bunnyville Bugle Sunday.

He just laughed the little rabbit. "I'll have something to tell Grandaddy Bullfrog when I get home. I think Mrs. Tootsie Hippopotamus' face looks just like a frog's. He, ha, I'll show the Bunnyville Bugle to Grandaddy Bullfrog as sure as I'm a foot high."

"Please take another picture," he begged turning to Photographer Crane. And would you believe it, that obliging bird did? Although Mrs. Tootsie Hippopotamus opened her mouth and yawned right in his face.

"Goodness mebus, what a yawn!
It looked like a cavern deep.
I'd hate to be walking in the dark
When she is fast asleep.
For I imagine her mouth's agap
When sound asleep in her pink night cap,
And I might stumble in by mistake
So I guess I'll leave while I'm awake."
Sang a big horse fly, and in tomorrow's story you shall hear about a monkey named "Windy."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES.

New York, May 20.—Enactment of the soldier bonus measure over the president's veto brought a flood of selling orders into today's stock market, prices of active shares breaking 1 to 6 points at the opening, recovering half their losses before noon and then slipping off again so that closing quotations showed net losses ranging from one to 4 1-4 points.

The break in prices, which was one of the sharpest in many months, naturally resulted in the closing out of a number of weakened marginal accounts, particularly of pools, but there was no widespread liquidation on the part of small investors, total sales running well below a million shares.

Thirty-two stocks tumbled to new low prices for the year, including such favorites as U. S. Steel common at 25, Baldwin at 104 3-8, Studebaker at 20 1-2 General Motors at 12 3-4; Stewart-Warner at 54; Anaconda at 28 1-2; Dupont at 113; U. S. Industrial Alcohol at 61 1-8 and United Drug at 72, several of these closing a point or so above their bottom figures of the day. In addition, a number of stocks duplicated their previous minimum prices including American Telephone, which dropped more than two points to 123 on announcement of a $150,000,000 stock issue.

Heavy professional selling of stocks was based on the speculative belief that the soldier bonus measure would be a heavy drain on the United States treasury and would preclude the possibility of any substantial tax relief, thereby having a restraining effect on business. Indications that this belief was not altogether general were seen by some traders in the character of the buying orders that appeared during the day and the absence of heavy liquidation by investors.

On the initial burst of selling Dupont and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe broke six points each, while Baldwin, American Can, General Electric and several others dropped three points or more. When bear traders discovered, however, that they had failed to dislodge much "long" stock, a brisk covering movement set in which wiped out about half the losses. Inability or unwillingness of operators on the long side to follow through on the rally, encouraged another wave of selling by shorts in the early afternoon during which U. S. Steel, Baldwin and a few others touched their low prices.

Circulation in the financial district of a statement by Senator Smoot that the tax bill would be put in shape by the senate and house conferees so as to gain the president's approval and the appearance of a brisk demand for Chesapeake & Ohio, which touched a new 1924 high at 74 3-8 started another covering movement just before the close. New Orleans, Texas and Mexico advanced three points to 121 1-3, also a new high for the year, in reflection of the declaration of a special cash dividend of 16 1-2 per cent in connection with the acquisition of the control of that road by the Missouri Pacific, but it forfeited two points of its gain on profit taking.

Call money held at three per cent all day. The time money market continued dull with most of the business being transacted at 90-days at 4 per cent. The commercial paper market was steady with prime names commanding 4 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary in quiet trading. A further drop of 10 points in French francs to around 5 3-8 cents was regarded in some quarters as indicating a "free" market for that currency. Demand sterling eased slightly to just under $4.36.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 20.—Wheat scored upturns in price here today largely as a result of strength in the Winnipeg market, where export buying appeared to be active. The wheat closing here was unsettled, 1-8 to 3-8@1 2c net higher, July $1.06 1-2 to 1.06 5-8 and September 1.07 1-2 to 1.07 1-2@5-8. Corn finished at 1-2c decline to 1-8@1-4c gain, oats at 3-8c off to a shade advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents back to a rise of 2c.

Except for a slight depression at the start, the wheat market showed a decided upward tendency until the final trading, when sympathy with late weakness of corn had some bearish effect. The initial hesitancy of the Chicago wheat market was ascribed to low prices of securities at New York, but wheat buying here seemingly against sales at Winnipeg led soon to a material advance for wheat. In connection with the Winnipeg strength, it was said estimates pointed to a much smaller world's crop than last year. Furthermore, estimates of European buying of wheat today totalled as high as 800,000 bushels, mostly Canadian but including some from the United States, via the Gulf of Mexico.

The fact that the McNary-Haugen bill was to be taken up at Washington today acted as more or less of a check on wheat selling here. Besides, some unfavorable crop reports were current. The weather map showed lower temperatures over most of the country, but none that reached the freezing point.

In the corn market, the unseasonable cold weather as well as scantiness of receipts made shorts anxious. Late announcement, however, that vessels had been chartered to bring 440,000 bushels of corn to Chicago from Duluth force da sudden reaction. Oats fluctuated in line with corn.

Firmness of hog values steadied the provision market.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 20.—Unsettled by passage of the bonus bill over the president's veto, bond prices today displayed weakness in the early dealings but later recovered most of their losses. Selling pressure at the outset was concentrated on Liberty Bonds, causing recessions of as much as half a point. Quick rallies, however, brought quotations back to near yesterday's closing levels.

Investment bankers were not inclined to fear that the bonus action would have any serious effect on the bond market. Easy money, it was said, had created a fundamentally sound basis for investment buying, which would not be seriously impaired even by the retarding influence of the bonus and trade. The fact that no immediate financing was contemplated by the government, it was felt, might be considered favorable.

New financing today was absorbed quickly despite the general uneasiness in trading circles. Bankers disposed of $15,000,000 Great Northern 5s due in 1973, at a price of 92 1-2 to yield 5.45 per cent., without recourse to a public offering. Proceeds will be used to reimburse the road's treasury. A good demand was reported for the $9,250,000 Czecho-Slovak bonds. Preparations have been completed by bankers for offering of the New York Central equipment issue, which awaits only the authorization of the road's officials. A $4,000,000 issue of the Federated Metals Corporation 15 year 7s will be sold tomorrow at par.

Price changes generally were of little importance today. An advance in "Nickel Plate" 6s was believed to reflect preparations for an additional bond offering. Wickwire-Spencer 7s declined further following official recommendations of a readjustment of the company's capital structure.

CURB MARKET.

New York, May 20.—Curb securities yielded today on the action of the senate on the soldier bonus bill, the oils showing heavier depressions than the industrials which moved within a narrow range.

The decline in the Standard Oil group was featured by a five point drop in Prairie Oil & Gas to 212 most of which was recovered, the stock closing at 215 for a loss of two points. Standard of Nebraska lost four points on the day, while Penn Mex Fuel, Illinois Pipe Line and other issues were one to 3 3-4 points off at the close. The heaviest trading was in Standard Oil of Indiana which closed fractionally lower at 58 1-2, on transactions exceeding 14,600 shares.

Subscription rights to the American Telephone & Telegraph new issue of 1,500,000 shares of common stock, $100 par, were admitted to trading with transactions varying from 2 15-16 to 3 1-16.

MYSTIC

A constant stream of automobiles from Westerly, Stonington, Mystic, Groton and New London, boys on bicycles, and pedestrians, crowded the roads leading into Noank Monday afternoon and evening, the village streets being thronged with those who came to inspect the ravages of the fire at Noank Shipyard.

Owing to the fact that Mystic men have been employed at this Yard covering a long period of years, the interest of Mystic people in its welfare is second only to that of Noank itself.

Those who viewed the devastation caused by the fire shuddered to think of what might have happened to the entire village had the wind been from a south-easterly direction, for one witness stated that in fifteen minutes after the fire was discovered it was burning fiercely and spread rapidly, due to the strong wind which prevailed.

The shipyard at Noank was founded in the neighborhood of 100 years ago by John Palmer, father of the late Robert Palmer, Sr., who was connected with shipbuilding activities for a long period of years. When Deacon John Palmer started in business for himself it was in a small way but the business grew as the years advanced and three generations of the Palmer family were associated with it, and took a conspicuous part in its affairs.

The passing of the bonus bill has pleased many of the ex-service men of the village, and the data concerning the rulings of payment of the bonus will soon be in the hands of the local post of the American Legion. There is to be a meeting of Richard William Morgan Post Thursday evening, at which time plans for Memorial Day will be discussed, and the bonus explained to those who do not understand its meaning. A large number of applications for membership are to be voted upon and refreshments will be served by the Woman's Auxiliary at the close of the business session.

The theme of the weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church this evening is, "Perfect Gifts, from the Perfect Giver"; the Methodists of the High Street unit have been specially invited to be present.

Reverends Beauchamp, Farnham, Jones, MacLennan and Merrill participated in the meeting this week.

In this plan we invite your co-operation. We want all churches and schools in the ton interested, so as to attain the desired results nad if everyone will take hold and clean up the yards and business places, it will not only beautify the town but will make it a healthier and better place to live in.

WORK~
In city streets, on country highways, in farm structures and industrial plants, small and large, concrete is being more and more used. Why?
First because it meets the modern necessity for economy. Atlas is cheaper today than thirty years ago. And second because man's work must be safeguarded.
Structures built with Atlas protect both the worker and his product, for they are permanent and fireproof. Tell your building material dealer about your building plans and ask him about materials. He can be of real help.

BRINGS $6,000 SUIT AGAINST TROLLEY COMPANY

Irving J. Willis, of this city, has brought suit in the superior court against the Connecticut company for $6,000 damages on a claim for injuries to himself and damage to his automobile which was struck by a trolley car at the corner of West Main and Asylum streets on the afternoon of May 23, 1923. It is claimed that the trolley car, which was of the one-man type, was operated at a dangerous rate of speed, that the automobile was considerably damaged and that Mr. Willis received permanent injuries to his head, back, spine and nervous system, and has been put to heavy expense for medical services.

SETTLEMENT MADE IN SUIT OVER ROOMING HOUSE RECEIPTS

In July 1914 Anthony Carboni Christopher of this city left here for a visit in Italy that he expected would last about six or eight months; but he was drafted into the Italian army and it was September, 1919, before he was able to get out of the country and return to the United States.

Tuesday he was the plaintiff in a suit on trial in the superior court before Judge John R. Booth in which Christopher sued Angelina Cristoforo, better known as Angelina Carboni, with whom he had lived as husband and wife, and who kept a rooming house in the Young block on Franklin square while he was in Italy. He brought suit for $15,000 damages for her alleged failure to keep an agreement that he claimed had been made when he went away to Italy about turning the receipts of the rooming house over to him.

Attorney Thomas M. Shields for the plaintiff was assisted by Attorney Frank Covello of Hartford, formerly of Norwich, while Attorney J. J. Desmond appeared for the defendant. After testimony had been given in the morning session of court, an agreement for a settlement was reached at the noon recess and when court came in at 2.15 o'clock, Judge Booth announced that the case had been settled and adjourned court until the next morning. The terms of settlement were not made public but it was understood that Christopher received a substantial figure.

The suit was brought on the claim that Christopher left the rooming house in the charge of Angelina on her agreement to remit to him $25 monthly from the proceeds and that after she had taken enouxh to support herself and the children of the plaintiff and defendant she was to bank the remaining profits in her name and keep them for the plaintiff to turn them over to him on his return. After sending him the $25 payments for 18 months she stopped doing this and she had refused to turn over to him the profits which it was claimed amounted to $7,000. In a second count in the complaint it was charged that she had collected and converted to her own use a chattel mortgage and note of $400 which Mr. Christopher held against Nicholas Peperas.

The plaintiff was the first witness. He said he sailed from Italy in 1897, met the defendant in New York and they lived together as man and wife from 1897 to 1914. In 1911 he fixed up a rooming house in the Young's block. The lease was in the defendant's name but the business was in his name. The lease was put in the defendant's name because he went to Italy. This was between 1911 to 1912. Again in 1913 he went to Italy. He furnished the rooming house including two pool tables. In 1911 it cost him about $4,600 or $4,600. In 1914 he went to Italy for his health. Twenty-five dollars per month was agreed upon with the defendant to be sent to him and $4,000 he took for the education of the boy. He also left $700 in the bank in his name. The son Patsy went to Italy with him. He returned Sept. 19, 1919, and left Patsy in college. The defendant then told him that she didn't want to have anything to do with him. In 1919 the furniture was worth about $3,000 and the business worth about $5,000, together with the furniture.

George Thomas Bushnell testified he had roomed at the house at different times and had paid rent to both the plaintiff and the defendant.

Duca Pacifico testified to seeing furniture delivered at the house, these being the only witnesses called before the settlement was reached.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE TO HAVE NEW DORMITORY

Connecticut College at New London is to have a new building erected on the campus which will be known as Colonial House and will serve as a combination residence hall and social centre. It is made possible by the anonymous gift of $200,000 and will be completed by fall.

Colonial House is to be a two-story building of stone, 170 by 48 feet, having the principal elevation facing the Thames. Especially adapted for entertaining the first floor has a wide hall going through the house, devoting all the space on one side to an unusually large living room which overlooks the river and ocean on two sides and the hills on the third. There are also two parlors for smaller gatherings, an ample dining room, a reception room and a Fellows suite of two rooms and bath. The building is to be furnished throughout in Colonial style.

The stairs, starting opposite the entrance, have a halfway landing which opens onto the balcony at the rear of the house, then branching to either side, continuing to the second floor where there is a corridor eight feet wide running the entire length of the building. Opening from this are 24 single rooms for students, a sitting room and kitchenette. The lavatories have basins enclosed in individual compartments, as well as shower and tub baths.

EARL STAMM TO BE BANK VICE PRESIDENT

Earl Stamm of 16 Ann street, this city, has tendered his resignation as chief of the staff of bank examiners of the state of Connecticut, effective June 1st, to accept a position as first vice president of the National Bank of Commerce of New London. Mr. Stamm, who is a candidate for alderman on the republican city ticket is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy, class of 1912. After his graduation he entered the employ of the Dime Savings bank. Later he went to the Thames National bank where he was employed for six years. In November, 1921, he left that bank to accept a position as an assistant U. S. bank examiner and later was made chief of the first federal reserve bank district. In March, 1923, he was made chief of the staff of bank examiners of the state of Connecticut.

During the war Mr. Stamm served for some time at Camp Meigs in the quartermaster corps. He has a wide acquaintance in banking circles throughout the state and his many friends will be pleased to learn of his success in the financial world.

NORWICH LIQUOR DISPENSER IN JAIL FOR A MONTH

Judge Frederick M. Peasley of Chesire, appointed last week to succeed Judge John P. Kellogg, was on the bench when the criminal superior court reconvened in New London on Tuesday morning after a four days' adjournment. In the absence of Special State Attorney Warren B. Burrows, who still is quite ill, Attorney Thomas E. Troland represented the state in the cases in which pleas of guilty were entered.

Considerable time was occupied by Judge Peasley in interviewing in chambers those who washed to be excused from jury duty, and it was 11.30 before court came in. Judge Peasley indicated that liquor violators can expect no leniency from him, and in the one such case heard Tuesday, that of Frank Levando, of Norwich, charged with possession on May 2 last, imposed a sentence of 30 days in jail, and a fine of $150.

Edward Mathewson of New London entered a plea of guilty to a charge of theft of goods valued at $40, and the judge, scoring Mathewson for leading boys into "criminal paths," imposed the maximum sentence of six months in jail, and a fine of $100 and costs. Mathewson's case aroused considerable interest when it came up in police court in New London on May 3. He was charged with being the instigator of the theft of jewelry and clothing to the amount of $40 from the home of Mrs. John Hislop, 60 Nathan Hale street, during the latter part of April. Two boys, Spiro Nichols, 14, of 534 Main street, and Herman Kaplan, 12, of Cedar street, admitted committing the theft and accused Mathewson of putting them up to it.

Stephen Stankey of Preston was before the court on an assault charge. Stankey, father of five children, pleaded not guilty last week to a charge of assaulting with intent to kill his wife on April 26 last, but pleaded guilty Tuesday to simple assault, and was sentenced to four months in jail. Costs in this case were remitted by Judge Peasley. Prior to prohibition Stankey, according to Public Defender Charles L. Stewart, who represented him, was a hard working, industrious and sober father. With the advent of the dry era he took to drinking liquor of his own manufacture, and the same made him violent. He became abusive to his wife and children, and a series of cruel acts culminated on the above date, when in the throes of a spree, he attacked his wife, and very severely injured her. A term in jail would serve to straighten him out, according to Mr. Stewart.

Annie Zelinski of Norwich was unable to appear in court to answer to a liquor law violation due to the fact that she is in jail serving a sentence for a former violation. Annie was under suspended sentence at the time her second arrest occurred, after which she was remanded to jail to serve out her original sentence. The present charges were therefore, at the request of Acting State's Attorney Troland, ordered continued until the September term of court.

ONECO MAN SECURES DIVORCE IN RENO

Word has been received in Oneco that William H. Sweet, of that village, known in eastern Connecticut as a lumber merchant, had secured, at Reno, Nev., a divorce from Grace A. Sweet. Two years ago Sweet was granted a divorce by Judge Marvin in the superior court, but Mrs. Sweet appealed the decree, which was set aside by the supreme court after Sweet for three months thought himself free.

Sweet went to Reno and engaged in business, and a year ago, Mrs. Sweet, charging non-support had a warrant issued against her husband. The Oneco justice of the peace, C. B. Montgomery, who issued the warrant, on Saturday received word from Sweet that shortly he would return to defend himself on the non-support charge.

HEALTHY WOMEN, HAPPY HOMES

Good dispositions succumb. Irritability and snappy retort take the place of happiness and amiability. Sunshine is driven out of homes. In fact, they are often wrecked, and friends are estranged because women suffer with ailments peculiar to their sex. The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will overcome such ailments and restore health and happiness. Do not resort to strong doses of narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy made from roots and herbs is always within reach.

ODD FELLOWS WILL BUILD NEW INFIRMARY AT GROTON

Bids on the construction of the new infirmary to be erected at the Odd Fellows' Home, Fairview, were opened at New Haven Saturday by the board of management of the Odd Fellows' Home corporation. Several contractors submitted estimates on the plans which, unofficially, are said to call for an outlay of nearly $250,000.

Erection of the building has been under consideration for the past three years but unfavorable building conditions have had much to do with deferring a start. Unless prices are prohibitive, it is understood that actual building operations will get under way at an early date in order to relieve crowded conditions, yearly becoming more acute.

The new structure will be a two-story and basement type of building of native stone construction with brick and granite trim, and connected to the south end of Davis hall by a corridor. The main building will be 170x37, with a two-story ell, 70x37 feet. The basement walls will be part concrete and part stone, while the sidewalls of the main building will be of local stone with brick and granite trim, topped with a slate roof.

Floors throughout will be of fireproof construction and sash and exterior window and floor frames will be of metal casement. Interior partitions will be of hollow tile and gypsum and interior trim of metal. Floors, except in toilets, will be covered with rubberstone to eliminate noise.

The basement area will house the boiler room, coal bins, diet kitchen, etc. The first floor will have a large recreation room and a similar space fitted for reception of visitors. The general offices will be located on this floor and doors will open upon a spacious veranda.

The operating room will be located upon the third floor where provision is also made for the dental room, pharmacy, anesthetic room, living room, diet kitchen and wards. The upper floors will be reached by broad stairways and also by elevator.

POETRY

The Needed Thing

To do the needed thing when all about you
Are standing by and letting moments pass—
To see more clearly than the ones who doubt you,
And not to vision darkly, through a glass.
To help a man who suffers by the wayside,
To do it swiftly when he meets with pain;
To move into the gap which is left vacant,
To do the needed thing, nor think of gain.

To do the needed thing when folk are seeking,
But very blindly, for a thing to do—
To practice what you preach, when others are speaking,
To take the task in hand that comes to you.
To reach ahead, and not to stumble forward,
To do the needed thing when all about you
Are wondering and letting moments fly

MELODRAMATIC NARRATIVE AT DAUGHERTY HEARING

Mrs. W. O. Duckstein, Once Stenographer to Jess Smith, Related Tale of "Shadows" Set by Department of Justice to Follow Means by Day and Night—Husband of Mrs. Duckstein Told Story of Plans to "Frame Up" Senator Wheeler and Chairman Brookhart of the Committee—Heard Allegation Also That A System of Espionage Had Been Flung Around the Committee Itself.

ing, Mrs. Duckstein testified that as stenographer to Jess Smith, when the dead companion of Mr. Daugherty had a private office on the sixth floor of the departmnet of justice building," she took a letter he dictated to her "for the signature of President Harding" which authorized Gaston Means and W. T. Underwood, to "investigate prohibition conditions in New York."

Working for Smith from September until late in 1922, when she became an employe of W. J. Burns, former chief of the bureau of investigation, she said she took many letters about the granting of whiskey permits, and wrote many memoranda to Means, setting him to work in investigating "Mrs. Cross," E. H. Mortimer, "Colonel Darden," and also—at which even the committee gasped—General Sawyer, the White House physician. Some of the work was for President Harding, she said, insisting that Smith and the former president were on intimate terms.

Duckstein, relating that he had many negotiations with the Peter O'Brien duo, said that on one occasion over a bottle of whiskey, when words became expansive, he listened to their planning. George E. Chamberlain, attorney for Mr. Daugherty, suggested on cross examination that the liquor probably added the "vivid" element to the discussion, but the witness disagreed. He, too, told of association with Smith, and with Means, but did not throw much light on Underwood, who has been a figure of mystery in many recent statements before the committee.

Senator Wheeler said the inquiry into to defence phases of the affair would be pushed at further sessions.

After a conference of the committee members late today with Attorney General Stone, Chairman Brookhart said the attorney general was considering instituting action against unnamed individuals dealt with in the investigation testimony during the past three months. Mr. Stone, after the conference, confined himself to the comment that any future action would speak for itself.

Chairman Brookhart also announced after the conference that it had been decided to drop, for the time being, any attempt on the part of the committee to get the financial records of George Remus, now a convict at Atlanta, and formerly a bootleg liquor [illegible] on a large scale. Remus [illegible] records might assist to verify his story that he paid nearly $300,000 to Jess Smith for "protection" in his illegal operations

HOUSE COMMITTEE ENDS HEARING ON 2.75 PER CENT. BEER

Washington, May 21—Opponents of modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent. of alcoholic content in beverages made a general attack on pending bills which would provide for such a change in the act at concluding hearings today of the house judiciary committee on the question. Chairman Graham at adjournment announced that the taking of testimony had been completed but arguments of counsel of opposing sides would be heard before the committee began framing its report.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-saloon league, led off in the affirmative, asserting that "prohibition enforcement is not a failure."

"The record of 1923," he declared, shows that fines of more than $[illegible] and jail sentences amounting to [illegible] years were imposed and [illegible] convictions obtained. The [illegible]rialties and assessments amount to approximately $40,000,000. The low- [illegible]holic content of beverages, [illegible] the jail population.

Declaring that "the overwhelming majority of American students are [illegible] in favor of the prohibition law as it now stands and opposed to any modification," Henry S. Warner, general secretary of the intercollegiate prohibition association, said that the time is not ripe for modification as [illegible] had a real test such [illegible]ng as exists is "spectacular and exceptional and done in the spirit of adventure," he said, adding that habitual drinking in colleges does not exist.

Representative O'Sullivan, democrat, Connecticut, developed by questioning the witness, that straw votes at Harvard, Yale and Clark, resulted in the majority for modification. But Mr. Warner explained that this was confined to east of and near the Hudson river, and to the newer classes."

Miss Grace L. Holder of Perth, Western Australia, testified that Australia has not had a fair chance as yet of registering prohibition sentiment. During her stay in Australia since February, she has seen only one intoxicated man and that in Fremantle, she added.

Replying to the statistics quoted by Mr. Wheeler, Representative O'Sullivan maintained that in some cities for 1923 arrests for intoxication and liquor violation would show an increase over 1922. Mr. Wheeler retorted by stating that there was propaganda afoot to make a good showing for beer.

The Connecticut representative then called attention to an article in the American Issue in which it was said by Sam Small wrote, concerning the introduction of the 18th amendment, that "of course such performances will not now where in a congress that has seventy-two and 282 representatives pledged in blood and white heat to [illegible] signatures to wholly ignore such [illegible]."

Mr. Wheeler denied that the anti-saloon league had any such record, to his knowledge.

"Would you employ the use of the army and navy to enforce prohibition?" asked Representative O'Sullivan.

"If it reached the point of rebellion, yes," answered Mr. Wheler. "But it will not be necessary to do it. There are too many law-abiding persons in the country."

"Do you consider 2.75 cider intoxicating?"

"Yes."

Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, leader of the so-called "wet bloc" developed by questioning Mr. Wheeler, that the Volstead act permits of fruit juices in home use which are intoxicating in fact, and are above one half of one per cent. alcoholic content.

Mr. Hill was permitted to insert in the record a communication from the census bureau that "there are 51 states which have a percentage of foreign born higher than for Maryland." He did this, he explained to refute a recent statement before the committee by Bishop Hames Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, "that Maryland had ceased to be worth consideration because of its foreign born population," and "to show the careless disregard of facts on the part of the opposition to the modification of the Volstead act."

STATE CHAMBER AGAINST HOWELL-BARKLEY BILL

Bridgeport, May 21—Delegates to the annual meeting of the Connecticut chamber of commerce here today voted a resolution placing the organization on record as against the passage of the Howell-Barkley bill, now in congress. It was claimed the bill would remove the present federal labor board and either result in chaos or force the closed shop upon the railroads. The chamber will request the opposition of Connecticut representatives and senators in congress.

The directors passed a vote that the state chamber would stand in strong opposition to the portions of the income returns of individuals and corporations tax bill "which would open the doors to indiscriminate investigation and against the levy of progressive surtaxes upon the undistributed earnings of corporations."

PROFESSOR'S WIFE HELD FOR BREACH OF PEACE

New Haven, May 21—Mrs. Mary A. Walden, wife of Professor E. V. Walden of Yale, physical [illegible] was arrested here today on a charge of general breach of the peace resulting from a disturbance at her husband's office during which Mrs. Walden is alleged to have called her husband names. At police court tomorrow Mrs. Walden expresses confidence she is backed up and expects [illegible] court tomorrow. Mr. [illegible] two daughters were ordered [illegible] as witnesses.

Religion a Thing Apart From Politics

Indianapolis, Ind., May 21.—Senator James E. Watson was wildly acclaimed today when in addressing the Indiana republican convention, he declared he would support Ed Jackson, the party's gubernatorial nominee who was given strong Ku Klux Klan aid in the May sixth primary.

"I did not vote for Jackson, but was here and nominated."

The senator said: "I am a republican—it's a question of politics—he's under my banner and I'm marching by his side."

Jackson, called to the speaker's stand, was given an ovation.

Senator Watson continued, declaring he was not a member of the klan, but said he had no objection to any man belonging to it if he desired. He added, he was not a Catholic, but had no objection to anyone belonging to that church.

Calling attention to the fact that President Coolidge was governor of Massachusetts, had signed a $20,000,000 bonus bill, because he believed the state could pay it, Senator Watson said Mr. Coolidge, when he became president, surveyed the whole situation and changed his mind with regard to this policy, as he had a perfect right to do, looking upon the question as he does from every angle and keeping in view the interests of the people.

COOLIDGE ACCLAIMED BY REPUBLICANS OF INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., May 21—Republicans of Indiana opened their State convention today with thunders of applause for a laudatory appraisal of the national administration and an unqualified endorsement of President Coolidge. Tonight the delegations [illegible] Indiana cabinet caucuses to name delegates to the republican national convention at Cleveland next month, and select members for the state committees. The real work of the state gathering, which includes platform building, will be undertaken in committee sessions tomorrow. The committee on resolutions has received more than a hundred requests for audience, of several delegations to the convention was scheduled for Thursday.

Slight friction over the selection of delegates at large was in prospect but substantial agreement existed [illegible] Senator James E. Watson, the gubernatorial nominee gave promise of an easy solution of the remaining problems of the preliminary conferences. Under his lineup, the delegates at large which seemed fairly certain of a place on the [illegible] Senator Watson, State chairman [illegible] Lemmon, Congressman [illegible] Beers, [illegible] Lemmon, secretary of the republican national committee, Hays, W. Miller, Indianapolis, and Mrs. Ava Gray Woodward, Lafayette, [illegible] Mrs. Woodward's appointment [illegible] national committee woman [illegible] Mrs. Woodward is a New [illegible] native of Indiana, who was [illegible] candidate for [illegible] the senate from Indiana, who was [illegible] candidate for [illegible] of the people.

CONGRESS TO INVESTIGATE THE N. P. LAND GRANT

Washington, May 21—A congressional investigation of land granted to the Northern Pacific railway company was authorized [illegible] resolution adopted today by the senate.

The resolution was recommended by [illegible] Walsh and Wheeler, who asserted also that there be provision to hold up final adjustments of the accounts until after the investigation had been concluded.

As the resolution as it was adopted is the same senate adjustment would be withheld until March 4, 1925, but calling [illegible] officials of the railroad company the senate fixed the date on March 4, 1925.

The Northern Pacific company is laying claim, according to information furnished congress by the interior and agricultural secretaries to several million [illegible] land in national forests. The forestry service contends that not only is it not entitled to this land but it should have received more than [illegible] recently decided for under the original grant made by congress.

FOUND LIQUOR STORED IN WAREHOUSE IN BOSTON

Boston, May 21.—Tapping what they believed to be the source of supply for a number of excessive seizures in late [illegible] a special duty customs squad today [illegible] a storage warehouse on India Wharf and seized 325 packages of choice liquors, mostly of pre-war vintage. One case of champagne was [illegible] "Storehouse Number 3, New York," and the bottles were wrapped in Buffalo, N. Y. newspapers of March [illegible].

Jacob Hauck, of Roslindale, lessee of the warehouse, was arrested but later released on his own recognizance when he said that the part of the building where the liquor was stored was sublet to another person and he was not aware of the use to which it was being put. Two other men who were arrested while unloading a [illegible] truck at the warehouse were held in $1,000 bail each.

AN OLD MAN PAID $362,000 IN CASH FOR "PETTING" PARTY

Cambridge, Mass., May 21—Edward Barrows, 83 years old, suffering from heart disease, infirm, and able to see but a few feet in front of him, testified to the witness stand of the Middlesex superior court today and testified that he had paid over to [illegible] if Cowley, disbarred Boston lawyer, $362,000 in cash, bonds and stocks for a "petting" party he had in an office [illegible] Dudley Bates [illegible] Bates client, [illegible] told the court [illegible] has been [illegible] the occurrence—that his cash became public [illegible] Washington.

The incident according to the witness, occurred in 1916. Barrows said that he had known the "Mrs. Daley" for ten years previous to that. On [illegible] July 1916, he testified she came to his office [illegible] White [illegible] and [illegible] asked him to [illegible] party. [illegible] two daughters were ordered [illegible] as witnesses.

Agreement Reached On Tax Reduction

Provides 50 Per Cent Cut On Prevailing Tax on Incomes Up to $8,000 For Year 1924.

Washington, May 21.—A tax reduction bill endorsed by leaders of both parties and virtually every faction in the senate and house was moulded into final shape today.

Early approval of the unanimous agreement of the conferees on the differences between the senate and house reached today by both branches of congress was predicted, and the hope was expressed by republican leaders that the bill would be signed by President Coolidge.

The conference report will be taken up by the senate tomorrow on Friday and, if approved, it is expected the house will be able to act on Saturday. Little time is expected to be taken in debate in either body and there were indications tonight that practically no opposition would be offered.

Elements of both the senate and house provisions were approved and leaders of both parties tonight were claiming credit for the plan.

The conference accepted without change the democratic income tax schedule proposed in the senate by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, but turned down the other important amendments framed by senate democrats and republican insurgents, providing for full publicity on tax returns and a graduated corporation tax carrying a surtax on undistributed profits.

The Simmons income schedule, similar to the last house compromise, supported by both republicans as an exception to the house leaders [illegible] the reduction of the normal rates from [illegible] to 4 per cent on incomes up to $4,000 and 8 per cent above that amount to 2 per cent on incomes of $4,000 and under, 4 per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000, and [illegible] per cent on those over $8,000.

While the senate and house are soon to start their last progress in the Republican National Convention, the senate [illegible] republican leaders [illegible] the senate [illegible] Mellon asked [illegible] President Coolidge.

Many of the important tax [illegible] provisions of the bill were put over to conference [illegible] including the proposal for a [illegible] per cent reduction in income taxes [illegible] 1924.

Under its present form, [illegible] Senate bill, the measure would provide for a collection of $34,500,000 [illegible] than it passed the senate, but still be $100,000,000 below the estimated treasury surplus available for tax reduction, [illegible] of the bonus, estimated at $150,000,000 for next year, and other pending [illegible] [illegible] present [illegible]

[illegible] provisions [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] tax rates [illegible] the [illegible] gift tax voted by the senate [illegible] repeal [illegible] the senate [illegible] the [illegible] per cent [illegible] Senate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WILLIMANTIC

Instructions have been given the officials of the railroad police of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to station uniformed officers at all blind and signal crossings in Connecticut. The officers will make their appearance on Friday, May 30th and will be on guard at the crossings during the summer months. Motorists are expected to take heed and obey stop signals, as any party guilty of infringement will be placed under arrest and ordered to appear before the court of the town or city in which apprehended. It was stated Wednesday afternoon that some sixty officers will be on duty at the more dangerous crossing in this state. The order for a campaign against trespassers, similar to one conducted throughout the state last year, will be issued within a short time and warning in being given to those who habitually use the railroad property as a short cut to stop the practice or run chances of being arrested.

A young deer mistaken for a ferocious dog—and nothing to drink—such was the situation shortly after midnight, Wednesday morning, when Dr. F. J. Keegan and Ralph W. Gates, residents of the Brooklyn Side of the city were nearing their homes in that section and saw what they at first believed to be an immense mad dog leaping down the sidewalk in their direction. That the young men were uncomfortable goes without saying. Judging from their own words they were on the verge of beginning a determined race with the oncoming animal when it suddenly swerved to one side, revealing the fact that it was nothing more than a frightened fawn. A few steps further a herd of some seven or eight deer was seen grazing in the rear of the William Hayden home, on Pleasant street. Wednesday morning Mr. Hayden's gardener found that the deer had trampled down a garden and messed things up in general about the place.

Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer William S. Congdon has but very little spare time but he plans now to use his extra hours at golfing. Officer Congdon will make his appearance at the Willimantic Country club this week in a new knicker outfit and with the necessary paraphernalia. Mrs. Congdon plans to join him at the game.

Golfers of the Willimantic Country club who will take part, this season, in match games with other clubs about the state for state championship are: William Clark, Louis H. Arnolds, Dr. C. D Riordan, R. G. Remington, Raymond C. Comins and G. Donald Bartlett.

The judge, attorneys, plaintiffs, defendants and spectators grouped near the windows of the superior court chamber of the town building, about noon Wednesday, when judicial dignity was cast aside and court recessed, while the Sells-Floto circus parade streamed down Main street. Of the two cases listed for trial Wednesday at the session of the Windham county superior court, one had been settled and the 'parade recess' was called while the second case was being untangled.

The suit for $10,000 damages brought by Peter LaMountain of Putnam, vs Frank W. Russell of Oxford, Mass., as the result of the death of Louis LaMountain, 13, of Oxford, was the case to be settled out of court. The child was struck by an automobile owned and driven by the defendant, October 16, 1921, while walking along the main highway in the town of Oxford. The girl's skull was fractured and she died soon after the accident. The plaintiff was appointed administrator of her estate December 21, 1921 in Oxford and upon removal to Putnam, this state, was re-appointed by the probate court of that town January 21, 1922. The administrator sued for $10,000 a year later. The case went over for several sessions and last Friday was assigned for trial Wednesday.

The case of William J. Baker of Canterbury vs E. Fitch Johnson of Plainfield to recover $175 as a commission of five per cent. on the sale of a farm by the plaintiff for the defendant to Paula Raphael for the sum of $3,500.

Attorney T. E. Babcock of Norwich represented the plaintiff and C. L. Stewart of Norwich, the defendant. Counsel for the defense entered a denial by his client to the alleged agreement of five per cent. commission on the sale.

Mr. Barker testified to asking Johnson if he had any places which he wanted sold and in response the defendant told him about a farm of one hundred acres in Sterling. On the farm was a barn, 100 by 40, a large dwelling and a good water supply which the defendant would sell for $3,500. Paula Rachael was then secured by Barker and the placed was sold after Johnson had informed plaintiff that if he got $3,500 for the farm he would give him a five per cent. commission. Barker failed to get his commission, although it was promised him several times by Johnson. Johnson denied having made any agreement with Barker. He said that it was true that, as a neighbor, he had spoken to Barker regarding the farm in Sterling, but that the latter had nothing to do with the sale. Johnson stated that he had done business directly with Mr. Raphael and was not obligated in any way to the plaintiff. Judge Haines reserved decision.

The case of Wasiley Kucheichuck vs Antonio Gerosa, scheduled for today (Thursday) has been settled out of court, it was made known Wednesday.

Court was then adjourned by Sheriff C. A. Gates to Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Willimantic will be favored Friday by a visit from Commander Evangeline Booth, leader of the Salvation Army in America who is on a motor tour of New England. She will be accompanied by the New England staff band of Boston. The visitors will be met at North Windham by a local committee, consisting of Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, First Selectman Russell A. Andrews, Harry W. Standish, president of the Willimantic Rotary club; Valentine L. Murphy, president of the chamber of commerce; Charles W. Hill, Mrs. Carl R. Alford, Mrs. John Reilly, J. E. Sullivan and F. S. Hills The committee will act as an escort to this city where a concert will be given at Lincoln square. If the size of the crowd and the enthusiasm shown warrant it, Commander Booth will give a talk.

In spite of industrial conditions and unfavorable weather Willimantic people turned out in full force Wednesday to attend the Sells-Floto circus which encamped at The Windham Acres, a plot of land on Jackson street owned by A. J. Dubrieuil, of this city.

WILLIMANTIC HOUSE ROBBED DURING CIRCUS PARADE

Willimantic, May 21.—While the family of Louis Gordon of 384 Valley street was witnessing the street parade late Wednesday forenoon of the Sells-Floto circus, which appeared here on that day, clever thieves broke into the house and stole about $300 worth of jewelry and silverware which was packed in a trunk in one of the bedrooms. That the crooks were experts at the art of thieving was indicated when they carefully unlocked the front door of the house to gain entrance and as carefully locked it when they left with the booty.

Mr. Gordon is one of the proprietors of the Liberty Cash market on West Main street and some two weeks ago moved his household goods from Brooklyn, N. Y., to 384 Valley street. The family, consisting of his wife and two children did not arrive until a few days ago and but little of the furniture had been unpacked. The trunk from which the jewelry was taken had been placed in a bedroom adjoining the front hall-way of the house and was still secured with a quarter inch rope which was cut by the intruders.

There is some mystery connected with the robbery. Apparently a skeleton key was used to unlock the door, but just how the thieves knew in which trunk the gold and silver was concealed is a question. Other trunks and satchels were in the room but these were untouched. It is possible, however, that the right trunk was opened first by sheer luck. The police were notified and an investigation started immediately. A list of the articles stolen follows: One gentleman's watch, 1 gold watch, 1 gold watch chain, 1 lady's gold watch and 1 lady's silver watch, 4 silver spoons, 4 gold and silver filled spoons, 2 silver and gold lined spoons, 1 lady's silver thimble and 1 silver thimble holder, 3 lady's gold rings, 2 silver rings, 2 salt shakers. Most of the neighbors in that vicinity were away from home to see the circus parade and as near as could be determined, no one saw the thief or thieves carrying away the loot.

PALACE THEATRE

How many wives who wonder why their husbands turn to drink or other women stop to think that they themselves may have driven them to it?

Constance Talmadre asks the question. It isn't often that a woman can be brought even momentarily to consider this question from the man's point of view. But Connie has just had an impressive lesson during the filming of some of the episodes of Dulcy, her filmization of the Broadway state success.

In Dulcy Constance Talmadge plays a wife who would drive many a husband to the lunatic asylum. And all because she insists on trying to help her husband with his business.

"Many wives make the mistake of thinking that their good intentions entitle them to meddle in their husbands' business affairs," said Miss Talmadge. "They are entirely practical in the management of household matters, but cannot be brought to see that their husbands' affairs are so much more complicated. What on the surface appears to be a plain, matter-of-fact plan may in reality be a piece of subtle strategy. Yet so many wives will insist on meddling.

"Dulcy," whom I play in my new picture, is a wife who insists on mixing in, despite her husband's pleas. Just when he is making a bluff for big stakes, she means well, but her mistakes nearly drive her husband and the others involved to the madhouse. Wives should respect the privacy of their husbands' business affairs."

The adaption is by John Emerson and Anita Loos. Jack Mulhall is Miss Talmadge's leading man in Dulcy, and the supporting cast includes also Claude Gillingwater, Johnny Harron, May Wilson, Anna Cornwall, Frederick Esmelton, Andre de Beranger, Gilbert Douglas and Milla Davenport.

Added attractions Bone Head Educational's side-splitting comedy. Latest Pathe Review. Special musical presentation by Palace supreme orchestra overture Jolly Robbers Suppe, director F. G. Benson.

Broadway Theatre

"You can't have your cake and eat it." "All is not gold that glitters," and any number of other aphorisms might apply to the plot of Barrie Oliver, handsome young juvenile heading his own revue the last three days of this week at the Broadway. Surrounded by five charming girls who dance and smile alluringly within his vision twice daily (and sometimes three times) one might reasonably imagine Barrie's life to be not unlike the Sultan's. Envious males gaze bitterly upon this young man as his charmers flock about him in their dances, and regretful sighs emanate from the front row flappers. Some young thing whispers, "I wonder which one is his wife?"

The remaining four acts are equally as good as this gala revue.

On the screen will be seen a Sam Wood Paramount Special with Agnes Ayres and Antonia Moreno featured in Bluff. It is a romantic comedy drama filmed amid the fashionable world of New York sparkling with laughs and thrills.

Breed Theatre.

Viola Dana has never had a more delightful starring vehicle than Don't Doubt Your Husband, the new Metro picture which will be at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow. Everyone who's married or who thinks of getting married should see this merry satire on the suspicious wife who is always leaping at conclusions and keeping the matrimonial nest in a turmoil. It's clean, wholesome fun, spiced with paprika of smartness and sizzling with tense situations.

Sale of Property.

Mrs. Hamlin is the daughter of the late Lot H. Morrill, who was for many years United States senator from Maine, and was also secretary of the treasury in President Grant's cabinet. Her close contact with the political life of the national capital, with the training of the mind that such a life must, of necessity give, enables her to present her topics with a clear analysis, a breadth of view and a keen logic which is as unusual as it is interesting. For the past twelve years she has lectured throughout New England, New York, the Middle West and the Pacific Coast. week.

On account of the weather, the speaking, spelling and athletic contests for the various schools of the town of Franklin, has been postponed a week.

PUTNAM

Rev. Simeon E. Cozad, of the Congregational church, was the speaker at the regular meeting and luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Cozad touched on the fact that he is leaving Putnam and told his fellow Rotarians how much he had enjoyed being one of them, how much he thought of them and that he would never forget them. Mr. Cozad did not disclose his plans for the future.

Putnam people have been interested in the granting of a divorce to Mrs. Frederick W. Leeds, of New Haven, from her husband, Rev. Frederick W. Leeds, former rector of Grace Episcopal church, New Haven, and for over a year, between 1918-20 rector of St. Philip's church, Putnam.

The case attracted considerable attention in the fall of 1922 when Mrs. Leeds followed her husband to Boston where she invoked aid of the Boston police and Mr. Leeds was found in a Boston hotel in company with his secretary, Miss Ellen Reid, of New Haven.

At the time that the couple were [illegible] Mrs. Reid expressed the wish that Mrs. Leeds would obtain a divorce so that she could marry Mr. Leeds. The pair claimed that there was nothing but "spiritual love" between them. Mr. Leeds soon afterward resigned from his church.

A judge of the Worcester county court has made a finding in the case of Mrs. Joseph Antone, of North Grosvenordale, who brought suit against a Dudley, Mass., farmer, alleging that the defendant sold moonshine whiskey to her husband which made him blind and caused his death. The case was stated in this column last week.

Mrs. Antone asked $15,000 damages. The judge ruled that the plaintiff suffered no damage as the result of the defendant's tortuous act and returned a verdict for the defendant. The court found that the death of the woman's husband was caused by intoxication and that the liquor sold by the defendant contributed to the causes of death, but that the husband was not a means of plaintiff's support but was, on the other hand, a burden.

Every farmer in Windham county is to be invited to join the Windham County Farmers' Association in a membership campaign now under way. The campaign is in charge of Alexander Maitland, of Thompson, chairman of a committee recently appointed to direct the membership drive.

Although the work of the association is supported in part by county, state and federal funds, a state law passed in 1919 makes it necessary that at least $1,000 shall be raised annually from private sources before the public money is available. As the Farmers' Association is the only means of raising this local guarantee, it is pointed out that a large membership is necessary to the continuance of the educational work for betterment of agriculture that has been so popular in recent years.

There are now about 300 members of the Farmers' Association and it is hoped to double this number by July 1. To that end, all new memberships obtained within the next few weeks will be dated to continue until July 1, 1925. Committees are to be named for every town in the county to help push the membership drive.

The association has recently published a booklet containing "a personal message to every farmer in Windham county." It tells briefly of the many lines of work in which the organization is seeking to be of service to the farmers of the county. This booklet may be had by writing to the Windham County Farmers' Association, Room 4, Union Block, Putnam.

JEWETT CITY

William T. Crumb becomes the postmaster at Jewett City, within [illegible] days. As told in [illegible] Bulletin his appointment was [illegible] the senate Monday. Few appointments in this state will appear as having been more truly earned and decidedly merited that that which has just been given Mr. Crumb. A twenty-two years record of efficient service in the postoffice department, as mailing clerk and assistant postmaster stand to his credit. No appointment to the Jewett City office ever met with more general public satisfaction, or was less contested. Mr. Crumb's 22 years of service has been under Postmasters W. H. Brown and Daniel F. Finn. His time of postoffice experience has been longer by considerable many years than the term of any postmaster, equipping him to come to the position with all necessary qualifications.

The clerks in the office after the change, will be Thomas Barnett, Gilbert Miner and a certified substitute, Paul Fabian. From a list of records secured by Daniel L. Phillips in the postoffice department in Washington, is gleaned the long forgotten and little known local record including the list of postmasters [illegible] were named and served in a [illegible] age.

The succession of postmasters is as follows: Samuel Button, appointed in 1837; James Johnson 1841; Samuel Button, reappointed 1843; James Johnson, reappointed 1850; Francis S. Burgess, 1853; Henry T. Crumb, 1861; Thomas A. Clark 1858; Nathan Peet, Potter 1861; after which came Alfred A. Brown, James H. Finn, Arthur C. Ladd, James H. Finn (second term), William H. Brown, 16 years of service, Daniel F. Finn and William T. Crumb. This office has been kept in the old George Wilcox house; the "Old Bank building," so called; the one-time Blanchard store, due east from the old Button tavern; in the house now owned by Dennis Barnett's children; in the store in the Liberty hall block now occupied by B. R. Gardner and in the then Whiting (now Bassett) block, occupied by the Jewett City Trust company.

Assistants from W. J. Stoddard's office in Boston, chief clerk of division one of the railway mail service, came here now each year and examine the clerks upon the state of New England.

Thomas Barnett is the senior clerk and the logical man to become assistant postmaster, yet, this will not occur until after another service examination.

NUXATED IRON

WEAK NERVES AND THIN BLOOD

RUIN HEALTH OF THOUSANDS WITHOUT THEIR EVER SUSPECTING THE REAL CAUSE OF THEIR TROUBLE—IRON STARVATION

An enormous number of people who ought to be strong, vigorous and in the prime of life are constantly complaining of weak nerves, headaches, pains across the back, disturbed digestion, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, a general "run-down" condition, melancholy, bad memory, etc., all as a result of iron starvation of the blood.

There are 20,000,000,000,000 red blood corpuscles in your blood and each one must have iron. Without iron your blood also loses its power to change food into living cells and tissue, and nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it and as a consequence you become greatly weakened both in body and mind.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, because it is organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples and not metallic iron which people usually take. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

worth more than cheap clothes

WHY DOES ONE SUIT SELL FOR $30, and another for $50; although both seem to be made from the same cloth?

IN THE FIRST PLACE, EVEN though the cloth in the two suits came from the same mill, it is far from being identical when it reaches the consumer in the form of clothing.

FOR EXAMPLE, THE HOUSE OF Kuppenheimer, the World's Largest Makers of fine Clothes, considers all fabrics simply as "raw material." Even the finest silk, or worsted, or cassimere must be treated, or "tempered" in a dozen different ways before it is cut up and tailored.

THIS REFINISHING, WHICH IS not done by makers of cheaper clothing, adds to the cost of the garment. But it also adds materially to the appearance, quality, service, and value of the clothes.

IT IS THIS SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT of materials, coupled with tailoring skill of the highest type, that has caused Kuppenheimer customers to say, "for some reason or other Kuppenheimer clothes, after a period of wear, look better and stand up better than cheaper clothes."

HEARING FROM HOME.

Vermont is to have its republican state convention on Friday. Congressman Gibson of Brattleboro was selected for temporary chairman and accepted. He was on his way home from Washington, after casting his vote to override the veto of the president on the bonus bill, when he learned of the protests that were being made in large numbers by the people of Vermont against his serving in such a capacity because of his refusal to stand by the president.

The protests were such as to cause him to seek the advice of the republican officials and the result was that he decided not to act.

Congressman Gibson of Vermont was one of the congressman who had heard from home before he voted. He knew the attitude of the people and he decided to disregard it. He has since heard from the people and he has apparently come to a realization of the fact that the people are standing by the president instead of those who opposed him.

One Vermont congressman has seemed to issue a statement in which he declares that, "I am for President Coolidge first, last and all the time and am doing everything I can to insure his election." Too late. From the attitude taken by the republicans of Vermont little confidence is expressed in that kind of talk. Congressman Gibson's actions speak louder than words. When he had the opportunity to show that he was standing by the president and doing all he could to insure his election he failed. Perhaps he justified his action in his own eyes but he failed to impress the people back home.

There are numerous other members of congress, and not all members of the lower house, who perhaps think they have pulled the wool over the eyes of their constituents and can make them believe that they are standing loyally back of President Coolidge but support that means repudiation of leadership doesn't impress. Congressman Gibson perhaps realizes now, more than he did a week ago that election day is coming. There are New England members of congress who failed to support the president and New England hasn't overlooked it and isn't going to forget.

DELAYING ACTION.

With a little over two weeks remain in which congress can take action on a number of legislation that is before it. From the attitude which it manifested at the beginning it was evident that the congress was determined that it would accomplish just about as little as possible. This was displayed by the conduct of the democrats and radical republicans, and it has since been increased by the manner in which they have been joined by certain regular republicans.

It is useless to expect that any volume of business is to be accomplished before the date agreed upon for adjournment. There are many measures that will be put through at the last moment and the efforts to get eleventh hour consideration for matters of importance that deserve more than half baked deliberation will not be missing.

After it has been kept asleep for the entire session, intentionally or otherwise, and only as the result of persistent demands for a report on it has the world court proposition been brought to life. And now the plan recommended by the president is marked for the sidetrack if Senator Lodge can have his way and get through a pet scheme which he has produced. The chairman of the foreign relations committee must realize that his effort has brought forth faint praise. It has received a cool reception because it is interpreted as being an effort to block the world court plan and because it is bound to mean delay and uncertainty. There is nothing in it that is going to appeal to the other countries and its appeal to this country has not as yet been discovered.

The delay that has been occasioned in dealing with this proposition is such as to create a poor impression of the committee that is responsible. To endeavor to resurrect it at the last minute does little better. The obstruction tactics should have been dispensed with and the matter allowed to come forward for a decision on its merits.

THE POST AT TOKIO.

Clearly this is not the time for a vacancy in the ambassadorship at Tokio, but it has come about and must be faced. Ambassador Cyrus E. Woods has forwarded his resignation and it has been accepted. The post must henceforth be filled by another, but it is a position that few will be anxious to assume.

Ambassador Woods was no novice as a diplomat when he was sent to Japan. He went there from a period of excellent service in Spain and he has demonstrated to his own country as well as to Japan what an admirable choice he was for the place. Perhaps he had an unusual opportunity in which to display his ability, the recent earthquakes in Japan presenting a situation that was extraordinary, but it only emphasizes the fact that he met whatever situation arose with such fitting service that he was instrumental in strengthening the relationship between the nations. What his ambassadorship has meant is reflected in the disappointment displayed in Tokio over his resignation.

Ambassador Woods gives as his reason for his resignation the fact that the health of his mother-in-law demands it, and he points out that conditions are such that this is a favorable time. It receives more attention at this time because of the fact that congress has just taken such a determined stand in behalf of Japanese exclusion that it insists upon the tearing up of the gentlemen's agreement, and thereby creates a needless affront to Japan.

In view of his service there, and the fact that it is known that he is much opposed to such action, it can be appreciated that it has played no small part in prompting his decision at this time. Naturally he has not said so. He is too much of a diplomat to undertake any such thing, but it will be impossible to convince many that congress has not been the cause of his retirement. He leaves a post for which it is safe to say that there will not be a rush of applicants, and for the same reason that he is leaving it.

CLEANUPS NEEDED.

We are getting to that season of the year when civic pride usually prompts the cleaning up of the community for Memorial day. It is in this part of May that organized efforts have been conducted with good results in the past and many a section has been made to look spic and span, for the time being at least, in marked contrast to what it had been.

This is the season too when nature through increasing the foliage is helping to cover up some of the eyesores. But whether there is an organized clean-up movement underway the desirability of individually getting back of such an effort cannot be disregarded. Invariably there is greater appreciation for such results after they have been obtained, than there was in anticipation, but the example is worth setting and the end is worth striving for.

Whether it means the relief from badly littered streets, the cleaning up of backyards or the beautification of grounds there is much to commend in it, and while such a thing is in mind attention might well be directed to the overcoming of those unsightly places where front yards, backyards and sideyards are filled with tons of junk, scrap of various kinds and material which is awaiting the reworking process.

Many a street is marred by just such distressing displays which, if they do not jar those who make their homes adjacent, are certainly neighborhood detractors. Cleanups that would get such material under cover and out of sight would be a decided improvement. Norwich has much that can be done in the way of temporary and permanent cleanups.

THE DEFAULT QUESTION.

When the conference between the premier of Italy and the premier and foreign minister of Belgium was held at Milan this week, it was the view of the Italian premier that there could and should be an agreement among the allied nations as to the penalty in case Germany defaulted. This was of course based upon the general acceptance of the provisions of the Dawes report, and was prompted because of the tendency of Germany to balk or default and because there has not been any certainty that the allied nations could reach an agreement upon this point.

France could be expected to be favorable to such a move, for it was upon such an understanding, previously made, that it made the move for the occupation of the Ruhr when Germany failed to keep its promises.

According to the reported British view the determination now of what the penalty should be for default would not be fair, that they should wait until the default took place and then it might be determined what should be done. At once there comes to mind the situation of France previous to the Ruhr's occupation when it sought to have the British join in the application of the penalty but was forced to go it alone as was its right.

Penalties, it might be pointed out, are invariably fixed before promises are broken, before crime is committed before defaults take place. This is considered one of the reasons for respect for promises and laws. If there is a delay until a default has taken place there is no certainty of an agreement which might the more readily be obtained now and serve as a preventive for a default.

There are some senators who seem to be jealous of the votes which the president bids fair to get in the Cleveland convention.

The example of Senator Greene of Vermont in getting out of a hospital for the first time in order to support the president rather puts to shame those of the New England republicans senators who insisted on voting against him.

RUBBER COMPLEX

"Oh, Edgar!" the very new wife called from the raised front window of the apartment, "wait a minute! It's raining! Come back and get your rubbers!"

"Huh?" stammered Edward. Then he turned and retraced his steps and his little wife met him at the door, galoshes in hand.

"Drop 'em," the very new husband advised her, seating himself as though for quite a stay. "Anywhere will do! There is something I have in mind about those rubbers that I have to get out of my system.

"All my life I have suffered from rubbers, ever since I was old enough to take them off the minute I got out of sight of home and park them under some other boy's porch. It was easier than arguing with my mother.

"When my best girl lived right next door and I was emerging in King Solomon attire to take her to the high school dance my front door would open and an anxious voice would call to know whether I had on my rubbers.

"'The walks are damp, Eddie,' the voice would insist, 'and I want you to come right back and put on your rubbers! You know you always have such awful colds!'

"And then there came the night of the Z. Y. X. club cotillion, than which nothing was swaggerer in town. I looked pretty fine that night with my first long-tailed coat and a pale, distinguished countenance suitable for a man of the world slightly bored with existence. Just as I rose to greet the fashionable young creature who swam into the room the phone rang and she answered it.

"'It's your mother, Edgar,' she informed me. 'She says she's so glad she caught you before you left, because it is beginning to rain and she wants you to come round to your house and get your rubbers.'

"She said it in a perfectly expressionless voice but I realized that all was over, for no girl can madly love a man who wears rubbers.

"I don't know why it is but the minute a man puts on a pair of rubbers he automatically removes himself from the brave, free, red-blooded, husky son-of-the-plains class and the girls expect him to take snuff and read Shakespeare by choice. The few times I did wear rubbers I could feel my muscles turning to mush and my hair part[illegible] thin. I would have apologized to a fly for disturbing [illegible] would have looked like a dangerous game.

"When I went to college my rubbers emerged when I unpacked my trunk, neatly wrapped in paper, and it took me several semesters to live them down. The boys were suspicious of me for a long time. Every letter from home would have a postscript, reminding me not to neglect my health and to be sure to wear my rubbers when it rained.

"All that saved me with you was the fact that you lived in a different town and were ignorant of the fact that I was supposed to wear rubbers. I could fix my own brave, noble, courageous self without any disastrous throw-downs. One thing which first charmed me with you was that I never heard rubbers mentioned in your house. Your father and brother were allowed to venture forth in the cold wet world with no more protection on their feet than their heavy leather shoes and two-inch soles and nobody had hysterics when a storm blew up.

"I had no idea until this moment, Cora Mae, that the rubbers-in-every-weather complex was an affliction that the general run of women suffered from, and this is where I nip it in the bud! No doubt all the the residents of this exclusive apartment building are even now running back and forth whispering to each other in dismay and contempt that isn't it a shame that simply handsome man on the third floor wears rubbers and what's more his wife has to tell him when to put them on! By the way, why don't you ever wear them yourself?"

"Never you mind why I don't wear 'em," Cora Mae told him, rolling up his rubbers hastily in the nearest piece of newspaper. "I guess I'll give these to the rummage sale if you are bound and determined to get your feet wet."

"You bet I am!" the new husband declared as he once more started out with the air of a conqueror. "And I shall sort of idle along till I get out of sight of this building so everybody can see I haven't got 'em on!"—Chicago News.

HERSHEY WENT BACK TO THE FARM.

As long as he tried to make money, Milton S. Hershey could not. His efforts away from home were not successful, but when he gave up and went back he made two fortunes.

He was born on a farm near Lancaster, Pa., and attended the little school near by and worked in the fields until he was 18 years old. Farming became too lonesome and he became printers' devil for a Lancaster weekly newspaper, but gave it up to be apprentice for a confectioner.

When 21 he had saved $150, and he started in business for himself, making caramels in Philadelphia. Not succeeding, he went to New York and, after enduring hardships, he met with failure there.

He then thought he would never be rich, so he went back to Lancaster, and, when 31, began making caramels once more. Business came quickly, and in a few years he developed a concern that he sold for $1,000,000.

Having enough to give him sufficient comforts for life, he retired, and with his wife made a tour of the world. Soon after their return to Philadelphia, his wife died, and he became lonesome.

He had used chocolate in making caramels, and in Lancaster once more, he started making a specialty of chocolate. He introduced the milk and almond chocolate bars and soon needed a larger factory. Going back to the farm where he was born, he built a plant and established the model city of Hershey.

He was considered "old fashioned" in business, he had no telephones in his office and seldom wrote a letter, but his concern grew until it was estimated to be worth $60,000,000.

Following plans made by his wife and himself, he established the Hershey Industrial School for orphan boys. Later he turned over to it the Hershey Chocolate company to supply the institution with funds.

And when, five years later, his gift became known, he was acclaimed as one of the greatest philanthropists of the time. And he still is a millionaire and happy in caring for his remaining interests.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who celebrates his 65th birthday today, is known everywhere and to everybody as the creator of Sherlock Holmes. He has naturally been pleased with this world-wide fame, but it has not been an unmixed pleasure. He once said that he wished America might have taken a little less eagerly to the detective tales and evidenced more enthusiasm for his historical romances, which he regards as his best work. Although famed as a novelist, cricketer, traveler in the Arctic, patron of the ring, and historian, few are aware that in addition to these many gifts Sir Arthur is a fully qualified M. D. For a number of years he had a practice near Southsea. For thirty-five years he has been investigating Spiritualism, starting as a convinced unbeliever. More and more he has been won over to complete faith in communications with the spirit world, and in numerous articles and on the lecture platform he has set down the story of his program from scepticism to belief.

Stories That Recall Others

Jimmy's Impressions.

"Well, Jimmy, did you enjoy your visit to the museum?"

"Yes, mamma."

"Do you remember any of the nice things you saw?"

"Oh, yes, I remember lots of them."

"And can you tell me what they were called?"

"Yes; most of them were called 'Do not touch.'"

Make It With Ease.

"The figure of a speed limit in any city is usually regarded by the automobilists as the minimum pace that should be attained," said one police officer. He was talking to a driver.

"That's true in big cities," said the driver whose car bore the registration of a large state. "The low limits get no respect. Few observe them. They are like a friend of mine who was driving on a stretch of road the other day and came to a sign reading, 'Speed limit 30 miles an hour.' And his reaction on it was 'We can make that easily.'"

POSSIBILITIES OF SAVINGS

The story often has been recounted of the fabulous increases in values that have come since Peter Minuet on May 6, 1626 purchased Manhattan Island from the Indians for trinkets valued at $24. If the same amount of money had been set aside at the time and had been kept intact with its accumulation of interest compounded at six per cent semi-annually it would now be approximately one billion dollars.

The present wealth of the United States is given as $320,000,000,000. Yet all of this incomprehensible sum could have grown during the same 300 years from the comparatively insignificant amount of $6,500 with interest compounded semi-annually at six per cent.

These figures are made use of merely to illustrate the almost incredible possibilities of savings when allowed to remain undisturbed with income accumulations.

In a certain New England city there recently was received for deposit at a savings bank a check for $70 with the stipulation that it was to be left untouched until the year 2224 when, at the bank's current interest rates, it will have amounted to $14,000,000.

It is interesting to know that if the rates were six per cent the heirs would have turned over to them in the year 2224, $3,500,000,000 with a few odd hundred thousand dollars left over.

If an individual were today to set aside for his heirs or for some philanthropic purpose the sum of $1,000 to remain untouched for one hundred years with interest at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually the amount on hand at the end of the century would be $369,360.

Perhaps it is well to have these interesting facts brought to mind in order to disprove the statements so often made that colossal accumulations are possible only as the result of some good stroke of fortune.

What I have related as to the possibilities of savings and compound interest can, in the same manner, be applied to the more modest practices, because the principles involved are the same. Small savings are as prolific as large ones.

Through the slow, steady upbuilding of possessions by means of the systematic reinvestment of income, come eventual results that eclipse anything that could be accomplished in any other manner unless a very unusual element of good luck should enter into the tranactions. — American Society for Thrift.

Joint-Ease
Says Druggist

"Joint-Ease is selling like hot cakes in my store because it is a wonderful and speedy remedy for all joint troubles.

"But why not impress on tens of thousands of suffering people some of the things that dozens of my customers tell me almost daily.

"Some say that it knocks out lumbago over night — Others assert that for chest colds and sore throat it has no equal, while many insist that there is nothing they ever tried that is so efficient for neuralgia, neuritis and even head colds and nasal catarrh."

Answering the above letter, we, the makers of Joint-Ease, know that what this thriving New Jersey druggist says is true, but we still maintain that Joint-Ease is prepared for stiff, inflamed, painful, swollen joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine.

You'll like to use stainless Joint-Ease, for with just one minute's rubbing, it soaks in through the flesh direct to the ailing bones and ligaments—that's why it succeeds — for when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out — quick — and without any waste of time all swelling and congestion disappears. A tube for 60 cents. Lee & Osgood Co., sells lots of Joint-Ease.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF YOUR MEDICINE CHEST

Where would the home remedies go if they went home?

Put this question to the family medicine cabinet but keep the door closed. If the vials were seized by magic to depart for their native lands the householder would have to spend years of travel and thousands of dollars for train, steamer, rickshaw, junk, camel and bullock cart fare to gather them once more.

"When a man gets sick he calls on the whole world as well as a doctor to make him healthy, the geography of a typical home medicine cabinet discloses," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington, D. C.

"Willie Jones went on an apple raid and got a stomach ache, a cold in his head from wet feet, and a bruise on his shoulder and a cut on h is hand when he fell out of the apple tree. Willie's mother made him swallow essence of Asia for his stomach ache, rubbed his shoulder with spirits of Taiwan (Formosa), made him take a pellet composed of a substance from a treasury millions of years old and an acid from the forest timber for his cold, cleaned the cut with tincture of South America and bound up his hand with a product of Georgia, Colorado, Greece and the busy sea.

"In the family medicine cabinet these heroic-sounding remedies bore more familiar names. Ginger, a bulbous root, from India, relieved his stomach. Spirits of the camphor tree from Japan's tropic island took the pain out of his shoulder. Aspirin or acid acetylsalicylic, for his cold, came partly from coal tar passed into coal from vegetation during the carboniferous age and partly from ordinary wood vinegar. Willie's mother prevented infection in the cut with iodine, a by-product of Chile's nitrates. She wrapped up his hand with cotton gauze and adhesive tape, the latter containing cotton from Georgia, oxide of lead from Colorado, olive oil from Greece, and wax.

"Contributions from remote sources come to the medicine chest. Land animals, fish, flowers, plants, trees, ancient rocks, salts dissolved in superheated waters come and steaming springs are often represented in the emergency case.

"When a woman faints [illegible] gallantly join hands to bring her to consciousness. To make [illegible] spirits of ammonia the chemist [illegible] monia from [illegible] oil of lemon from [illegible] of Europe, [illegible] cute oil of lavender from [illegible] ques to the Banda Islands, an out-of-the-way dot on the map of the Dutch East Indies, for oil of myristica, which is distilled from nutmegs and adds alcohol from a corn field.

"Not only do the Banda Islands supply the essence of nutmeg, but also the essence of history. Many [illegible] quests of world colonies and wars over spice, of Venice that was, Vasco da Gama's voyage and of the spice island's place in world affairs today. Marble palaces on Venetian canals were built with cargoes of nutmegs. But Shakespeare's Antonio and his fellow merchants never knew from whence they came. Venetian traders got them from the Arabs, the Arabs from India, and beyond that they knew not.

"The Portuguese [illegible] the monopolies nutmeg to the world, [illegible] merged volcanic cone, [illegible] they built a fort. The Dutch [illegible] the Portuguese for the nutmeg island and are still there.

Refrigerators, which outlaw tainted food, made it unnecessary to drown viands with spice, so business in the Spice Islands slumped. They now turn to medicines, quinine, myristica, camphor, and ginger. But deserted fine Dutch mansions in Banda are monuments to another medicine, hair tonic.

"Our grandfathers, with a fellow fear of baldness, [illegible] Macassar oil on their hair. This oil which made the antimacassar essential on the backs of nineteenth century easy chairs, was made from a seed of an Indian tree, which, like the nutmeg tree, grew readily in Banda. Dutch 'baldness' became opulent by selling Macassar oil until it went out of fashion taking with it Banda's prosperity.

"Epsom salts, which takes its name from health springs at Epsom, England, near the famous Derby downs, and milk of magnesia, are made chiefly from magnesite mined on the island of Euboea, [illegible] of the eastcoast of Greece, at the Italian Piedmont and near Madras, India. Euboea had health springs also and they were visited by the Grecians.

"Boracic acid, an eye wash, or as borax, a washing fluid, not only comes from Death Valley, made famous by the twenty mule team but also and chiefly from the bowels of the earth, [illegible] one of Italy's richest [illegible] possesses except for its [illegible] is the Maremma, a fever-submerged spot, which contains steaming springs. Boric acid was found in lagoons made by these springs. Finally engineers decided to put artificial walls around the spring and let the water flow from tank to tank. Evaporation brings boric acid crystals automatically and these are skimmed off, dried and sent into commerce."

WIFE OF "KING OF THE BOOTLEGGERS" ARRESTED

Cincinnati, May 21.—Mrs. Imogene Demus, wife of George E. Remus, nationally known as "king of the bootleggers," now serving a term of two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, was arrested here today on a similar charge.

Edward Menninger, salesman, this city, was also arrested as one of the conspirators and another man was being sought by federal officers.

The arrests were made following receipt in Cincinnati of an indictment returned against Mrs. Remus and the others in St. Louis, Mo., on Monday.

The indictment grew out of an investigation made by federal agents and charged the removal of 681 barrels containing 70,000 gallons of whiskey from the Jack Daniel distillery wharehouse at St. Louis as the result of an alleged conspiracy by Mrs. Remus and others.

It is alleged that the whiskey was removed between June 1, 1923, and January 2, 1924, to be sold and distributed in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri.

"The washings done with Rinso were a revelation.

"The work of washing was cut almost in half, there was scarcely any rubbing and the towels came out as white as though new off the bolt.

"We gave them a good trial, too. We took very soiled towels and gave them many washings. The strength of our fine quality cotton yarn was not lessened by these washings, and the finish of the towels was just as beautiful as it was before laundering."

Fresh clean towels without hard rubbing

Pour this into your tub and let your towels soak in these cleansing suds. This soaking takes the place of rubbing. The loosened dirt flushes right off in the rinsing.

If your towels are very grimy from the children's hands or from hands that have cleaned the car, after soaking you will want to sprinkle a little dry Rinso on the worst places and rub them lightly between your hands. Then even this dirt will come out with only a light rubbing.

Use the wonderful Rinso soap-suds in your tubs, boiler, or washing machine in the ordinary way. Always use enough Rinso to get big lasting suds after the clothes are put in. You'll find it ideal for all the family wash.

Even the dirt they actually rub into the towels is gently loosened in the rich Rinso soap-suds.

COAST GUARD MAN WAYLAID AND BEATEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 21.—Earl S. Burns, radio man, third class, stationed at the Coast Guard Academy, was waylaid in an attempt to rob him shortly before 10 o'clock tonight. Charles J. Adams, 61 Monroe street, New Haven, was later arrested and confessed to having committed the assault on Burns. Burns was badly beaten about the face and head with a piece of iron pipe and is in the hospital at the Academy.

Burns was going across the Shaw's Cove bridge on his way to the Academy when about midway across the structure he was attacked by Adams who wielded the pipe upon Burns' head and face, the blows knocking Burns down after which Adams rifled his pockets but found nothing in the way of plunder.

While Burns was lying on the bridge, Adams pretended to have found the victim in a dazen condition and assisting him to his feet aided him to the entrance to the military reservation. Arriving at the academy Burns informed the duty officer of the assault upon him. The police were notified and Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray went to the bridge where they found Adams besmeared with blood, walking across. He was taken into custody and after being taken to the Coast Guard Academy was identified by Burns as the latter's assailant.

THREE FLAMING CROSSES AT RHODE ISLAND INITIATION

While three flaming crosses cast a flickering glow over a white robed assemblage, 1,032 candidates became knights of the Ku Klux Klan at an open air conclave held a few miles from Westerly just across the state line in Rhode Island Friday evening. The entire assemblage numbered approximately 2,500 and included knights from New London and Washington counties, a large number being service men from New London and Newport. Among the notables present at the occasion was the aviator who flew over Ohio recently with the fiery cross of the order flaming from his airplane.

The gathering was closely guarded by a detail of service men who patroled the section of country where the ceremony was held. Everything was conducted in an orderly manner and there was no interference from outside sources. Following the ceremonial of knighting the members of the klan there was a patriotic address dealing largely with the ideals of Americanism by J. P. Williams, who was the speaker of the evening.

Klansmen from Norwich and New London were in attendance at the meeting, both cities being well represented.

MAY FESTIVAL FROLIC BY ST. MARY'S PARISH

The annual May festival and frolic of St. Mary's Memorial church parish, was held Wednesday evening at Pulaski hall and like previous affairs of the parish was one grand success, over $1,000 being realized for the benefit of the new Memorial church. The success of the evening was due in great part to the untiring efforts of Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, who acted as chairman of the festival, and he was ably assisted by various committees of men and women of the parish.

It was Father Coholan's initial undertaking in parish activities and everyone was pleased with the affair and that it was such a grand success, socially and financially.

Fully 800 parishioners and their friends gathered in the hall during the evening and the various booths were well patronized, most of the choice things they had to offer being sold some time before the affair was brought to a close.

Previous to the entertainment of the evening, Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church, spoke a few words of welcome and expressed pleasure in having for a guest of honor at the festival, Mayor Milo R. Waters and a number of the members of the Court of Common council.

The entertainment of the evening was divided into two parts, acting and dance numbers being in charge of Edward T. Connelly and James E. Murphy, while the song numbers were arranged by Henry La Fontaine. The first number of the program was entitled Fun in a Chinese Laundry, the parts being taken by James E. Murphy as John Chong, the Chinese laundryman, and Sam Johnson, the president of the Dark Town club, by Edward T. Connelly. This sketch gave both men a chance to display ability, and the title of Fun in a Chinese Laundry was more than lived up to, Mr. Connelly as Sam Johnson, the man wishing to receive his laundry without producing the usual check getting many a laugh when he tried various means of persuasion on the Chinaman, Mr. Murphy, but quit when he found himself facing the broadside of two hot flatirons.

In the sketch Mr. Connelly also delighted his audience with two pleasing song numbers, Can't You Hear Me Calling Caroline and I'm Sitting Pretty in a Pretty Little City, the latter selection being given as an encore after insistent applause.

Following the comedy Fred "Chip" Dugas of Taftville gave a fine exhibition of fancy clog dancing, being called back for an encore by a delighted audience.

The closing numbers on the program were rendered by Warren Kane, tenor soloist. Mr. Kane selected for his number, Roll On Beautiful World, Roll On, by Ball, this selection giving him opportunity to display a voice of depth and feeling. For an encore he gave an old favorite, Mother Machree, also by Ball, this also being sung in fine voice [illegible] Spellman's orchestra played dance numbers and those present enjoyed dancing until close on to midnight when the prizes were awarded and the festival brought to a close as one of the most successful ever held by the parish.

The committee in charge of the affair were as follows: General chairman, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan; entertainment, Edward T. Connelly, James E. Murphy and Henry LaFontaine; ticket office, Joseph A. Donnelly; door tender, Patrick J. Sullivan and Simon J. Fahey; coat room, Edward McNerney; ice cream and soda booth, William H. Bowen; radio booth, George Madden; activities James H. Quinn, Napoleon Kerouack John Morrison and Dora Semineau.

A feature of the festival was the May basket booth where beautiful May baskets, filled with 'goodies" of all kinds were offered. These were donated by women of the parish, others assisted in the selling. The booth was in charge of Mrs. Lawrence Millea. Mrs. R. L. Bissonette, Mrs. John O'Rourke, Mrs. M. J. Cummings, Mrs Alphonse Bellefleur, Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings, Miss Margaret Driscoll Miss Mary Delaney, Miss Margaret Counihan and Miss Hannah O'Donnell.

The children of the parish also ably assisted the various booth chairmen by selling during the evening, aiding in making the festival a success.

CHURCHMEN VOTE FOR LEAGUE AGAINST WAR

Hartford, May 21. — Resolutions thanking President Coolidge for his efforts against the passage of the Japanese exclusion clause of the immigration bill, urging entry of the United States into the league of nations or to organize some other effective council of nations to hinder future wars, and endorsing the project for a world conference on faith and order were among the resolves adopted by the Connecticut diocesan convention of the Protestant Episcopal church at the closing session this afternoon.

A debate on the merits of a resolution for the cause of universal peace resulted first in amendment and eventually in tabling it, for the reason that it was framed in language too weak and inadequate, and as one delegate termed it "an insult to the workers for world peace." The resolution was not explicit in advocating any plan for peace among nations but simply recommended the cause to the prayers of the people.

The elections to committees and councils were as follows: For the standing committee, Rev. William A. Beardsley, D. D., St. Thomas church, New Haven; Rev. Samuel R. Colladay, D. D., Christ church cathedral, Hartford; Rev. George T. Linsley, Church of the Good Shepherd, Hartford; Rev. George M. Thompson, D. D., Christ church, Greenwich; Rev. J. Chauncey Linsley, D. D., Trinity church, Torrington; for members of the executive council, Rev. John N. Lewis, D. D., St. John's, Waterbury; Burton Mansfield, New Haven; for deputies to the synod of the first province, Rev. William J. Brewster, St. Michael's, Litchfield; Rev. Walter D. Humphrey, Christ church, Roxbury; Rev. H. Baxter Liebler, St. Paul's, Riverside; Rev. John H. Rosebaugh, director of religious education, Hartford; Alfred Gildersleeve, Portland; Harry H. Hemminway, Watertown; Burton Mansfield, New Haven; Charles A. Pease, Hartford; substitutes, Rev. J. Eldred Brown, Trinity church, Norwich; Rev. Aaron C. Coburn, St. James, Danbury; Rev. William T. Hooper, St. John's, Hartford; Rev. James S. Neill, St. Mary's, South Manchester; Daniel S. Sanford, Redding; Charles E. Cornwall, New Haven; William R. C. Corson, Hartford; Frederick W. Kilbourne, Meriden.

The educational exhibit which was in progress during the convention showing the work being done in the church schools of the diocese comprised programs and specimens of work from more than twenty parishes in the state. It was actively in charge of Mrs. William T. Hooper, and Miss Barbara R. Warse, under the direction of William T. Hooper, chairman of the board of religious education and Rev. John H. Rosebaugh, director of religious education.

STRANGLER LEWIS DEFENDS HIS TITLE AGAINST GARDINI FOR THE SECOND TIME

Philadelphia, May 21.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis successfully defended his world's heavyweight wrestling title tonight against Renato Gardini, the claimant of the Italian championship. After the second fall, which Lewis won in 15 minutes, 40 seconds, with a series of headlocks, the challenger left the ring and it was announced by club physicians that he was unable to continue the match. Gardini won the first fall in 26 minutes, 18 seconds with a toe hold.

Lewis assumed the offensive at the opening gong, going after Gardini with headlocks. After the challenger had escaped from three with apparently little difficulty, the champion began to use a defensive game, allowing Gardini to tire himself with useless holds. Each time that Gardini attempted to pinion Lewis with his favorite toe hold the older grappler backed away or took refuge momentarily in out of bounds, from which the men were forced to resume an upright position.

Neither man left the ring during the intermission. When the bell sounded Lewis began an offensive which was interrupted but once. Leaping at Gardini, he seized him in a flying headlock and brought him to the mat with a crash. As Gardini escaped from each hold, Lewis followed him closely and seized him again before he could locate himself. Gardini was punished severely in the champion's repeated embraces and staggered noticeably when he managed to free himself.

With a final headlock, Lewis smashed the challenger to the mat, flat on his back. So exhausted was Gardini that he did not attempt to arch to prevent a fall being called against him.

Gardini lay on the mat for a minute or two. When he arose, he threw both arms across his eyes in a gesture of despair, while his numerous admirers in the audience preserved an expressive silence. Assisted by his seconds, Gardini left the ring, while Lewis, smiling and apparently as fresh as when he started, sat in his corner reading a racing periodical.

Fifteen minutes later, five minutes more than the rest period allowed, Gardini reappeared and Chairman William G. Rocap, of the state athletic commission, announced that the club's physician had declared the Italian challenger unable to proceed.

RHODES SCHOLAR RETURNS FOR OLYMPIC TRYOUTS

New York, May 21—Deciding not to risk [illegible] chances of making the American Olympic track team in a special tryout overseas, S. Harrison Thompson, American Rhodes scholar at Oxford and former Princeton star, has returned to compete in the trials for the main body of candidates in this country.

Thompson, who has gone to Princeton to complete his training, is entered in the 110-metre high hurdles, and the shotput at the eastern Olympic tryouts June 7 at the Yankee stadium. If successful he will go to Boston the following week for the final tryouts. In addition he has entered the decathlon, or all-around tryout here June 10.

Thompson won the 120-yard high hurdles and finished fifth in the shotput at the 1923 intercollegiate championships. He held national all-around titles in 1921 and 1922.

According to Thompson, the other track athletes among the Rhodes scholars, including W. E. Stevenson, formerly of Princeton, and B. M. Baker, formerly of Virginia, will not return for the tryouts, preferring to engage in special tryouts overseas to determine their fitness.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

No player should ever yell for a fly unless he is positive he can catch it and an outfielder should always take a ball of this kind because he is coming in on the run and is in a position to throw it to any position on the diamond without turning. If the shortstop caught such a ball he has to turn and run out for it and after he catches it he has to make a turn as a rult in order to make a play on the diamond.

As soon as an outfielder sees he can make a catch of this kind he should yell "I have it" and the shortstop should answer by yelling "Take it!". Of course, if the shortstop sees that the outfielder cannot make it he should take it and yell in the same way so the outfielder will not run in to him just about the time he gets the ball or right afterwards.

TECH CONFIDENT OF TRIMMING ACADEMY

New London, May 21.—Fans [illegible] expected to fly when the Chapman Tech-Norwich Free Academy teams [illegible] the field against each other Friday afternoon at New London. Chapman Tech has nursed a grudge against the Red and White ever since receiving the defeat at the hands of the Academy two weeks ago. Chapman looks toward this contest as the contest of the year and to atone that lucky defeat tacked upon them by the Academy, in a ninth inning finish. The Chapman Tech players claim that an injustice was made to them, when one of the Academy players was allowed to advance two bases on an error in [illegible] one. As it proved later, this player that advanced two bases on an overthrow was the man that scored the winning run.

Morris Brown, the dusky Chapman Tech slabman, has promised to wreak vengeance by striking out the majority of the Academy players. Even though the Academy bring down a few black cats and shoo them across Brown's path, he faithfully promises to stick to the original promise to win at all costs from the Academy. Brown is inclined to be a trifle superstitious and most generally avoids traversing the same path a black cat has once crossed in front of him. With his determination to retire the Academy batsmen through the strikeout route Brown is to be feared if he is right the day of the game. He has plenty of stuff and is quite effective if he rolls out of bed on the right side of the bed. If he rolls out of bed on the right side on Friday morning—Academy [illegible].

The Tech team has been unable to hold any practice this week [illegible] of Monday. The rain has been pouring here cats and dogs at times that made it impossible for practice to be held.

WILLS-MADDEN BOUT IS AGAIN POSTPONED

New York, May 21.—The clouds of official disapproval which have hovered over the Queensboro A. C., in Long Island City since the first postponement of the Wills-Madden bout, continue to darken the atmosphere into which the heavyweight match was plunged when rain interrupted the card on the original date set for the bout.

Continued conferences between the promoters and officials of the fire department, who pressed a bomb into the [illegible] machinery by condemning the big wooden saucer of the Queensboro club, have failed to bring about an agreement.

The promoters of the club officially announced today that the match would not be held on Friday night but refrained from giving out any further information concerning a probable date or place.

INTERSCHOLASTIC TRACK AND FIELD MEET SATURDAY

(Special to the Bulletin.)

New London, May 21.—The annual Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic outdoor track meet will be held at Morgan Park, New London on Saturday. Schools that have entered in the meet, are Norwich Free Academy, Chapman Technical High of New London, Stonington High and Westerly High. A large number of entries are expected from the schools mentioned above. It is the biggest track event of the year, and yearly the various schools look forward eagerly to the day that the meet will take place.

There is some good material among the high school teams and if any of this material has been laying dormant prior to this meet, it is expected that it will be brought to light. The records for the meet, are almost sure to be broken. Courbois of Chapman Tech in making the 100 yard run in 11 seconds flat will give some of the other runners from the three remaining High school teams, something to think about. Westerly High produces good material yearly, as does Norwich Free Academy. The four high schools entered in the meet have arranged their baseball schedule, so that nothing will interfere with the track meet. Norwich Free Academy plays Chapman Tech on Friday at New London and the other teams will remain idle on Saturday and track will occupy the limelight for that day.

Whether there will be a bout in September depends upon what the various parties I will see next month say."

ELIGIBILITY OF TRAPS STAR IS QUESTIONED

New York, May 21—Frank Hughes, of Mogridge, S. D., trapshooting star whose amateur status has been questioned since his selection as a member of the Olympic team, is eligible to represent the United States at the international games so far as the American Olympic committee is concerned.

This was revealed today when Col. Robert M. Thompson, president of the committee, notified George T. McCarthy, of Newfield, N. J., president of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, that Hughes had been cleared of charges against him as the result of a recent hearing in Washington before a board of Olympic officials.

Hughes, together with Frank Troeh, of Vancouver, Wash., another Olympic selection, were charged with having their names used in connection with advertising for an ammunition concern. Troeh has not requested a hearing and no action on his status has been taken so far by the American Olympic committee.

BAD WEATHER PREVENTS ACADEMY BALL PRACTICE

The bad weather of the past two days has prevented the Academy baseball squad from practicing for their game with Chapman Tech tomorrow. He held the Tech team two weeks ago.

James Bence, a member of the crew of the barge Pequot, owned by the ... company, is a pa- ... hospital, suffering from possible fatal injuries sustained early this morning while aboard the craft. Bence's injuries consist of a possible fractured skull, a fractured left arm and third degree burns of the left arm and temple. At the hospital it was stated that Bence's condition was critical.

The Pequot was one of three barges that left port early this morning in tow of the tug R. M. Waterman, en route for the south. A short time after the tow had entered the sound Bence fell into the boiler room of the barge and landed against the boiler. Members of the crew went to the assistance of the injured man and as it was determined that he was seriously injured, the tug was signaled to and turned about and headed for this port. At the wharf of the company an ambulance was awaiting the arrival of the tug and on the craft docking Bence was rushed to the hospital.

Alfred J. Baorst, a sailor on submarine 25, just in from the Panama Canal Zone, was in the police court this morning charged with a breach of the peace and with intoxication. He said he was rightly charged too and that he was guilty. He got into the Star restaurant on State street last night where he seems to have possessed the idea that he was a good deal bigger fellow than he really is, though he is a pretty husky 130-pounder. What Baorst said was resented when it came to 'licking anything of his inches' and a fellow who accepted that as a challenge slapped the 130-pounder in the face a couple of times. Then there was something doing. But for the presence of Joseph Leighton Morrison, a sailor on the Cherwink, there would have been a desperate time for Baorst. Morrison dragged or carried him to the sidewalk where the pair had a scuffle, with the result that there wasn't a plate glass window in the Star when they finished. Officers John J. Cavanaugh and John P. Sullivan mixed in and arrested the pair. Morrison convinced the court that he was a peacemaker and that his part in the mix-up was to save Baorst from a beating. The troublemaker was fined $25 for a breach of the peace and $10 for intoxication. He didn't have the money to pay his fine with so he went to jail to work out his bill.

Joseph Salvidio of Oak street, Norwich, was fined $10 for infraction of the parking ordinance of this city. He was ordered to appear Tuesday, but did not do so. Today he attempted to convince Judge Prince that he expected another notification that he was wanted in the court, but the judge wouldn't be convinced. He asked Salvidio whether he expected an automobile was to be sent after him. Salvidio didn't know how to answer that.

Mike Donohue admitted that he was drunk when arrested. He said he had "something hot," but would not say it was whiskey. He was so frank about his condition that he was allowed to go aboard the lighter on which he is employed. He has never been in the court prior to today and he gave his promise not to get there again.

Flags on the New London line steamers were placed at half mast today as a tribute of respect to the memory of Edward Allison, first mate on the New Haven line steamers many years, whose death occurred at Bridgeport yesterday.

Norris G. Joseph, of Lyme, and Perry Gallup, of Waterford, will be in the justice court of Waterford on a date yet to be determined, to answer to a charge of reckless driving, for today the automobile, owned and operated by Joseph crashed against a stone wall near Pleasure Beach and as a result Joseph suffered fractured ribs and will be unable to appear in court for three weeks. As soon as his condition permits Joseph and Gallup will be summoned before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton. State Policeman Albright of the Groton barracks, is investigating the case. Both autoists were operating their cars from the Pleasure Beach section when they came to a point where they were about to pass. The operation of the cars became so dangerous that Joseph guided his machine too far to one side of the highway, with the result that it skidded and rammed the stone wall beside the road. Joseph was thrown out and was found lying in pain a short time afterwards. When examined by a physician it was disclosed that he had suffered three fractured ribs and numerous bruises. His machine was wrecked. Gallup's car escaped collision, but it is contended that in the speed at which the car was driven was a contributory cause of the accident to Joseph.

City Manager William A. Holt, City Engineer George E. Watters, officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and several members of the city council late this afternoon inspected the grade crossings at Maple avenue and Creacent street. The inspection was made as a result of the controversy waged between the railroad and the city manager relative to the railroad providing adequate protection at the two places, possibly the employing of a flagman there. The railroad has denied responsibility for providing protection at the two points. It is probable that the matter will be brought before the next meeting of the city council.

Masonry work on the Howard street bridge will be completed tomorrow night probably. MORE THAN HALF MILLION PAID SINCE DEC. 15 FOR ROAD WORK

More than a half-million dollars for road construction has been paid to contractors by the state highway department since December 15th, a statement issued Wednesday by the department shows. This is an increase of about 75 per cent over the same period a year ago and shows that construction work continued to a larger extent than during the year previous through the winter, the absence of great amounts of snow making it possible to proceed with road building with less interruption.

Payment to contractors from Dec. 15th to May 15th aggregated $541,564.31 compared with $306,170.57 for the corresponding period last year, the statement shows. As was the case a year ago, the month ending May 15th witnessed a resumption of activity in road construction. For that period alone the department made payments totalling $226,925 and during the same month in 1923 paid $188,797.34 for construction work.

This condition shows the advantage that comes to the state as well as users of its highway, through a mild winter. A winter such as has just passed often affords contractors opportunity to continue their construction work throughout the winter months.

Following is a comparative table of payments made to contractors up to May 15th, 1923, and during the present year:

January	$55,320.11	$103,714.39
February	27,116.05	70,421.72
March	19,037.07	79,103.20
April	15,900.00	61,400.00
May	188,797.34	226,925.00
	$306,170.57	$541,564.31

Following is a list of payments made from April 15 to May 15, which shows that work on these improvements is progressing: Sharon, $9,300; North Canaan, $4,000; Salisbury, $22,-[illegible]; Kent, $8,800; Canton, $4,000; Salem and East Haddam, $7,000; Pomfret, $1,500; Mansfield, $2,500; Housatonic Valley federal aid project, $7,-300; Shelton, $12,000; Southbury, $7,-700; Boston Post Road, $5,300; Boston Post Road at Clinton to Madison, $[illegible],000; Greenwich, $9,700; Mansfield, $[illegible]; New Hartford, $7,600; Groton, $[illegible],100; Seymour, $1,100; Boston Post road at Westbrook, $4,300; East Haddam, $3,000; Groton, $3,700; Boston Post road, $7,000; Stonington, $1,700; Montville, $3,800; Salem, $5,000; Trumbull, $22,900; Suffield, $5,200; Stratford, $13,098; Boston Post road, $4,000; Boston Post road, $4,400; Groton, $1,400; Easton, $800; Pomfret, $1,200.

HEARD SUIT OVER BILL FOR LUMBER

Judge John R. Booth, in the superior court here Wednesday morning, took the papers and reserved decision after hearing the evidence and the arguments in the suit of R. A. Sherman & Sons company, of Westerly, against Clarence O. Marshall, now of Lynn, Mass., formerly of this city. Suit was brought on a claim for $2,459.80 for a bill of lumber and building material up to May 1, 1923.

Attorney H. H. Bettis appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney T. A. Troland for the defendant.

Kathleen E. Mackey, bookkeeper for the plaintiff, testified as to knowing Clarence O. Marshall and of knowing of an account carried by her company as well as to the fact that the account never had been settled in full. According to the records of the company there remained a balance of $2,084.80, without interest. The witness identified records taken from the day book of the R. A. Sherman & Sons company.

The plaintiff claimed that the defendant purchased of them lumber and building materials while the defendant's claim was that the plaintiff should have charged them to James H. Sistare.

A considerable time was taken up with identification of different statements showing credits and debits and exhibits were entered.

The testimony of the defendant was put in by a deposition that had been taken in Lynn as the condition of his health did not permit him to attend court.

ELECT MYSTIC MAN I. O. O. F. GRAND MASTER

James Cooper, of Mystic, was elected grand master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows at the annual convention at Thompsonville, Wednesday. Other officers elected were: deputy grand master, Alfred L. Lilley, Hartford; grand warden, Lee Davis, Norwalk; grand secretary, W. A. Hutchison, New Haven; grand treasurer, Sydney W. Challenger, Middletown; grand representative, Charles J. Fowler, Thompsonville.

The retiring grand master, Charles [illegible], in his review of the term of his office, said that fraternally the order was stronger and better than ever before, and Grand Secretary William A. Hutchison, of New Haven, by membership figures and a financial statement showed that the material gain was a substantial one. The Rebekah order also reported increased membership, and the grand master instituted two new lodges during the year—Colfax at Thompsonville, and Martha Washington at Wethersfield.

Grand Master Fowler said that the plans for a new building at the home in Groton had been completed and were [illegible] presented to the grand lodge for consideration at this session.

The new movement was the Secretaries association to bring about a closer union between secretaries and a uniform method of keeping records. An "interlodge activities committee" whose work was started at Bridgeport has done much, the grand master said, to bring lodge memberships into [illegible]

The number of Rebekah lodges is 63 with a total membership of 13,281. The total funds on hand are $38,223.

[illegible] Treasurer Sidney W. Challenger, Middletown, made a report [illegible] paid out and invested [illegible] the grand lodge balance to [illegible]

DEN OF HARMONY AT PLAUT-CADDEN'S

Something new and truly magnificent in the way of prizes is now on [illegible] one of the windows of the Plaut-Cadden Company's store on Main street. It is fittingly called the "Den of Harmony" and it represents a complete music room or living room outfit of unusual beauty and distinction. The outfit includes everything needed in a modern music room or living room; the furniture, rug, lamps, pictures, statuary, talking machine, radio and a superb Wassermann grand piano. This entire outfit is to be given away by the Willimantic Lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks at their fair to be held at Willimantic in the fall. The entire display was furnished and arranged by the Plaut-Cadden Co., which fact should be considered by this concern as a tribute to their merchandise. Whoever will be the fortunate possessor of this Den of Harmony will certainly have a music room fit for a king.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WARNS AGAINST FLY PEST

The state department of health issues the following warning against the fly:

Already the flies are planning their campaign for the summer. Early this spring when there was barely a suggestion of warmth in the air a few flies that had lain dormant all winter in your attic and cellar ventured out. You were amazed at seeing them so early, but not energetic enough to end their career! Later in the season you would start your annual swatting campaign—you would even be generous enough to offer prizes for the one who collected the largest number of dead flies! You would put the screens on early so the flies could not get in. This year there shall be no flies in the house!

And meanwhile that manure pile down by the barn, to which each day some fresh manure is added has become the breeding place for those flies that lived through the winter season.

The female fly goes directly to this pile of manure and lays her eggs, 100 or more. Half of these may produce female flies which in turn will do their share to populate the community! These eggs laid in the crevices of the warm, moist manure pile, hatch in about eight hours into white maggots which feed and grow rapidly. At the end of five days they are mature. They now crawl away from the moist part seeking the drier layers below where they go into the pupa state for five days. In this pupa or lava stage they develop wings and legs and emerge as adult flies. Four to eight days later the female fly lays her eggs and a new generation is started. Each fly lives about thirty days and may lay eggs two or three times during that period.

Thus in the warm weather the whole life history of a fly covers only ten days. One pair allowed to live through the winter may produce eight to ten generations during the summer. If all of these lived there would be a fly colony of 5,500,000,000,000—from just one fly!

Statistics may carry these figures on through generations of endless numbers of flies, but let us return to the breeding place!

Your manure pile is the breeding place where you should start in your effort to rid your community of flies. As the maggots live 4 to 5 days in the moist manure and then go downward with the dry part, removal of the fresh layers once a week only is not effective, as the manure maggots have already moved on and are completing their life history elsewhere. So a daily removal should be the plan—spread in thin layers on the ground to dry quickly, and so eliminate one of the most important breeding places for flies!

Storing manure in bins tightly screened so that flies cannot get to lay their eggs is also an effective method of reducing the fly population.

Does your Clean-up Campaign Plan for such a "Benefit Performance?"

Your garbage can may not be tightly covered—and discomposing food accumulating for several days may produce like condition for the development of flies. Give one female fly access to these ideal conditions in your garbage can and you have provided at your back door the starting place for millions of flies which will soon enter your house to remind you of your kindness!

To put only dry garbage in your cans—to wrap it well in paper and to keep the cans tightly covered—is this part of your clean-up campaign?

Your privy, open, unscreened and unprotected, may be an even greater source of danger, since it provides a splendid breeding place for flies and a source of infection as well. The adult fly emerging from its pupa state may carry away possible disease germs from this source.

Does your clean-up campaign include this important measure of rendering the privy proof against flies by making it fly-tight and covering it each day with dry earth and chloride of lime?

There was a pretty May wedding in Plainfield, N. Y., when Cora Trole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Trole of Providence street, Taftville, became the bride of Louis Giguere, also of Taftville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Trole, brother of the bride, the double ring service being performed.

The bride's gown was of gray satin de chine with hat to match and she carried a large spray of lilies. Her maid wore a tan satin canton gown with hat to match and carried Ophelia roses. The best man was Edward Piche, the maid of honor, Lea Piche, of Piercefield, both intimate friends of the bride.

After the ceremony, breakfast was served at St. Paul's rectory, where Mr. and Mrs. Giguere will be guests for a number of days, after touring in the Adirondacks.

Miss Rosa Deschamps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malgloire Deschamps of Weedon, Canada, and Arthur Gaudette of South A street, were united in marriage Monday morning at the Sacred Heart church by Rev. U. O. Bellerose. Father Bellerose was also celebrant of the nuptial high mass with Father Chagnon as deacon and Father Belanger as sub-deacon. The bride was attended by Miss Sarah Deschamps, a sister. Oscar Gaudette was best man. Eva Ouimet was the flower girl.

The bride wore a gown of white silk and hat to match and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in orange canton crepe and carried pink roses. Following the ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the groom. The bride received many beautiful gifts from relatives and her numerous friends. She is well known in Taftville and was a member of the Children of Mary society. She has been a resident of this village for the past two years, making her home with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ouimet of Providence street. Mr. and Mrs. Gaudette left in the afternoon for their honeymoon trip to Canada. Upon their return they will reside in a newly furnished home on Merchants avenue.

POETRY

Song of the Spring Wind

Sweet beyond all lore enduring
Is the song the Spring Wind's singing.
Come with me and help me listen—
Help me bear it haunting sweetness.
Come with ear attuned to music
Lilting through the open spaces
Gently drawing through the lyre
Of the deeply scented pine trees
Melodies of softer timbre
Than a fairy lute will whisper.

Have you heard the song the wind sings
O'er the hills and sandy valleys
In the latest days of winter
In the earliest days of springtime
Of the ice-fields lightly tinkling
As they melt and faintly crackle
Of the branches of the birch trees
Reddening in the bold March sunshine
Of the graceful wands of willows
Bearing tiny silver pussies?

Vacillating is the Spring Wind,
Warm in sunshine, cold in shadow,
But it brings the hope of ages
Ever new and deeply thrilling
For it tells, ere many changes
Of the night queen—moon of silver—
There will be luxuriant foliage;
Colors stolen from the rainbow
Will be blooming in the meadows—
And when [illegible] the happy sunshine
[illegible]s on varicolored meadows
[illegible]rfumes from the radiant blossoms
[illegible]d rose sweet and spiced with clover
On the [illegible]

This—the song the Spring Wind's singing,
Prophecy of hope and beauty,
Melody of haunting sweetness—
Lovely post all lone enduring.

Everest

Where clouds and mists its mighty form enshroud
A lofty mountains and high tablelands
Afar withdrawn, in lonely grandeur stands
A giant peak, majestic, stern, and proud.
It towers grandly o'er each trailing cloud,
And all assaults of storm and time withstands.
Its summit still untouched by human hands,
'Mid arctic cold and tempests wild and loud.

Its avalanches thunder far below;
Its stately slopes like ladders pierce the sky.
In majesty sublime it rears its crest—
Earth's monarch mountain, peak supremely high,
Unrivaled, kingly, matchless Everest!

The man he sent for was not slow to tell him that he should have sent for a fireman instead of a gas man.

The Free State government of Ireland has entered into an agreement with an engineering concern for a comprehensive survey of the hydro-electric possibilities of the River Shannon. A detailed scheme is to be worked out for harnessing the Shannon and for the distribution of power over the 26 counties of the Free State. If the findings are favorable, the government may develop the project as a state enterprise.

Elmer R. Sheridan, a tugboat captain of Long Island City, recovered a watch which he lost twenty years ago. In 1904 Sheridan was leaning over the rail of a tug plying in Newton creek when the watch was dropped overboard. He reported the loss to the Hunters Point police station. Ten years ago a dredge at work in the creek dug up the watch. A workman on the dredge salvaged it and later pawned it. A short time ago a detective looking over the pawnshop came upon the watch. He notified the tug captain, who identified it.

FIND TAX REDUCTION BILL A PERPLEXING PROBLEM

High Treasury Officials Consider the Bill "a Most Unfortunate Piece of Legislation"—Secretary Mellon Dislikes the So-Called "Limit Publicity" Provision—Representative Green Maintains That Under the Bill the Treasury Should Have a Surplus of $138,000,000.

[illegible] to the predictions of a [illegible]der the bill, Chairman Green, of the house ways and means committee declared in a statement, that instead of a prospective deficit, the treasury actually would face a surplus for the fiscal year of $138,000,000 under the new bill.

Mr. Greene's figures, obtained from the treasury department today, showed that there would be a surplus this year over current expenses of about $300,000,000, which, he said, was "much more than sufficient to pay the amount of the annual bonus expenditures for the next two years."

With the conference report placed in final form today Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee said he would present it in the senate tomorrow. It would be called up for approval on Saturday, when little opposition is anticipated. The house, in event of its adoption in the senate Saturday will take the report up Monday. Said quick approval also is expected there.

The treasury again voiced displeasure today at the increase provided in the estate rate taxes, which Secretary Mellon, also has opposed before the senate finance committee personally. It was contended the increase would force a break up in large estates and result in lowe collections than under the present rate.

Representative Green, however, said the treasury actuary had estimated the increase would bring in about $10,000,000 more revenue annually, which, he said, "is scarcely any more than could be expected from the increase in the value of the estates subject to this tax as the wealth of the country increases."

MORE TESTIMONY AGAINST DISBARRED BOSTON LAWYER

Cambridge, Mass., May 22.—David Stern, of Boston, a mortgage broker, testified today at the trial of Daniel H. Coakley, a disbarred Boston lawyer, on blackmail charges that he had paid Coakley $10,000 to avoid a prosecution which would prove annoying even though unjustifiable. With William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of the county, Coakley is on trial on indictments charging conspiracy to extort money from a number of persons threatening them with disgrace and prosecution.

Stern was called as a witness after Coakley, who is acting as his own counsel had concluded cross examination of Edmund Barbour 83 years old, who testified yesterday that he paid $37,000 to Coakley after he had been detected in a "petting party" with a woman at 26. Under cross-examination Barbour adhered to his statement in direct examination. He admitted in reply to questions that he had been a reformer and member of the Watch and Ward Society.

TEST FLIGHT MADE BY DIRIGIBLE SHENANDOAH

Lakehurst, N. J., May 22—The big dirigible Shenandoah, pride of the United States navy, tonight successfully completed its first test flight since January, when the big ship was torn loose from its mooring mast here during a violent storm.

The ship was in the air just one hour. Leaving the ground shortly after 8 o'clock, the monster of the air circled around the field, and then proceeded to Lakewod and Toms River at an altitude of 500 feet. Returning to the station, the ship reached an altitude of 1200 feet, and at times, attained a speed of 54 miles an hour.

When the craft reached the ground, Lieutenant-Commander Zachary Lansdowne, the new pilot, was the first to appear. He said he was pleased with the dirigible's conduct in the air and pronounced it in excellent condition. Tomorrow, he said, it will probably be fastened to the mooring mast for a while in preparation for a longer test later in the week.

14-YEAR-OLD SCHOOL GIRL IDENTIFIED HOFFMAN

New York, May 22.—Barbara Fahs, 14-year-old school girl today identified Harry Hoffman [illegible] Richmond county court charged with the murder of Maud A. Bauer, as the man she saw in a Ford sedan in conversation with Mrs. Bauer at 3.45 on the afternoon of the murder.

The Fahs girl was the second witness called when the trial started. When asked if the man she saw in the courtroom, the girl nodded in the affirmative and pointed to Hoffman.

The young witness testified that she saw the man open the sedan door and heard Kim tell Mrs. Bauer he would take her where she could get a rope to pull her car out of a ditch in which it was. She said Mrs. Bauer then got in the sedan with the man and rode away. Counsel for Hoffman was unable to shake her testimony.

M'NARY-HAUGEN BILL DEBATTED IN THE HOUSE

Washington, May 22.—Party lines were disregarded in the house today when debate was resumed on the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, the measure being alternately endorsed and assailed for eight hours.

With time for general debate still remaining, reading of the bill, with amendments in order, probably will not be taken up before Saturday, and a vote, leaders said, appeared unlikely before next Tuesday.

Opponents have indicated that a flood of amendments will be proposed, some designed to alter the bill materially, and several members have announced a purpose to offer substitutes.

Debate today covered nearly every provision of the bill with supporters and opponents about equally divided in numbers.

Robbery of paintings and antiques valued at $75,000 from the private studio of Abraham Isaacs, Court street, Boston, was reported to the police.

AMERICAN PLANES ON JAPANESE FLYING FIELD

Kasumigaura, Japan, May 22.—(By The A. P.)—Three American army airplanes, having flown across the Pacific for the first time in the history of aviation tonight nestled on the Japan flying fields here for a week's breathing spell, preparatory to a continuance of their attempt to circumnavigate the globe by air.

Great crowds of curious Japanese gathered about the aviation field for a glimpse of the sturdy planes and daring airmen.

The visiting aviators arrived at 5.40 o'clock this afternoon, having made the jump from Hitokappu Bay, Yetorofu Island, Kuriles—720 miles—in twelve hours and fifty minutes flying time. They made one stop of about two hours at Minato for lunch.

The Americans and their planes were in excellent condition upon their arrival, but it has been decided to rest a week here. This will give time for a thorough overhauling of the aircraft.

With the landing here today the first and most difficult portion of the around-the-world journey has ended. From Kasumigaura tonight and tomorrow, going to Tokio Saturday where a series of festivals in their honor will be held.

ASSOCIATE HAD CONFIDENCE IN INTEGRITY OF DAUGHERTY

Washington, May 22.—An expression of faith in the integrity of former Attorney General Daugherty, built up during three years of association with him as his chief assistant in directing criminal prosecutions, was made before the senate Daugherty investigating committee today by John W. H. Crimm, now special government attorney in the prosecution of alleged frauds in the Veterans' Bureau.

In an engagingly frank three hour discussion of his association with the former attorney general, and the department of justice, Mr. Crim unhesitantly gave his opinion that the department was near collapse, that its espionage and investigation system ought to be "nne-tenths abolished," and said that he had resigned because he considered it "not functioning as well as it might." But he had never, he declared, had a thought or suspicion of corruption in connection with Mr. Daugherty.

The indictment specifically mentioned the death of Miss Marjorie Andrews.

World Court Plan Before The Senate

Provides For Modification of the Proposal Submitted by President Harding in 1923.

Washington, May 22.—A composite plan for adherence to the permanent court of international justice with reservations was laid before the senate today in a resolution drafted by Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, after two days of consultation with his colleagues on the foreign relations committee.

It was referred at once to the committee which is to continue in session tomorrow, probably with the Pepper proposal under discussion. It provides for modification of the proposal transmitted to the senate by President Harding in February, 1923, so as to transfer the election of judges from the council and assembly of the League of Nations to similar bodies appointed by signatories to the court statute, and proposes also the summoning of a third Hague conference to clarify and codify international law.

At its meeting today the senate committee continued its general discussion of "underlying principles," without special reference to any of the formal plans before it. Those participating reported a strengthened conviction that the views of the various groups within the committee could be reconciled to permit the reporting of a compromise, and suggestions of the form this might take coincided closely with the language of the Pepper proposal. The same object was sought also in a resolution introduced during the day by Senator King, democrat, Utah, who proposed adherence to the Harding plan with definite amendments to protect the United States in the election of judges, voting representation and the rendition of advisory opinions.

TEACHER'S BODY FOUND IN A SHALLOW GRAVE

Amherst, Mo., May 22.—The body of Louise F. Gerrish, 19, village school teacher here, was found today in a shallow grave in a pasture half a mile from the village. There were seven buckshot wounds in her breast. Her watch and ring were missing.

Although Miss Gerrish left her boarding place here early Wednesday evening to go to the post office and did not return, it was not until she failed to appear this morning that it was realized that her absence caused anxiety.

Posses of citizens were formed. After several hours one of these found footprints and signs of a struggle in a muddy road not far from the village and from that spot a trail, as though something had been dragged, led into the pasture. A thin covering of earth and stones concealed the body.

Miss Gerrish, whose home was in Winter Harbor, had been teaching in Amherst for several terms. Since she is not known to have had any men friends or quarrels, the police believe the motive for the murder was robbery. Sheriff Wescott and County Attorney Whiting of Hancock county are working with the local authorities. An autopsy will be performed at Ellsworth tomorrow.

NEW GRADE OF WHEAT TO BE ESTABLISHED

Washington, May 22.—Addition of a new grade of wheat, to be known as No. 1 Hard Spring, to the official grain standards was announced today by Secretary Wallace, effective August 15. It includes wheat of the class hard red spring, consisting of 85 per cent or more of dark, hard, and vitreous kernels, testing at least 0 pounds per bushel. Other requirements are set forth in the standard.

A new section to the grain standards provides grades for mixed durum. Other changes include alterations in the definition of the terms wheat and cereal grains, grades for weevily wheat, and a change in the definition of western red wheat and increase in test weight of this subclass.

The special limitation against white wheat in wheat of other classes in grades Numbers 1 and 2 of all subclasses of hard red spring and hard red winter wheat is eliminated, and a change is made in the grade designation of mixed wheat. Some changes also are made in the standards for corn, oats and rye.

DEALERS NOT ALARMED BY FLURRY IN FRENCH FRANCS

New York, May 22.—A flurry in French francs, which advanced in the day trading to 5.65 cents and then declined more than one hundred points to 5.33 cents at the close, today reflected uneasiness over charges of Edouard Herriot, potential premier of France under the new coalition, of a domestic plot against the currency. Foreign exchange dealers, however, were not alarmed by the fluctuation, ascribing it to the government's withdrawal of support and testing of the market by opposing speculative forces.

Sterling also was subjected to speculative selling pressure, falling 2 cents to below $4.34, while Brazilian milreis which had been stabilized above 11 cents for several weeks declined to the year's lowest level at 10.35 cents.

Chicago Boy Slain By His Abductors

Kidnappers Believed Demand For $10,000 Ransom Had Miscarried — Body Was Found in Culvert.

Chicago, May 22. — Kidnaped and held for a $10,000 ransom, and murdered when the kidnapers believed their plans were about to miscarry, the nude body of Robert Franks, fourteen year old son of Jacob Franks, millionaire Chicago manufacturer, was found in a swamp on the south side of the city today when the head crushed and the body stripped of all means of identification.

At the time the body was found the parents, unaware of the fate of their son, were awaiting a visit from the kidnapers in order to turn over the money to them, having followed the instructions of the abductors to the letter, even refraining from notifying the police.

Tonight one of the greatest manhunts in Chicago's history was under way with more than five thousand policemen and detectives scouring the city in the search for the slayers. Despite the meagre clues, it was reported that arrests were imminent.

Young Franks was last seen alive yesterday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock when he left several companions after umpiring a ball game at the Harvard school, a private institution in an exclusive South Side residential district where he was a student. He told companions that he was going home and that is the last time he was seen alive by those who knew him.

A reward of $10,000 was offered tonight for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the boy's slayers. Of this amount, $5,000 was offered by the boy's father and a similar amount by a local newspaper.

The boy according to police, and a series of instructive letters to the boy's parents from the kidnappers, was seized as he left a boy's school en route to his home yesterday afternoon.

Jacob Franks and members of his family waited all day at their home for further word from the kidnappers in the hope of paying the $10,000 ransom and saving the boy's life.

A few hours after the boy left school the kidnappers' first note was received by the youth's father. It read:

"Your boy has been kidnapped. He is in safe custody. You will hear more from us in the morning."

Mr. Franks consulted his attorney and arranged to tap his telephone wire in the hope of locating the kidnappers.

The morning, he received a special delivery letter which he said caused him to keep his plans to himself, and to change them. The letter advised the father that $10,000 must be paid for the boy's freedom, and warned that if police or authorities were notified, the boy would be killed. All letters and communications were well phrased and written by a person of good education.

"Your son is in safe keeping," a paragraph of the letter reads. "You must follow explicitly every stipulation of this letter." The demand for $10,000 was the principal stipulation.

"If you have notified the police or other authorities do not carry the matter further, you will kill your boy."

Mr. Franks is considered one of the wealthiest men of the city.

The body with two wounds stabbed into the head was found by a truck walker who notified the police. It was later identified by the boy's uncle, Robert Gresshan. All clothing and marks of identification had been removed from the body with the exception of the glasses, which were in place.

PLACES EXPENSES OF GOV'T FOR YEAR AT $3,298,000,000

Syracuse, N. Y., May 22.—The government of the United States will cost approximately $3,298,000,000 to run during the coming fiscal year, Brigadier General Herbert M. Lord, director of the federal budget bureau, told 500 business men of New York state gathered at the Onondaga hotel here tonight for the tenth annual dinner of Associated Industries, Inc.

Of this huge amount slightly less than half, he declared, still remain "subject to reduction and available for the practice of economy," and against this portion are being directed the strongest economy weapons of the federal budget bureau, in the hope that the system of national saving instituted by Charles G. Dawes might be continued in a fitting manner.

Estimated receipts for 1925, he continued, as prepared by the bureau of the budget, total $3,693,000,000, while the expenditures of $3,298,000,000 are approximately $397,000,000 less than the estimated outlay for the government during the current fiscal year.

BOOTLEGGER, RESISTING, WAS SHOT IN ONE LEG

Clinton, May 22.—Ernest Angelico, driver of a touring car which was headed west towards New Haven and which probably came from New London, was arrested here, in West Main street, early today by two state officers. The man is said to have resisted and in a fight he received a flesh wound in a leg, from a bullet.

After ethergency treatment at the office of Dr. Graham O. Wellman, here, the man was taken to Middlesex hospital, Middletown, in the car was some alcohol. The report was that there were 300 quarts of whiskey but the state police do not confirm this.

It is understood that this section of the state highway has been under constant control of late.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HAS RECURRENCE OF BRONCHITIS

Minor Engagements Cancelled—Early in the Week it Was Believed That the Chief Executive Had Mastered the Cold—After Taking Chlorine Gas Treatment Yesterday, Mr. Coolidge Found Himself Unable to Join With Mrs. Coolidge in Receiving at the White House Garden Party.

Washington, May 22.—President Coolidge's bronchial cold not only has refused to yield to treatment as expected but grew worse today with the result that he cancelled most of his engagements and found himself unable to join with Mrs. Coolidge in receiving at the second of the White House garden parties.

Mr. Coolidge seemed early in the week to have mastered the cold, which he contracted at the first garden party a week ago today, and the first of the chlorine gas treatments at the army medical center, appeared to have helped him considerably. This morning, however, the cold appeared worse and Secretary Slemp cancelled several of his less pressing engagements.

The filling of an engagement to speak at the opening of the national conference on outdoor recreation was insisted upon by the president, but the delivery of the address imposed somewhat of a strain upon him. Several times he interrupted his address to clear his throat and cough, and near the end his voice became so hoarse it seemed that he might have to stop.

Returning to the White House he spent only a short time in his office, and, agreeing to the cancellation of more of his engagements, went over to the White House to lie down. After lunch he took another of the chlorine gas treatments at the army medical center but finding it did not loosen up the cold as he expected it to do, he abandoned his plan to assist Mrs. Coolidge in receiving the nearly 2,000 garden party guests. The party was held in the White House and on the east terrace in the belief that the president would be able to attend and with a view to preventing any exposure in the unseasonable weather now prevailing in Washington.

White House officials were hopeful tonight that Mr. Coolidge could resume his full round of work tomorrow, it was said to be virtually certain that he would be compelled to cancel an engagement to attend the opening tomorrow night of the new Congressional Country club several miles outside of the city.

LIQUOR TREATY WITH BRITAIN NOW EFFECTIVE

Washington, May 22.— Afformal proclamation putting into effect the new liquor treaty with Great Britain was issued today by President Coolidge after exchange of ratifications with Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Howard representing their respective governments. The proclamation is in the form of a public announcement of the treaty which it sets out in full.

By the terms of the treaty it will remain in force one year from this date and if no notice is served during that year of desire to modify the part, it will continue in force for another year and so on automatically year by year until either side should desire to modify it.

The primary purpose of the treaty is to curb illicit liquor traffic along the American coasts and at the same time to remove the annoyance to British vessels due to the application of American prohibition enforcement statutes to sealed stores of liquors aboard those vessels while in American waters.

To accomplish its purpose the treaty provides that ships under British flag suspected of liquor smuggling may be searched and seized up to the distance from the American coasts that "can be traversed in one hour," by the suspected vessel.

"In case, however, in which the liquor is intended to be conveyed to the United States, its territories or possessions by a vessel other than the one boarded and searched," the treaty continues, "it shall be the speed of such other vessel and not the speed of the vessel boarded, which shall determine the distance from the coast at which the right under this article can be exercised."

CONFERENCE ON PROMOTION OF OUTDOOR RECREATION

Washington, May 22.—(By the A. P.)—Beasts, birds, fish and the wide open spaces were given the position of spot light prominence in the national capital today, other issues before the government heads being subordinated to permit the outdoor movement, launched by President Coolidge, to gain momentum through the national conference on outdoor recreation which opened here at his call.

The chief executive left the White House, despite advice that he should refrain from speaking until his cold is dissipated, to address the conference, and, with him came cabinet officers, members of congress and others occupying high offices to hear authorities discuss ways and means of protecting the nation's wild life and to encourage the people to greater enjoyment of the outdoor playgrounds, fresh air and sunshine.

NEW FRENCH CABINET MAY ALL BE RADICALS

Paris, May 22.—(By The Associated Press.)—The new cabinet which will succeed the one headed by Premier Poincare may be constituted almost entirely of radical members with no socialist participation, according to close observers of the political situation who see a marked tendency towards a practically exclusive radical cabinet.

With the exception of a few leaders who are eager to participate in the new government, all of the socialist chiefs are of the opinion that the party conention on June 1, will decide against participation of the cabinet.

Edouard Herriot, leader of the radical-socialists and potential premier under the new left coalition, it is affirmed on the best authority, will after the socialist refusal decide to form a purely radical ministry.

DENOUNCES CONGRESSMEN WHO IGNORE CONSTITUENTS

Bridgeport, May 22.—Branding the present taxation system of the country as the result of political experiments and a departure from constitutional government set up by our forefathers, Senator George Moses, of New Hampshire called on members of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce at their annual banquet in the Stratfield hotel tonight to use their vote and influence to remove from representative office congressmen who "feebly accede to the 'terrorizing propaganda-shouting minority' against wishes of their contituents."

Unjust, unequitable and disproportionate taxation is bound up with riotous expenditure of the public funds, the senator told the audience of 750 leaders of business life in Connecticut who packed the hall.

"The general tendencies which mark the progress of events at the national capital seem far departed from those of our ancestors when they struck out with this country to be a democracy. The Luther Burbanks of politics have succeeded in producing a hybrid on the stem of democracy. As we look on the hybrid we are reminded of the finest example of the hybrid, the noble mule. The mule, however, has no pride of ancestry and no hopes of posterity," senator Moses declared.

The following general directors were elected for a term of two years: Theodore Bodenwein, New London; Arthur Reed Kimball, Waterbury; G. Harold Gilpatrick, Putnam; Winthrop M. Daniels, New Haven; Frederick N. Belding, Rockville.

Group directors: Henry M. Shartenberg, New Haven; Ralph B. Ives, Hartford; Charles B. Cook, Hartford. Theodore L. Bristol, Ansonia; Leonard H. Healey, Hartford.

SENATE FAILS TO REACH VOTE ON WHEELER CASE

Washington, May 22.—For three hours more today the senate debated but failed to reach a vote upon the motion to adopt the majority report of its investigating committee exonerating Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, of the charge of accepting a fee after his election to the senate to prosecute oil land matters before the interior department.

With only one or two more addresses in prospect, Chairman Borah expects to obtain senate action before adjournment tomorrow. Thus far in the discussion only Senator Stirling, republican, South Dakota, has argued against senate action in advance of Senator Wheeler's trial in Montana and the signers of the majority report predict its adoption by an overwhelming majority.

During most of the debate today Senator Stirling's minority report holding the grand jury was justified in returning an indictment on the face of the evidence placed before it came under sharp fire from the democratic side. The South Dakota senator in another address reiterated his declaration, but conceded in response to an inquiry from Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, that he did not think the evidence before the senate committee showed that Senator Wheeler was guilty.

Some few years ago, when Jack Frost was in Jewett City in charge of the local telephone exchange, every spring he used to have sent to him, from his old home in Vermont, several cans of pure Green Mountain maple syrup. Not a few of his friends received a good taste of this surpassing delicacy. Now-a-days, not much, if any, pure maple syrup ever reaches Jewett City. Old Cluey Watson has received a little sugar from his native state of Maine, which he declares is second to no other for fineness and flavor. He tells of being invited to visit the Dexter boys, Bud, Dave and Leve, cousins of his, up in Somerset county, Maine. "I went over in the afternoon and found them in their sugar camp, situated on a hard-growth ridge, a mile from the old farm. They had a hundred trees tapped, and were going on in true New England style, with the big kettles kept boiling day and night, all under the open canopy of heaven. Making maple sugar out in the woods, amid softly dripping sap troughs and all that, is a very poetical performance to hear about, and see on paper. Let me say right here, however, that those who wish to preserve its poetic phase, had better keep out of its practical details. It was a foggy, early April evening and grew very dark. I remember how bright the fires looked, while all about 'us seemed a black wall. It was about nine o'clock I think, when we heard, seemingly from the summit of the ridge above us, a cry, a peculiar quavering screech. "There," said Leve, "he's coming back." In answer to my anxious questioning Dave explained that it was an old half starved lynx, that had been hanging around the camp for a week. A few minutes after we heard the brush snap a few rods off in the darkness. I stared like an owl. Leve suddenly caught up a blazing branch and launched it toward the sound. I caught a glimpse of a large, grayish animal, bounding aside with a snarl. I didn't sleep much on my bed of hemlock boughs, in the tent a little back from the fires and along towards morning I overheard a bit of conversation that made me inwardly resolve to leave camp before another night. "Tell you what," said Leve, "I think the old chap is getting a little too familiar; he'll be pouncing on to some of us yet! I'm going over home some time today and get the gun and dog. We'll stop his calls."

Our nocturnal visitor disappeared with the dawn, and the fearlessness of daylight so revived my courage, that I resolved to stay. Toward evening Leve came back with the gun, an old Queen's arm, and a big, white hound. He had found Old Sabattus at the farm, and had brought him over as a possible addition to our forces. The night was clear and starlit. We shut up the hound in the shed and waited for the lucivee. About nine o'clock his dismal cries began to sound again, and by and by we saw him coming up through the opening on the snow crust, which kept breaking under him at almost every step. We had the old gun loaded with buck shot, and ready for him; but either the night was too light for him, or some suspicion had crossed his mind; for at a distance of twelve or fifteen rods he stopped, and, sitting down like a cat, watched for a long while. Possibly he smelled the hound. We waited for him to come up a little nearer; 'til at last, Leve, getting out of all patience, fired off the gun at him. Almost with the report we heard a sharp growl, and saw the beast bounding off among the trees. Dave let out the hound, and we all ran after him with the gun and axe. At the place where the creature sat when Leve fired, were several red blotches on the snow, and we saw now and then a drop as we ran on after the hound, whose deep baying rang out from the swamp below. Presently the barking stopped, and, keeping on, we came out to a ledge of great rocks, which lay piled upon each other, and saw by the dim starlight the white form of the hound dodging and whining about a large, dark opening at the foot of it. Going up to the mouth of the den we could plainly hear the lucivee growling

WINDHAM PHARMACY, THIRD OLDEST IN WILLIMANTIC.

It was nearly fifty years ago when James Walden entered partnership with Henry H. Flint, and established a drug business at 780 Main street in the Walden block, the present stand of the Windham Pharmacy. A few years later Mr. Walden disposed of his interests to Mr. Flint and forty years ago the business was purchased by John T. Baker, now of New London. After a long period of success Mr. Baker met with financial reverses and in 1904 the store was closed until one year later when it was reopened by John L. Leonard, one of Willimantic's pioneer druggists. It was known as The Leonard Pharmacy and a few years later Gustave O. Cartier, then an employe, was taken into partnership. In 1910 Mr. Leonard retired from active business and the stock and good will of the firm was taken over by Mr. Cartier under the name of G. O. Cartier, The Druggist. As had his predecessor, Mr. Cartier conducted the business in a most progressive manner until April 17, 1922, when he also retired from the drug field and the store was bought by The Wilson Drug company. Mr. Fred Williams was appointed manager and he retained that position for two years. On April 1, 1924, Wilfred A. Gagnon was promoted from secretary of the Wilson Drug company to assistant treasurer and he was appointed to replace Mr. Williams in the managership of the Windham Pharmacy. Mr. Gagnon is an excellent choice for the position. He was employed at that stand under Messrs. Leonard and Cartier from 1907 to 1917, during which time he acquired a thorough knowledge of the drug business. He was an assistant pharmacist for many years, becoming registered in July 1922.

The Windham Pharmacy features Foss Chocolates, expert and quick prescription service, and a full line of toilet preparations. Upon the purchase of the store by the Wilson Drug Co., a beautiful soda fountain of modern design was installed and this business along with the sale of cigars is responsible for a substantial income.

This state of affairs makes it possible for us to offer at the present time some very attractive Coats, suitable for automobile use, at $10.00 and $12.00.

These Coats are full lined and look very much like coats which have been selling at two or three times the price: try one of them in your automobile (and save the higher priced coat for other use).

W. Irving Bullard, vice president of the E. H. Jacobs Mfg., Company of Danielson, will address a meeting of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut to be held at the Putnam Inn, June 9th, in conjunction with the Norwich Manufacturers, New London Manufacturers and the Manufacturers' Association of Eastern Connecticut. The State Association has planned this meeting in order to familiarize itself with the ideas of manufacturers of Eastern Connecticut in regard to local, state and national taxation. The meeting is called for 1.30 o'clock, standard time.

A civil action was tried before Robert E. Harris, of Woodstock, Thursday afternoon, in which Alphonse Parent, of Woodstock, was plaintiff and Louis S. Ingills of Danielson, defendant.

A civil action was tried before Robert E. Harris, of Woodstock, Thursday afternoon, in which Alphonse Parent, of Woodstock, was plaintiff and Louis S. Ingills of Danielson, defendant. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant cut trees on his land while engaged in cutting other timber on adjoining land. While it was practically admitted by the defendant that the trees were cut, it was alleged that the damage was slight and the independent contractor rule was raised, that is, that the work was done for the defendant by a contractor hired for the purpose and that if therewas any liability it was on the contractor and not defendant. Decision in the case was reserved. Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson represented the defendant.

Judge Haines has handed down a decision in the case of William Allen vs. Seymour Tupper, tried in Willimantic last week, finding for the plaintiff to recover $270. The action grew out of an automobile accident at Goodyear when the cars of plaintiff and defendant collided. In his memorandum of decision Judge Haines states that it is the duty of an automobile driver to have his car under control when coming around a blind corner. He found that the plaintiff was on his right hand side of the intersection all the time, so that the defendant must have been on his, the defendant's left hand side, to some extent, which was the cause of the accident. There was no controversy as to the amount of damage to plaintiff's automobile.

The headquarters company of the Forty-third division, being formed in Putnam, is nearing its minimum quota. There is yet time for young men desiring military training and a chance to get exceptional ratings afforded by a headquarters company, to enlist. The maximum strength is 70 and a few more young men are needed. Those from the towns surrounding Putnam who are able to attend meetings and drills are eligible.

The company so far comprises a group of representative young men, some of them having had military and army training. Principal Owen J. White of Israel Putnam school, was in the marine corps; James J. Charron and Rosario Beausoleil were drill sergeants at Camp Devens; Frank Lamondy was sergeant in the Home Guard. Recent recruits are: Omer and Ulde Valade, Francis Murphy, George Child, Arthur Auger, a non commissioned officer over seas, Arthur Davision, Wallace James and Walter Brunelle.

Alphonse Burke of Waltham, Mass., according to the Putnam police was the most intoxicated of any intoxicated men that the department has had the custody of in years. Alphonse wanted to lie down and go to sleep on a settee in the railroad station. He did not care who knew it. Burke approached two ladies who were occupying seats in the station and told them they would have to move over as he wanted to lie down. Alphonse layed down but not on a bench. He lay down where he awoke Thursday morning—in a police station cell. Burke could not remember where he got his liquor, or what the brand was. He was very emphatic that he did not get it in Putnam. He said he came here looking for work digging a ditch. A fine and costs amounting to $31.15 will assure Burke of a place to sleep for the next month and more, as he had but one dollar and his total life's savings.

The Sells-Floto circus was in Putnam, Thursday. But no one who was no tout of the hay at five a.m. caught a glimpse of any part of it for its stay in Putnam was brief. The long train, hauled by two big engines, stayed here just long enough to allow the engines to take water and the conductor to get his orders. It was just coming daylight when the big top, the elephants, horses 'neverything left this city to give an afternoon and evening performance in Worcester. As far as appears, that is as near as Putnam will come to having a chance to see a circus this season. The show was on route from Willimantic to the Bay State city.

A short while ago it was announced that H. H. Davenport, for many years a resident of Pomfret, while in Florida, had become a considerable real estate holder in the Peninsular State and that in the deal he had sold his Pomfret farm. Now comes the announcement that E. C. Rogers of Putnam, landlord of the Putnam Inn, has become an investor in tropical soil in Florida and that in exchange he has given his large farm in the outskirts of Putnam, Mantup farm, as Mr. Rogers' property is known, consists of 200 acres, with one of the largest barns in the state and one of the most modern. During his ownership Mr. Rogers collected a fine herd of pure bred Holstein-Freslan cattle, some of the animals being valued at over $1,000. Most of this herd was disposed of at auction last fall. The disposal of his herd led Mr. Rogers to look with favor on a proposition to exchange his 200 acres of New England soil for 1270 acres of land in Glades county, Florida. This land lies in about the same latitude as Palm Beach. The county seat is Moore Haven, a growing, prosperous town with a new hotel. Mr. Rogers' property is four miles from Moore Haven, a branch of the Atlantic Coast line railroad running through a part of it and nearly the whole section is spanned by a macadam highway. Mr. Rogers for his land is adjoined by land of Henry Ford.

The disposal of his farm here will allow Mr. Rogers more time to devote to his hotel business and he has numerous changes and improvements now under way.

Memorial Day observance will center around the unveiling of the tablet and the dedication of the new cement bridge just completed by the State Highway Department over the Little river on Pomfret street. At a recent meeting of representatives of patriotic and fraternal societies, the Putnam Chamber of Commerce and the schools, the following general committee was appointed to make the arrangements for the Memorial Day [illegible]: Ralph C. Jenkins, George W. Baker exercises; Albert F. Ralston, H. H. Eland Dr. Edward F. Perry. This general committee will appoint sub-committees.

The tentative program is as follows: In the morning, without parade or without any outward demonstration those assigned to the duty will decorate the graves of soldiers in all cemeteries in the town.

In the afternoon a parade will form in line. At three o'clock the parade at or near Putnam high school will be will move westward along Providence street, to Marshal street, to Woodstock avenue, to Bridge street, to Main St., through Union square, to Pomfret St., to the new bridge.

The exercises at the bridge will consist of the unveiling of the tablet attached to the side of the bridge, inscribed so that the passerby may read and learn that the bridge is dedicated to one of Putnam's sons, Harry Clinton Hopkins, who died in the service of his country during the World War, while in the performance of duty overseas.

The speakers have not as yet been announced, but some member of the State Highway Department, possibly State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, a former Putnam boy, who conceived the idea of dedicating new bridges in towns to one of the towns sons who made the supreme sacrifice, will make an address and also some member of the state department, American Legion. Following the exercises the line will return to the square, where it will disband.

ASHFORD COMMUNITY HOUSE NEARING COMPLETION

The new Community House in Ashford, funds for which were donated by Mr. and Mrs. C. Clark Knowlton, is nearing completion Mr. Knowlton is a native of Ashford.

The Ashford Welfare Association is soon to resume activities and next fall will have a beautiful building including a large hall for its meetings and social affairs. The association was organized in the autumn of 1919 for the purpose of raising funds for a community house. Soon thereafter it was learned that Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton planned to present the town a public building which would provide an attractive and durable home for the town's activities. When they learned of the purpose of the Welfare association, the donors of the building changed their plan to accommodate community activities by including a large assembly hall in a building.

The officers of the association turned their attention to a series of community meetings. The death or removal of some of the officers caused suspension of monthly meetings, although occasional large meetings have been held in the interests of good roads, forestry, patriotic and holiday observances, community picnics, etc., keeping the people in touch with each other.

The association is now planning cooperation with town officials for the observance of Memorial Day and the Fourth of July, with a community picnic in August. In September it is planned to reorganize the association and carry on community welfare.

Old Sabattus said he had chased a bear in there once, and that there was a great hole inside. Finally after the boys had cut some stout clubs, th old man took the gun and declared he was going to crawl in and shoot him. There was an exhibition of pluck, certainly!

We waited in breathless suspense. Suddenly the scraping of the old fellow's knees and toes ceased. There was a click and a tremendous explosion, followed by growls, and a great volume of powder smoke gushed forth from the mouth of the den. But, instead of Old Sabbattus, there rushed out the lucivee. The hound sprang upon him; he would have escaped us but for him. A great scrimmage followed there in the dark. The boys laid on with the clubs and the axe, and amid a terrible uproar of snarls and shouts the animal was finally despatched, but not before he had laid open several ugly looking scratches in Spot's white hide.

The old man was just wiggling out, remarking, as he kicked the carcass, "Didn't give me time to take him!"

My dear friend:

Imagine a young man weighing 165 pounds in the course of a few months parked in bed, a weakling weighing 94 pounds. An elderly lady whom I knew since I was a kid paid me what she thought was a last visit. Upon being told of my plight she immediately mentioned your product for such an ailment. Maybe some of us didn't look upon her views very lightly . . . it was to laugh!

My dear friend, I am still laughing . . . not at your product, but because I am able to. I am telling you and the world at large, "Eat Kellogg's Krumbled Bran!" It should be called "Constipation's worst enemy." I owe you my heartfelt gratitude. I can talk, and whenever the opportunity presents itself, my mouth is always full of bran—Kellogg's Krumbled. The newest motion picture discovery! At the Palace theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Third dimension movie now a possibility." The third dimension, depth, is on the screen at last.

The latest and most startling invention in motion picture science, the illusion of perfect perspective which makes actors and objects "stand out" from the screen in a life like and startling manner, has been used in making Plastigrams, a one reel novelty that will be on the screen at the Palace theatre for 4 days starting Sunday May 25th.

Fortunes have been spent trying to perfect a process that would supply the effect of the stereoscope which graced the parlor table in our grandmother's time, but with the exception of the Ives-Leventhall process, by which Plastigrams was made, the results were impractical for ordinary process, which is the invention of Frederick Ives, inventor of the half tone process of printing, is so perfected that the use of this stereoscopic picture is possible in any motion picture theatre.

Lyceum Theatre New London

"Whistler lives again." This is what local play-goers will say when they see The Baronet and the Butterfly at the Lyceum, New London theatre on May 26-27, for the producers of this unusual play concerning the life of the famous painter have managed to recreate the actual environment which surrounded Whistler in the days of his battles, romance and triumphs.

Then, too, the part of Whistler himself, is inpersonated by O. P. Heggie Mr. Heggie actually enjoys acquaintance with many of the people who knew Whistler and has spent hours in the libraries studying the original paintings and etchings of Whistler. He has given particular attention to the brilliant humor that was characteristic of Whistler and is thus able to delight audiences with the gay mirth and touching humanity that was his.

A brilliant cast specially selected by Mr. Heggie will present The Baronet and the Butterfly and will include Betty Linley, Gavin Muir, Ernita Lascelles, Arnold Lucy, Alice Bellmore, Barry Whitcomb, Edward Forbes, George Hollander, Charles Warburton and Shella Hayes.

Palace Theatre

Constance Talmadge's pictures are too few and far between. This observation is prompted by a visit last evening to the Palace theatre, where Miss Talmadge's latest picture, "Dulcy," opened a week's engagement.

One of the slogans used in advertising this attraction is "You'll smile through a mile of funfilm." A question elicited the information that the film is actually 5800 feet long, whereas a mile is but 5280. However, the fun is so fast that the film seems to come to an end in less time than it would take to unreel 5280 feet. You'll smile is right—only too modest a claim, we almost laughed ourselves into a knot. "Dulcy" is a wonderful entertainment. It is an adaptation by John Emerson and Anita Loos of the Broadway hit by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly and the well known combination of Emerson-Loos, themselves the writers of many of Constance Talmadge's past successes, hence writers who know the stars capabilities well seem to have added a great deal to the fun of the piece by [illegible]

Added attractions, Educational comedy, Bone Head, the spice of the program and the latest Pathe Review. Overture, The Jolly Robbers, Suppe, played by Palace orchestra, Director F. G. Benson. You will enjoy a real program at the Palace.

Vaudeville at the Broadway Theatre

It is very seldom that one strikes a program that can please everyone, yet this is exactly what took place at the Broadway theatre yesterday. The Keith vaudeville was as diversified and fine a program as could be wanted.

Barrie Oliver and Co., the Dixie Boy, with his five Mississippi Misses showed up well with the latest combination of melody and beauty. Beside Mr. Oliver the cast included Blanche Mower, Winifred Lenbard, Helen Pierlot, Dorothy Tanton and Norma Maxam. Special music and lyrics are by Reine Shaw. It is a very delightful ensemble.

Edward Blum, the boy with the sticks, showed how much real music could be obtained from the xylonphone and for his efforts he received several curtain bows.

The popular couple, Paul Gordon and Ame Rica, the comedy vaudevillians offered a complete show by themselves. With bicycle riding, dances, singing, music and comedy as their diversified offering they delivered more than their share of entertainment

Not only are cities, towns and states spending larger sums but the government is lending encouragement to it by the federal road appropriations and also by the equipment which, as in this new legislation, it is making available. Better roads are called for and the government is giving due respect to the demand when it does in response thereto. The cooperation of the various agencies at work for improved highways is bettering a much neglected condition throughout the country.

TOO EASILY DISCOURAGED.

With his machine smashed beyond repair, but himself and mechanic uninjured, there is surprise in the announcement from Captain D'Oisy, the French aviator, that his flight from Paris to Tokio is ended in China.

Captain D'Oisy has been making excellent progress. He left on his flight after the British machine that is circling the globe and has for some time been ahead of them. That he should experience a serious mishap to his machine is unfortunate and interrupts a conspicuous flight. He is of course disappointed and so are those who have been following the progress he has been making, but it doesn't appear that there is any good ground for his decision.

It is entirely probable that he has his favorite type of machine, that he was better acquainted with the one that was smashed than with another of some other make and that he could place greater dependence in it, but doesn't seem to justify his abandonment of his trip. Were there no other machines available it would be a different matter but he has been offered machines with which to complete his journey. An aviator of his experience ought to be expected to navigate most any type of machine, and it doesn't appear that Captain D'Oisy set out with the idea of making the complete flight in one machine or quitting where that machine failed him. The idea of substitution simply permits him to further demonstrate his skill as an aviator by going from one machine to another when conditions require it, and letting no such obstacle as that prevent him from reaching his goal.

Had there been another machine available at Port Moller or that vicinity there is no question but what Major Martin would have proceeded on his way and done his best to catch up with the other American aviators now on Japanese soil. The substitution which was denied him is available to Captain D'Oisy, the greater part of whose flight had been completed before he met with the trouble that he considers sufficient to prevent continuance.

LIQUOR DISTRIBUTION.

Increased activity on the part of those engaged in the enforcement of the dry law is resultless in the seizure of large quantities of liquor in this part of this country. This not only gives indication of the huge volume of liquor that has been getting into the country and being moved from place to place, but the opportunity that exists for even greater measures of re-

[illegible] discovery by luck of three van loads of liquor at New London shows [illegible] wet goods are being moved, [illegible] raises the question as to how [illegible] it will be before such means of [illegible] nsportation must be required to [illegible] pit to inspection when leaving or [illegible] entering a city in the effort to break [illegible] the practice.

[illegible] drive [illegible] is being made upon [illegible] and is furnishing some [illegible] the number engaged in rum [illegible] running and rum distributing, of the [illegible] amount of money involved and [illegible] the requirements that must be rec[illegible] as necessary in order to cope [illegible] such law violations.

Not only are cities, towns and states spending larger sums but the government is lending encouragement to it by the federal road appropriations and also by the equipment which, as in this new legislation, it is making available. Better roads are called for and the government is giving due respect to the demand when it does in response thereto. The cooperation of the various agencies at work for improved highways is bettering a much neglected condition throughout the country.

Congress has agreed to adjourn by the seventh of June. Can congress [illegible] agree upon such a question?

When messengers disappear with securities of New York brokers it is only the case of history repeating itself.

There are 175 fatal street accidents reported from London thus far this year, and yet some claim the British are slow.

The explanation for the rainy spell seems to lie in the fact that the Umbrella Manufacturers association has been holding a convention.

The island of Great Britain is reported as tipping eastward, which shows that that is a habit not entirely confined to continental Europe.

Isn't it time for those who have been serving in the training camps for the past two or three years to put in their claims to congress for a bonus?

Down in Washington the claim is made that taxes are high enough. That is a complaint that is heard quite generally throughout the country. Norwich, however, has reason to insist that they are too high.

LUXURIOUS INTERLUDE

"What have you been doing all day?" asked the very new husband after he had thrown his hat on one chair, tossed his coat at a table which it failed to hit, and seated himself on the diminutive table in the diminutive kitchenette, to watch the absorbing sight of his own wife cooking his own dinner.

The very new wife in the art apron wore the concentrated frown of one facing forth on dangerous ways. She stuck a spoon into one bubbling saucepan and shook her head over it, she took a cover off one skillet and put it over another and sighed despairingly. She opened the oven with one hand and turned the teakettle around with the other.

"Thing's don't cook right," she observed in indignant surprise. "If it is something that should be light brown it turns out mahogany and if it should be soupy it is petrified solid! Why, I met Hildegarde downtown for luncheon.

"Are we going to the Daydream cafeteria or that place we liked so well up in the Starscraper building?" I inquired absently, being so much engaged taking in her marvelous garb and her cobwebby hosiery.

"The girl turned pale. She moaned a trifle and then got into action. No, no, she got out. Eating down in the noise and confusion of the loop was bad enough but why make it worse? There was no place equal to the exclusive new lunch club of which Reginald was a charter member and which had a room for the ladies to dine in when they so chose. It was so much nicer, she said, to realize that one was spared the danger of encountering any of the queer, awful people who infested even the exclusive public places!

"They wear such odd clothes,' Hildegarde proceeded dreamily, wrapping more tightly around her the fur garment which she had hastened to tell me had cost such sum of money that I can't remember the figures. It was just as easy, she pointed out seriously, to get a good effect even if one didn't have much money if one spent time, and consideration on clothes. meanwhile, eying my apparel in polite disapproval. You would have thought the girl had never worn mended gloves in her life nor exchanged party frocks with me.

"Hildegarde surveyed the menu with a slight frown and then dispatched her waiter for the head waiter. She wanted to know if they didn't have something really good that wasn't on the bill today—she was tired of all those old standard things! Couldn't the chef fix up specially for her that delicious little entree, the one with the large mushrooms and the green sauce and the queer, delicate flavor? And, oh yes—weren't there any potatoes Ia la staircase? She did want her friend to try them! One couldn't get them anywhere else. And, oh yes that salad with pickled walnuts and endive and stuffed grapefruit with the special dressing.

"Then she leaned back, dabbed on a little rouge and asked me kindly what I was doing with myself these days. She didn't wait to find out, [illegible] she hastened on to tell me of all the tiresome dinners and teas and musicales and things she was pushing to every minute—a man in Reginald's position, you know has to keep up the social side of life. How lucky I was able to stay home if I wanted to! Though so many servants in the 14 room apartment just made one long to get out of it. At least one could have seclusion in her limousine. Maybe they were going to take a Mediterranean trip in February."

"I 'mother!" declared [illegible] husband, bravely [illegible] He reached over [illegible] about to [illegible] saucepan [illegible] anxiously. [illegible] all the th[illegible] gives her! Here [illegible] your own dinner—[illegible] it!"

Cannon's Loss of Power

Joseph G. Cannon slowly made his way to prominence—then helplessly saw practically all of his power taken from him.

Born in Guilford, N. C., the son of a Quaker country doctor, he went, when a boy, with his parents to the then "wilds of Illinois," and at 14, had to leave the country school and clerk in a cross-roads store.

Eight years later he became apprentice in a law office, and a few years afterward began the practice of law. He entered politics, and, when 25, became state attorney of Vermilion county.

The next year he married and his bride not being of the Quaker faith, he was read out of the church.

His political power grew, and, when 37, he was elected to the United States House of Representatives. He wished to introduce a bill regarding the mail to spoke to Speaker Blaine, who placed him on the Postoffice committee. A clever debater, he became popular and was appointed to other committees.

He served 18 years, then was defeated in the landslide of 1890, but was sent back two years after. He was placed on the Appropriations committee, eight years later was elected Speaker, and in 1908 was mentioned at the republican national convention as a nominee for President.

In a position of influence and power, and with possibilities of great honors, his future looked pleasing. Then came dissatisfaction in the House. Some said he was a "czar", others that he merely was following the customs of old-time speakers, but the members passed resolutions taking the important power of appointment from the speaker and giving it to the house.

The next year he lost the speakership and a year afterward he failed of re-election to Congress.

But three years later he was returned to the House and served until March, 1923, when, at 87, he resigned after 46 years of service. And when he left, Congress, in special session, paid "Uncle Joe" high tribute for his long service.

Tomorrow—Clara Barton, the Timid.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Morris Sheppard, who has announced his candidacy for re-election as United States senator from Texas, will have a place in history as the man beyond all others in the Federal legislature responsible for enactment of resolutions giving the people through their state legislatures a chance to put prohibition into the national constitution. Senator Sheppard has been a national lawmaker since 1902. It was in that year that he was elected to the lower house of congress to fill out the term of his father, John L. Sheppard, and after more than 10 years of service in this post was similarly chosen to complete the unexpired term of Senator Joseph W. Bailey. Mr. Sheppard was educated at the University of Texas and the Yale Law school, receiving his A. B. degree from the former in 1895 and his LL. M. from the latter in 1898.

C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The name 'Walloon,'" says the bulletin, "is little known on this side of the Atlantic, even less so than 'Belgian,' because both have been used in the national name 'Belgium.' As a fact, however, the [illegible] of the Belgians having ra[illegible] units [illegible] consist of two peoples approximately equally divided, speaking languages differing almost as widely as [illegible] and Spanish. "[illegible] existence [illegible] from a merging of the old Gallic Belgae and the Romans, the Walloons have given leaders to important historical movements. Charlemagne and Charles Martel may be considered among the original Walloons. Peter, the Hermit, preacher of the First Crusade, who started one of the most important movements historically and [illegible] day the world has ever known [illegible] a Walloon, so was Godfrey of Bouillon, who led this initial expedition of Europe's chivalry to the Holy Land.

"As a people the Walloons have also been leaders. The revolution of 1830 which separated the Belgians from their temporary connection with Holland was led largely by the Walloons. The new Belgium, then set up, was begun as a French-speaking country. Recognition of the claims of the Flemings since, however, has brought about the passage of laws placing the two languages on an equal footing.

"Liege, one of the earliest Belgian towns to suffer from the German invasion during the World war, is the center of Wallonia or 'the Walloon country,' as the French-speaking portion of Belgium is termed. Much of the region is dotted with fine old chateaus and the newer country places of wealthy city dwellers. Roughly Wallonia is Belgium's factory, while Flanders is its garden."

A-CURIN' OF TH' BLUES

When Winter on Th' Farm begins a-wearin' to'rd th' end
My wife quits speakin' to me an' I ain't th' children's friend;
I've set around th' stove so long it's toasted up my shoes—
That's when there's no denyin', folks—I git th' Winter blues!

That's when you'll see me grab my hat an' mumble out: "Gee whiz!
I'm headed fer th' barnyard where them fightin' roosters is!"
I sneak out through th' orchard so th' folks indoors won't see,
Then git them two White Hopes o' mine to start a fightin' spree.

They're only little roosters, but fer spunk an' sparrin' grit
I've never seen a pugilist could match up with 'em yit!
Just let me take 'em in my arms, then hold 'em beak to beak—
Folks, they don't need no referee—they'd battle fer a week!

They drop their heads away down low, then ketch each other's eye,
An' fore a nanny goat could sneeze, th' feathers start to fly.
You'll never ketch them sparrin' fer a soft place on th' mat

I just stand there a-laughin' till my sides begin to ache,
But, 'course, you know, all laughter must have trouble in its wake.
Th' children hear th' rumpus, holler "Weasels!" to their Ma,
But she says: "Weasels nothin'! That's your rooster-fightin' Pa!"

Then but she comes a-preachin' that it's deacons such as me
Has sent th' church backslidin' to th' jaws of jeopardy.
But I just let them holler—criticise me all they choose—
It ain't no real transgression where a good fight cures the blues!

SALVATION ARMY HEAD VISITS HERE TODAY

Commandant E. W. Wilbur, of the local corps of the Salvation Army, had his plans completed Thursday evening for the Norwich visit today (Friday) of Commander Evangeline Booth, Colonel William McIntyre, of Boston, and the New England headquarters band, which is to give a concert on Union square this morning. A band stand was erected in front of the court house Thursday.

[illegible] sketch entitled, The Angel of the Slums, by Annie E. S. Beard, the following tribute to Commander Booth is given:

Her experience has been as varied as are her capabilities, for in Canada, to which she was transferred from England, she did a large work. She accomplished much for the relief of prisoners; she planted a system of schools through Newfoundland; established refuges for Armenian fugitives, and placed missions at far distant points. She also did a big and benefecent work, caring for missing and lost people, and restoring them to their families.

As head of the Salvation Army in the United States the wide scope of her efforts has been very manifest. She is at the head of a force of 170,000 persons, and her control has extended over the Salvation Army Training College, hospitals, lodging-houses, and representatives of the Army in 830 cities, besides property values amounting to over $700,000. She has inherited the splendid financial ability of her father. She is loved by her followers, and one of the causes of their devotion is no doubt found in the fact that she never asks of anyone of them anything she would not do herself, although she has carried a heavy burden of responsibility, which has seriously impaired her health, she refuses to live more comfortably than do her officers.

Evangeline Booth has been especially and rightly proud of the work her soldiers did in France during the Great War. She selected for the task the children that had been trained in the four rules laid down by her father and mother; that they must first be poor, next chaste, then obedient, and lastly must serve and literally sacrifice. It was this spirit that pleased military officers so that her workers were asked to go where others were not permitted, as their attitude toward life made them utterly fearless. Only those were allowed to go to France, who could cook, and who understood first aid and, of course, naturally possessed the passion for souls that marks the true Salvationist.

There is no means of estimating the good accomplished by Eva Booth, with her far-seeing vision and tactful ways of dealing with men and women.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE, BOY DIES WITH FRACTURED SKULL

Running across the street close to his home at 135 West Thames street, Daniel Elliott Grieve, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grieve, was fatally injured about 5:30 Thursday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Edmond Patenaude, a mechanic employed in a West Thames street garage. The little boy died with a fractured skull about three-quarters of an hour after he had been taken to the Backus hospital.

The boy was unconscious when picked up and carried into his home where Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was summoned. The doctor took him at once to the hospital where every effort was made to save his life but his injuries were too severe. The skull was fractured in two places, one where the headlight of the machine hit him and the other where his head hit the hard pavement of the street when he was knocked over.

Mr. Patenaude reported the accident to Chief George Linton at police headquarters. Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, was notified from the hospital of the boy's death and Coroner J. J. Desmond received word from Capt. D. J. Twomey at police headquarters. Together the coroner and medical examiner interviewed Mr. Patenaude at headquarters and secured his statement of the accident.

According to a statement given to the officials, Patenaude was driving towards Thamesville and a machine driven by Alvin S. Driggs was coming from the opposite direction. The boy ran out from behind the Driggs car, attempting to cross from the easterly to the westerly sidewalk, and came directly into the path of the Patenaude car and was struck by the left headlight and mudguard. When Patenaude stopped his machine, the boy lay about three feet back of the rear wheel with his head on the car track.

Patenaude's driving license was taken up by the officials but no enarge was made against him.

Mr. Grieve, who is superintendent at the American Woolen mill at Thamesville, had been in Boston Thursday on a business trip and arrived home after the accident.

NORWICH BEAUTIFUL WEEK BOOSTED BY LIONS

The weekly meeting of the Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President George A. Finn in charge. Lion William Anderson was song leader for the day and there was singing by visiting and late Lions, also a quartet selection by four doctors of the club.

Professor Puca, leader of the Columbus band, with a number of band members were visitors and following an introduction furnished music during the meeting. The attention of the club was called to the concert to be given at the Community House by the Italian-American band of 26 pieces and members were urged to support the band. Tail-twister Frank Rinella, recently elected president of the band, traced the history of that organization and said that it was the policy of the band to give a number of concerts during the summer for the benefit of the public.

In harmony with a resolution adopted by the United Commercial Travelers the club voted to go on record endorsing further investigation by the authorities of applicants for automobile operators' licenses, with a view to cutting down the tremendous increase of accidents.

Secretary Edward Carpenter spoke concerning Chautauqua, and asked that the club support the movement to bring this organization to Norwich with its high class entertainment.

Lion Louis Hawkins spoke on the beauties of Norwich and its wonderful industries which everyone should boost, closing his remarks by asking that the civic committee see what could be done to further boost Norwich, The Rose of New England.

Lion John Barry, reporting for the civic committee, told what is being done to make Norwich more beautiful, and said that the Lions club with the chamber of commerce, Rotary club, the city of Norwich, Boy Scouts, American Legion and other local organizations had cooperated in this movement. He urged the programme of 52 weeks in the year, but explained that next week had been selected as the week during which the project will be called more directly to the attention of the people.

The prize awarded each week during the Lions International attendance contest was donated this week by Lion Dr. Kopland K. Markoff and was awarded to Lion Rev. Robert B. Day, who accepted it with a few words of thanks. The prize was a handsome fishing pole and reel.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

Joubert will cover first with Bob Cardie at the keystone position. F. Gley will be at third and DeCelles will play the short field. In the outfield will be Bill Gley, E. Murphy, Jim Murphy and Eddie Joubert.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Third inning. Score 1-1. Runners on second and third. One man out. Catcher at bat.

Should the pitcher pass the batter?

It is advisable to walk the catcher in this case as a pitcher would not be taken out of the game for pinch hitter at this time. Pitchers have a weakness of hitting into double plays and a double play would retire the side. That is the way most major teams play it.

BOXERS IN VARIOUS CLASES CHOSEN FROM SHOWINGS MADE IN BOSTON BOUTS

Boston, May 22—Eight newly-created national amateur boxing champions, seven runners-up, nine others who figured in the semi-finals of the three day national boxing tournament that closed here last night, and one boxer who did not reach the semi-finals were selected today for the American Olympic team at a joint meeting of the National A. A. U. and Olympic section committees.

All but four members of the Olympic team of 25 were chosen without difficulty but the records of rival claimants for the remaining four places in the light classes prolonged the work of the selecting board until late afternoon. A proposal that further elimination tests be held in Boston or New York was discussed and finally rejected, and agreement was reached at last on the entire team.

California and New York lead in section representation on the team that will represent America in France each with five members, New England has four, Pennsylvania three, Ohio and the South two each. Indiana and Nebraska each has a representative while the army and the navy will send one heavyweight contender each. The list:

Heavyweight—I. G. Greathouse, Washington, Pa., (champion); Lester Mayle, U. S. army; J. J. Madden, U. S. navy.

"Hugs" Madera, Pittsburgh heavyweight, was the single runner-up of the tournament who was not chosen. Madera defaulted in the finals to E. G. Greenhouse, Washington, Penn., because of a broken left hand and broken nose. In the semi-finals he was given a decision over Lester Mayle, United States army, but the ruling of the judges was not popular. In addition to Greenhouse, the national champion, Mayle and J. J. Madden was eliminated by Mayle in a trial bout.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Springfield, Mass. May 22.—Bulkeley extended it's conquered territory to Massachusetts, by handing Springfield Technical high nine of this city an 8 to 4 lacing. Bulkeley showed a fine defensive game and the punch was there when the Orange and Black took their turn at the plate. The home team had the strongest lineup in the game today, three players. Malampy, Colin and Hamilton returning to the lineup after a weeks absence, being ineligle because of participation in an outside contest.

Dazzy Parisi started the contest for the Connecticut staters and for three innings was well nigh invincible. In the fourth he weakened and allowed a double, and Booth's error on Colin's fly gave the batter two bases and scored Malampy. Here Coach Robert T. Aldrich sent Daniels to the mound; who had things pretty much his own way for the remainder of the contest. Daniels in the time he was on the mound struck out nine and allowed but five hits. Hightower for the home team was never a puzzel to the heavy hitting visiting team and a total of eleven hits were made off his delivery Of the eleven hits, Sheflott and Gaetano with three hits apiece led the attack. Sheflott hit a home run in the eighth inning, that cleared the left center field fence.

MISS HOLLINS REACHES FINALS IN MET. GOLF

Garden City, N. Y., May 22.—Miss Marion Hollins kept up her victorious march toward the Metropolitan women's golf championship today when she advanced to the final round by decisively conquering Miss Marie Jenney, of North Hempstead, L. I., 5 and 4 at the semi-finals at the Cherry Valley club.

The former national champion, now carrying the colors of the Westbrook club, East Islip, L. I., continued to display the brilliant game that has swept aside all opposition so far. Miss Jenney, however, did somewhat better than Miss Hollins' other opponents by winning two holes before succumbing.

Tomorrow Miss Hollins will play another Long Islander, Mrs. J. L. Anderson, of the home club, in the 36-hole championship match. Only the most startling of upsets can keep her from capturing the title which Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, has worn for the past two years.

Mrs. Anderson today eliminated Miss Elsie McMahon, of Scarborough, N. Y., in the other semi-final by sinking a 12-foot putt for a birdie three to square the match at the 18th hole and then winning on the first extra hole.

Albany and Bridgeport Split

Albany, N. Y., May 22—Albany and Bridgeport broke even in today's double header. Miljus, pitching for Bridgeport, won his own game in the first contest when he hit a home run in the tenth inning. The score was two to one. Albany won the second game by 4 to 1. A home run by Shanley proved to be the winning marker in the second game, it breaking a 1 to 1 tie. Miljus permitted only two hits in the first contest. Score:

First game—

RANK OUTSIDER WINS FEATURE OF BELMONT

New York, May 22.—The 1924 season's remarkable string of turf upsets was increased today when the Oak Ridge stable's three-year-old colt, Laurano, a rank outsider, won the Metropolitan handicap, feature of the Belmont Park opening, and made a show of seven rivals.

Laurano, at 6 to 1 went to the front at the start and finished eight lengths in front of the Rancocas stable's three-year-old star, Bracadale, which beat Rialto, of the Greentree stable, for the place by a neck.

Trailing in fifth place was Ordinance, Major August Belmont's crack three-year-old and the favorite, which had hung up an impressive winning streak. Mad Hatter, Klondyke, Martingale and Brainstorm also ran.

Laurano enriched the Oak Ridge stable by $9,150 and stepped the mile in the fast time of 1:38 1-5.

ACADEMY TACKLES CHAPMAN FOR SECOND TIME TODAY

After a four-hour workout Thursday afternoon the Academy baseball squad is in prime shape to tackle Chapman Tech in the second game of the Interscholastic league at New London this afternoon. Coach Brigham gave the boys a stiff drilling on infield work and batting, using all of his pitchers in the batting practice to limber up their pitching arms. All showed up well.

To complete the day's workout a seven inning game was played with the Lions club team the Academy winning in the last of the seventh 8 to 7, on hits by Hollander and McNamara.

On Saturday afternoon the Academy tackles the Rotary club team which is bound to give the school boys a tough rub as Ed Harris former Boston pitcher will be in the box for the Rotarians.

NO TRUTH TO RUMORS IS KEARN'S CLAIM

Los Angeles, Calif., May 22—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, today declared that reports in eastern newspapers that Dempsey was trying to sidestep a match with Harry Wills, in order to meet Carpentier or Firpo first, are without foundation.

"First come, first served, is our policy and Dempsey is willing and ready to meet any one," Kearns declared.

Home Runs Win for Hartford

Worcester, Mass., May 22—Hartford defeated Worcester today 11 to 5, in the only game of a series of three scheduled between the teams, the other two having been prevented by wet weather. With two men out in the second Gilham walked three men after which an error by Shay, a hit by Cosgrove and a home run over the left field fence by Gehrig gave six runs which insured victory. Hauk also made a home run a grounder to center, ordinarily a double, netting a circuit when the ball rolled under the scors board. Score:

Two base hits, Demoe, Duckett. Home runs, Gehrig, Hauft.

Brasscos Take One from Profs.

Waterbury, May 22.—Waterbury defeated New Haven here today, 4 to 2, by hitting in the pinches. Schauffel's home run in the fifth along the left field line sent in Conway. Torphy, former Waterbury player, performed with the visitors at shortstop and had a busy day. Rush was steady in the pinches and experienced little trouble retiring the opposing batters. The score:

1 Bosse's Hit Wins Duel

Pittsfield, Mass., May 22—Pittsfield shut out Springfield 1 to 0 here this afternoon. Snover and Best figured in a fine pitchers battle. Two passes, a sacrifice, an error and Bosse's hit sent over the winning run in the third inning. The fielding of Simpson and McPhee featured. The score

Two base hits, Bosse

Yantic Grainers Win

Thursday evening the Yantic Grain Co. defeated the East Ends in a fast twi-light game by the score of 3-7. The game was called at the end of the fifth on account of darkness. Both Tennant for the East Ends and Kegler for the Grainers pitched well but errors behind Tennant proved disastrous. The score:

East Ends	0	1	0	0	1

By DAVID CORY

A Popular Guest.

Don't you hear the telephone ring?
1, 2, 3, Ring Happy Bell,
Rail Fence Corner, Clover Dell!"

Sang Bobbie Redvest, flying over to the Old Bramble Patch to tell Little Jack Rabbit that he was wanted at the Hollow Stump Telephone Booth.

"Who's calling?" asked the little rabbit standing on tiptoe while the kind little robin perched on the roof of the Stump Telephone Booth.

Hello, hello! Who's over there,
Danny Fox or Big Brown Bear?
Who is at the other end,
Enemy or anxious friend?"

"I'll tell you," shouted the little rabbit, hopping out all of a sudden, just like that, "My friend, the Circus Elephant says I must come back to Turnip Town."

"Gracious me," exclaimed Bobbie Redvest, "you only got home last night."

"I know it," answered Little Jack Rabbit, hopping back to the Old Bramble Patch, "but he says all the animals up there are asking for me at breakfast, luncheon and dinner, and sometimes at the soda fountain. I must pack my knapsack and start right away."

"Well, I never," sighed Lady Love, as she took out a clean shirt for her little bunny boy. "Of course, it's very nice to know that you're such a favorite, but I don't want you to be visiting all the time."

"Whoa!" shouted the Old Dog Driver, pulling in his billy goat team, "All aboard for Lettuceville, Carrot City and Turnip Town!" Then, with a crack of his whip, he drove away with the little rabbit and the Old Lady Grasshopper, Photographer Crane and Mrs. Squirrel Cracker. I guess they were going to visit relatives in Carrot City.

"Yes, ma'am," answered the little rabbit boy bunny, "The Circus Elephant telephoned me that so many little bunny boys and rabbit girls had written asking when I was coming back, that he wants me to be at the show this afternoon."

Now, children, dear I must stop here
To eat my bread and honey.
But I will write some more tonight
About our little bunny.

KING'S DAUGHTERS REPORT ON YEAR IN TWO COUNTIES

The twentieth annual conference of the Kings Daughters of New London and Windham counties was held with the Circle of Happy Days at the [illegible] Mrs. C. D. Foster, of Norwich, presided. The opening devotional service was led by Rev. William O. [illegible], pastor of the church. He read the ninety-first Psalm, speaking from it as the Song of the Quiet Hour, the Secret Place and of Meditation. The welcome was given by Miss Elizabeth G. Day of Colchester, and the response by Mrs. George T. Hobbins of East Thompson. Mrs. [illegible] Tucker and Mrs. [illegible] were appointed as the resolutions committee. The minutes of the last conference were read by the secretary, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. Mrs. C. E. Pendleton then favored the audience with a solo, My Ain Countree.

County Conference Report.

Mrs. Foster gave her annual county conference report, which is always of interest as follows:

"Our order's activities in the Windham county [illegible] preceding years. There are 20 circles besides an independent list, showing one less than last year. The King's Blue Birds Circle of Norwich disbanded early in the year. We regretted this very much as it was a live and promising circle but a lack of interest on the part of [illegible] was not able to hold the circle together. Some of the girls have since joined other circles.

[illegible] circle of Putnam is so nearly removed from our counties that the addresses of most of its members is Oxford, Mass. This circle has twelve members and meets only during the summer months when the other circles are less active. Also near the boundary line of our state is the Barre Workers of East Thompson with a membership of thirty. This circle is unique in that it owns its own hall and does a large share of community work. Burden Bearers of Putnam is the oldest circle in Windham county, having been organized in 1888. Their membership is 15 and their activities are many and varied. The Cheerful Doers of Central Village has a membership of 18 but just at present they have temporarily suspended operations, but we hope they will soon be able to take up the work with renewed vigor. The largest circle in Windham county is the Trusting circle of Willimantic with a membership of 33. This circle devotes a considerable part of its work to the Card Home for the Aged. These five circles comprise the Windham county group with a total membership of 108, a gain of eight over last year.

New London county also has a circle that is most active in the summer, the Circle of Happy Days of Colchester, their name suggesting the joy and gladness of service. This [illegible] a membership of five and usually a perfect attendance at each meeting. Jewett City has three circles. Whatsoever, with a membership of thirty-nine, has sprung into fame all over our broad land as its leader has become in rapid succession county president, state president and international president. Dorcas Circle with 45 members can also feel a share of satisfaction in the fact that the ability of their friend and [illegible] has been so widely recognized. The Pathfinders, a Junior circle with 17 members are fortunate in that they have our international president for their chaperon.

Norwich has eight circles, the oldest of which is Charitable, organized in 1885 and having 23 members. Comfort Circle has 26 members. Grace Circle 24, Loyal Circle 30, Euphemian Circle 39, Ever Ready circle 21, Home Chapter, the largest in numbers, 128 and the Junior circle, Rainbow, the smallest in numbers, 12. These eight circles comprise the Norwich City Union which has a full staff of officers and meets twice a year. The different circles provide music at the Backus hospital and services at the almshouse on Sundays under the general directions of committees appointed by the City Union. The union is always represented at the county conferences and state conventions by a delegate.

New London has three large circles, St. James with 67 members, Friendship circle 40 and Mizpah circle 48, all working together harmoniously. The independent list in charge of a member of one of these circles, has eight names.

The total membership of the counties to date is 889—33 less than last year, 14 of which decrease is represented by the disbandment of the Blue Birds circle. Eight circles that gained in membership are the Cheerful Doers of Central Village, Trusting of Willimantic, Charitable Circle of Norwich, Comfort circle of Norwich, Rainbow circle of Norwich, Friendship circle of New London, Mizpah circle of New London and the independent list. The Trusting circle of Willimantic shows the greatest gain in numbers—eight—which is also the greatest percentage gain—about 33 per cent. It is very gratifying to find both junior circles in this list. Eight circles showing loss in numbers are the Burden Bearers of Putnam, Circle of Happy Days, Colchester, Whatsoever and Dorcas circles of Jewett City, Grace circle, Ever Ready circle and Home Chapter of Norwich and St. James circle of New London. Seventeen circles reported their financial condition. They raised $2983.13 and spent $2514.42. The five circles having the highest record for money received were the Euphemian of Norwich, Earnest Workers of East Thompson, St. James and Friendship of New London and Dorcas of Jewett City.

It would appear from the membership lists that only one circle does not subscribe to the Silver Cross and as this may have been an oversight in not answering the question, it brings me to the subject of the lists. I would like to impress it upon the circles that the more completely the lists are filled out the more accurate the county records and reports will be. In order to have our county and state records balance it is necessary to have the amounts of dues paid correspond with the number of names on the lists—that is twenty cents for each name. The first list returned to me was the independent list, then Euphemian circle of Norwich, Mizpah circle of Putnam, Friendship circle of New London and Comfort circle of Norwich. I would like to say a word about the independent list. It is made up of King's Daughters who for various reasons are not, or cannot, be affiliated with circles, but wish to keep their names on the membership lists of the order. If any of you know of any such King's Daughters I am sure that Mrs. Smith would be pleased to add their names to her lists.

There is one thing that would add variety and interest to these annual reports and that is the starting of new circles. No circles have been organized since 1921 when our two junior circles were formed. These little juniors are growing up and soon will be seniors. Therefore it behooves us to start new junior circles. If we could start one each year it would mean much to our order. Perhaps some of you have a Sunday school class or there may be a neighborhood group of young girls that would form a nucleus for a large and active circle. Our state has a superintendent of junior circles who will be glad to cooperate with anyone desiring to form a junior circle. Let us all think this over.

Reports From Circles.

The circle reports were all read at the morning session, every circle but one sending a report of the year's work, which in most cases was read by a representative of the circles. There is no more satisfactory work done by any organization than by The KKing's Daughters. Every bit of work, every gift, every deed performed, is to help someone, or make life happier for the sick or shutins. And the reports gave accounts of innumerable kinds of charitable and community work performed in His Name.

Mrs. J. W. Dean of New London had a literature table at one side of the room, and made a brief speech concerning the material helpful for the work of the circles. Luncheon was served in the chapel at noon.

In the afternoon the devotional service was led by Miss Harriett I. Eaton, of Hartford, the first vice president of the state organization. Most beautifully she likened the order to a tree, an organization whole, strong and many years growing. The branches of the tree are the many organizations—the twigs, the members united in the organization, the leaves the individuals, the fruit, the beautiful things reported at this conference, and the root signifying the reaching up to God.

The roll call of the circles showed the following members present: Burden Bearers 0, Charitable 5, Cheerful Doers 0, Circle of Happy Days 1 Comfort 7, Dorcas 5, Earnest Workers 10, Euphemian 1, Ever Ready 2, Friendship 11, Grace 3, Home Chapter 14, Loyal 7, Mizpah, New London 13, Mizpah, Putnam 0, Pathfinders 0, Rainbow 0, St. James 8, Trusting 7, Whatsoever 3, Independent list 3, visitors 12. Coming from Norwich, New London, Greeneville, Willimantic, Jewett City, East Thompson and Colchester.

International President Attends.

In addition to these members, the international and state president, Mrs. George H. Prior of Jewett City, was present and the state first vice president, Miss Eaton of Hartford, the state second vice president, Miss Elizabeth Day of Colchester, the state secretary, Miss Ada Shelley of Windsor, and the Hartford county president, Miss Annie E. Waters.

Mrs. Foster asked each one of these officers to use as she called their names, also the county chairman of literature, Mrs. Dean.

Rev. Mr. Berckman gave an address which was unique in its setting forth of the thirty-sixth Psalm. He called it a Panorama of Human Life, and gave it as a moving picture, dividing the Acts as purgatory and paradise. The first act consisted of four reels—self satisfaction, evil dragging us down, no fear of God and evil scheming. Act 3 was Paradise with several reels describing different phases based on the verses of the Psalm—such as Look up and you cannot be mean and low; Live above the clouds; Stability. The higher you go up in God's judgment, the deeper you can see in his judgments—the fountain of water in ourselves and to be with God. The last reel was Inferno—all judgments will be fulfilled, and the admonition to sit down and see this moving picture. Mrs. Gregory of Colchester sang The Plains of Peace.

The international president, Mrs. Prior, was given much applause as she went to the platform to give her address. Her subject was Snapshots from Charleston, S. C., where she attended the international convention. She spoke of the three funds started during the retiring president's, Mrs. Reed's, term of office—the Union college fund, the Ethel Evans fund and the Margaret Bottome Memorial fund, the latter have been completed and the mortgage to be burned next Tuesday evening. Also four committees of much importance, namely Junior, Foreign Publicity and Bible Study. The number of delegates were: general officers 5, council members 24, Canada 2, delegates 110. Total 133, 17 states represented, three from Connecticut.

She said the motion to raise the national dues to 25 cents was lost. Each circle is to be asked to pay $1 in view of the fact that the magazine, The Silver Cross, is not self-supporting. The next convention is to be held at Los Angeles. She spoke of the conferences: to instruct officers, on literature, a committee was appointed to revise and perhaps compile the order literature; on Bible study; groun meetings, order extension and operating the order activities. The Order Clinic—Bible studies by Mrs. McLaulin, Mrs. Gugle and Mrs. Kreps and the junior hour. Then she told of the social affairs given at a high school by the students.

At the close of Mrs. Prior's address Mrs. Foster presented her a $20 gold piece, as a gift from the circles, to which she responded with especial feeling of love and appreciation.

The committee on resolutions reported through Mrs. Ghittenden of New London, thanking the church, speakers, Miss Day and members of Happy Days circle, the soloists, the organist and the ladies who served the lunch, and all others who contributed to the enjoyableness of the day. An invitation was given from Friendship Circle of New London Second Congregational church to hold the next yearly conference there.

After the Mizpah benediction, the conference adjourned.

The decorations were apple blossoms and lilacs.

On the programme was given the names of those who had gone home during the year. They were Miss Alice Woodmansee, Mrs. Amos T. Otis, Miss Mary E. Wattles, Miss Elizabeth Rhodes, Mrs. Lewis G. Walz, Miss Alice Taylor and John P. Gorman.

INEXPERT DRIVER GOT INTO TROUBLE IN TRAFFIC

Traffic Officer Myron Morgan brought Peter McKelvey of 11 Elm street to police headquarters Thursday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock, charging McKelvey with being an inefficient driver after a collision at the corner of Broadway and Main streets. Mr. McKelvey secured his license only a week ago, but had been taking instructions for two weeks before that he said.

When he came from the west along Main street Thursday afternoon and reached the corner, the traffic officer gave him the signal to stop as he was allowing a truck to go through from Broadway into Shetucket street. But McKelvey failed to bring his car to a stop and crashed into the side of the truck. The blow put the steering gear on the McKelvey car out of order so that when he started up again he ran onto the sidewalk. A more expert driver who saw his trouble helped him out by getting the McKelvey machine and driving it to police headquarters with the officer. The driver of the truck, which belongs to Edward Carroll, also reported at headquarters and put in a claim for a new mudguard which Mr. McKelvey agreed to pay for. The McKelvey car was driven to a garage for repairs.

LAWLESSNESS OF NATURE RAVAGERS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Says "Jack" Warwick, the veteran paragrapher who put The Toledo Blade on the newspaper map:—

"It isn't love of the beautiful, its something else that impels people to pick wild flowers, to let them die in their hands twenty minutes later. You see what it is?"

You see, The Blade, like The Bulletin, is a family newspaper, and convention forbids in journals meant for home circulation the use of language adequately descriptive of such regenerate, unimproved, retrogressive, morbid, flabby-souled devastators and destruction-mongers. Therefore Mr. Warwick controls his own feelings and bids his readers say it for themselves.

I imitate his prudence and cordially echo his wish that you say it,—say it not only in the privacy of your own closet, but openly and more or less vociferously in the faces and to the ears of the next horde of wayside depredators and woodland marauders whom you discover playing havoc along the course of their flivvering foray.

It won't do to call such conduct "brutal", for even the brutes who live by grazing herbage eat only for food and would scorn the idea of destruction just for destruction's sake.

It won't pass to call it "unthinking," for two out of three of the petty razzdazzlers have brains sufficient at least to steer an auto along a country road. Any human being possessing adequate brains who doesn't use them is a moron. And morons can't drive automobiles. At least, not regularly and safe-out of the green-grassed slope. Set thickly in that grass, with a coy wild strawberry bloom showing white, here and there, and one or two sun-kissed dandelions ramping somewhat brazenly above them, they are truly things of beauty and joys,—if not forever, at least renewed with each recurring May.

It is a delight to the eye and a rest to the soul to stroll by them, perhaps to sit down idly for a few minutes right among them and study the lesson that Nature, despite her hard practicality, has a soul which can, now and then, bloom into color and beauty.

Tear up those same violets, ravish them from their chosen setting, carry them for half an hour in a hot hand, and they are then simply wilted weeds, fit only for the garbage can,—into which they usually go, sooner or later.

I know another bank, far in the deep woods, where the earliest arbutus develops its pink-flushed petals under a protecting blanket of wind-strewn leaves. I have known it for sixty years. And I keep its secret close locked in my own breast. For I also know that if I once showed to others the winding trails and thicket-ophiosming ways which lead to it, the arbutus vines would speedily be torn up by the roots and the whole hillside devastated of its dower of beauty.

It was only the other day that a car from a neighboring city passed by my house with a man, a woman and a child packed on the front seat, and the rear compartment actually piled full of arbutus vines. The load represented the loot of an acre. It must have represented several hours of uprooting pillage. There was nothing in the faces of the man or the woman to suggest that [illegible] were [illegible] like a shipment of [illegible] perfectly well [illegible] Rather [illegible] gers, pilfering flowers by the truckload to sell to city florists, or else they were just scavengers out to see how much destruction they could cause in a given time.

There used to be a side-road not far from me, which was so lined with cherry trees that it had been given the name "Cherry Lane." "There used to be," but there isn't any longer. [illegible] and shimmering with bloom, auto parties flocked to park beneath them and break off limb after limb to "decorate" [illegible] ash-heap in the back-yard, next morning. The last I knew there was but one cherry tree remaining [illegible] Lane. And that owed its existence to the fact that it was a hollow [illegible] and never also shaded.

For years and years a little lake-[illegible] and [illegible] horse-drawn vehicles and the picknickers were mostly country people, the owner was glad to let them enjoy its beauty and coolness in the hot summer days. But, when the advent of the automobile extended the radius of a comfortable drive from [illegible] the character of the [illegible] Instead of accepting the loan of the shade and the shore with some kindly regard for the owner's rights, the new gangs swooped down on them as the Assyrian did on the fold and fairly revelled in damage and disfigurement. They acted like four-legged swine. They left the shore strewn with bottles and emptied cans; they tossed half-eaten sandwiches and old cartons and greased papers all through the grove; they cut down saplings to make their fires, and went away when their orgies were exhausted, leaving the fires burning to endanger a whole country-side.

From a place of beauty and a retreat for rest the lite grove was soon reduced to an eyesore and worse,—to a stinking nuisance. Rotting liscards of food and dumps of nameless filth made it intolerable to sit in and an offense even to walk through.

And at last the owner, after vain appeals by posted placards for an observance of common decency, put up a stiff barbed wire fence between the highway and the grove, and wired on every other length formal warning to all to "keep out!"

I don't blame him. Do you?

But what's the proper thing to say about those who make this action necessary by their selfish, indecent, filthy and incredibly stupid abuse of their privileges?

Even a mean person, a greedy and dishonest person, might be supposed to have brains enough not to foreclose on his future welfare for the sake of a temporary eruption of hoggishness. But these cattle seem to be as lacking in brains as they are in instincts of decency. They are deterred neither by considerations of common fairness nor by monitions of common sense.

Some years ago London Punch had a picture of two villainous-faced costermongers sitting on a green bank grinning into each others' faces with wolfish delight. "Well," says one, "we've had a purty good outin'. We've pulled up some hedges and knocked the heads off a lot o' flowers and [illegible] in half-a-dozen gardens. Let's set fire to a common and go home."

That was their idea of a "happy day" [illegible] knocking the heads off flowers, trampling down gardens, uprooting hedges and burning commons.

[illegible] of most of our [illegible] ing visitors from the city have that same conception of enjoyment. They appear to hold the idea that [illegible] are free plunder, outside the path [illegible] Flowers, fruit, [illegible] and even confine their depredations to growths along the roadsides, but jump fences into orchards and tramp across seeded fields to the woods.

Some years ago Dame Nature, apparently repentant for certain unkindly tricks she played on me, started a little plat of meadow-lilies along the road fence nearly in front of my house. They grew and spread for two or three years till they made a noble clump. In flowering time they were really inspiring. Fifty or a hundred tall stems shot up, each bearing at its top one gorgeous yellow blossom, two inches or more across. I used to [illegible] [illegible] to look at them, occasionally wander out and inspect them more closely. A few of them, cut and placed in an umbrella-stand, made a stately picture in the front hall. But they were vastly more beautiful and much more lasting in their native bed.

One day, last summer, a big and very shiny car stopped beside them. A gentleman and lady,—beg pardon, a male creature and the female of his species —alighted. In five minutes every last one of those [illegible] was [illegible] by the roots and stowed away in the car. Then it and its occupants rolled on, doubtless to repeat the pillage at the next beauty-spot which caught their eyes. Having no [illegible] ownership in that natu[illegible] could not effectively intervene. True, I might have remonstrated,—to be met with supercilious stares and frigid reminders that the flowers were as much theirs as mine, and intimations that country bumpkins would do well to keep their proper places,—in the back ground.

I sincerely hope that thoughtful Nature had concealed a few well-equipped bumblebees in those flowers and that each of the spoilers got stung on the end of the nose when they took the drooping lilies out of their car. But alas! such manifestations of poetic justice are hardly to be expected. Probably what actually happened when they reached the [illegible] on the tonneau was that they mutually agreed the things weren't worth saving after all and bade the chauffeur throw them [illegible]

"Such lawlessness [illegible] claimed the lady of the house as the lilies were being torn up.

It may be that the Volstead act is responsible for [illegible] lent lawlessness; it may be that pistol-prohibiting edicts are aids to professional criminals; it may be that other samples of unduly restrictive legislation lead to contempt for law. But I can't see where any of them are responsible for the lawlessness of Nature-ravagers, untimely let loose on the rural roads of spring and summer. I think we must ascribe their acts to the character of their breed. It seems to me a durn poor one.

Concert Songs and Instrumental

Eyes of Blue (Gannon-Orth) / At Parting (Peterson-Rogers)	Kathryn Meisle / Kathryn Meisle	45407	1.00

Light Vocal Selections

Jimminy Gee! / Monkey Doodle	Billy Murray / American Quartet	19321	.75

"Jimminy Gee!" is a fox-trot song. "Monkey-Doodle" is a love-episode among jungle cousins. Whimsical perhaps, but there are Victor Records for your every mood.

Polly Put the Kettle On (from "Kid Boots") / School Day Sweethearts	American Quartet / Marcia Freer-Lewis James	19322	.75

Two charming numbers. The first, for male voices, has a sprightly melody. The second is a waltz duet. A record for you if you like popular music which is not of the jazz type,

Dance Records

Night Hawk Blues—Fox Trot with vocal refrain / Red Hot Mamma—Fox Trot with vocal refrain	Coon-Sanders Original / Night Hawk Orchestra	19316	.75

My Dream Moon—Fox Trot / Cover Me Up with the Sunshine of Virginia—Fox Trot	The Benson Orch. of Chicago / Jean Goldkette and His Orchestra	19317	.75

Doodle-Doo-Doo—Fox Trot with vocal refrain / Back in Hackensack, New Jersey—Fox Trot with vocal refrain	The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19318	.75

Happy-go-lucky Benson trots, each with a vocal refrain. When you play these records, you probably will find yourself singing with them while you dance.

The Land of My Sunset Dreams—Waltz / Georgia Lullaby—Waltz with vocal refrain	Jack Chapman and His Drake Hotel Orchestra / The Troubadours	19319	.75

Waltzes—a Wendell Hall waltz, slow and dreamy, in the popular manner, and a fitting companion-waltz. The kind of recording that makes Victor dance music so popular.

Col. John Champlin, M. D., of Westerly attended the annual summer outing and clambake of the Rhode Island Military Order of Foreign Wars, of which he is a member, Thursday. The clambake and outing was held at the Anawam club, Rehoboth and was quite generally attended. Col. Champlin took his golf club with him in expectation of taking into camp a member of the medical profession, but not of the order.

Nearly two thousand spectators gathered on the high ground east of the baseball diamond of the Westerly playground Thursday afternoon to witness the colorfully portrayed, allegorical pageant by Westerly public school students. An almost perfect afternoon and background of fresh green hillside and ledge combined for a stage setting hardly to be equalled. The cast for the pageant was made up of several hundred school pupils, in brightly colored costumes, the motif for the whole being Health.

Untangling complications which have arisen because of the new building regulations passed by the town council May 15 is taking considerable time of the town council. Another special session was held Wednesday evening for the consideration of these matters and the venders' license ordinance which was passed at the same time.

Complaints have been made against the rebuilding of a store on Hobart street and the construction of a garage on Rocket street, but as actual work on these propositions was commenced before the ordinance went into effect, it was decided that the council had no legal hold upon either of the properties.

Angelo Siciliano of Hobart street, who had a store built on the street line, commenced making changes before Monday, May 5, when the ordinance went into effect. He has placed the store back on the building line of the houses on that street, so that conditions are somewhat improved over what they might have been if he had built his new store on the street line as he contemplated.

The three car garage on Rocket street is owned by John Gratrella. Work was started there in April, but at the request of the council Mr. Gratre[illegible] work. This is one of the streets which is being laid out now under the direction of the town planning committee. Plans are under way to widen this street to at least 40 feet, the people in that section desiring the change very much.

The garage being built by Mr. Gratrella is within three feet of what is now the highway, which is only 20 feet wide, and swinging doors will open out upon the sidewalk. The foundations are in and the studding is up, and although the council has no jurisdiction over him he has consented to wait for a limited time only to see what might be done about moving the garage back.

The question of the licenses under the vending ordinance for the shore resorts came up and the council was divided upon the question of maintaining the high license of $200 or making a change. The proposition was made to eliminate the license fees if store keepers had been assessed on taxes by the tax assessors as of June 15th.

Objection was made to this plan by the tax assessors on the ground that the payment of taxes would not be due until October and even though the taxes were assessed they might never be collected. The council took no further action upon this ordinance.

Narragansett Pier, Newport and Block Island are wrestling with the same problem at present. None of them seems to have had sufficient experience by which the town of Westerly might profit just now.

Anne Price, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Price of Main street, crept out of a window onto a piazza roof Thursday morning. The baby fell from the roof to the ground and sustained but slight bruises about the head. Dr. Henry L. Johnson was called and gave the child the necessary medical attendance.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain
How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food ferments causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows.

It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

NEW LONDON POLICE SEIZE TRUCKS WITH $100,000 WORTH OF ALCOHOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 22—About 500 five gallon cans of alcohol, valued at $10 a gallon, are in the custody of the New London police department today, representing the cargoes of three trucks seized early this morning in this city by Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh and four officers of the New London police force. It was the best piece of police work done in this city and gives to the state the record of its largest seizure of intoxicating liquor. Notwithstanding the capture was a piece of good luck it discloses the caution with which the police are operating in their efforts to wipe out the liquor business. To Howard Sloan belongs the credit of having secured the first evidence that the alcohol was being conveyed through this city unlawfully. He is possessed of sensitive nostrils or he would not have demonstrated his ability as a detective. Mr. Sloan had done his tour of duty as a patrolman at 3 o'clock this morning and had reported off duty. Before he retired he operated his car to the beach and while doing so was stopped by the driver of a truck who had "lost" his way because of highway work that is being done on the turnpike. The inquiry was as to the road to New York. Mr. Sloan gave the information desired, and in doing so detected the odor of alcohol. He reached a telephone and communicated his discovery to the police station. There Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh got the message and he started like a hound to run down that tip. He took with him Officers Graham, Leyden, Manico and J. P. Sullivan. The chase was a hard one and led the officers into Waterford. Federal Enforcement Officer Fitzpatrick was picked up on the way, that no dispute as to authority should be raised, as it was when Sergeant Hicks made an arrest in Waterford. The officers soon came upon the truck and as a result seized it and its contents. The officers learned that another truck had preceded the one they seized over the route and they went in search of that, finding it after they had gone as far as Saybrook and had turned back with the confidence that the truck had not got by them. A third truck was seized on a street off Steward street, from Montauk avenue, where it had become mired and where it stuck fast till 11 o'clock this forenoon. The contents of the third truck was confiscated and transferred to another truck. The officers worked on the seizure from 3 a. m. till 11 this forenoon.

When the men were presented in the police court they asked for a continuance of their cases until Saturday and that was granted, a bond being fixed to hold all the men in the sum of $10,000 each. The trucks were held and will be kept in the custody of the authorities until the transportation cases are disposed of. The trucks and the alcohol are valued at $100,000. The men held are Patrick J. Murphy of Bridgeport, John Lyons, Morris Goodelbaum, George L. Talbot, Albert Brown, Charles Becker and John T. Pettee.

The trucks are the property of Murphy and the Boston-New York Daily Transit company. The alcohol was shipped by the Boston Varnish company, according to the bill of lading and was consigned to G. Green of 117 Mercer street, New York.

All the accused men made statements under oath to the prosecutor in chambers as to their connection with the transportation of the alcohol and signed the statements.

Murphy obtained his release from the county jail at 6 o'clock this evening, when the National Fidelity company became surety on his bond for $10,000. It is understood that Becker will give a bond tomorrow and that he, too, will be released. Murphy went to Bridgeport this evening by train. He will return here tomorrow with parties who are to provide a bond, for Becker and perhaps some of the others.

Mrs. Morris Feldman of Montauk avenue, Mrs. Albert Buckley, of Montville, Frederick Warnke of Hartford, Peter Itts of South Lyme, Miss Gladys Taber of Huntington street, Miss Annie Carnaghan of Westerly and Master Frank Landgraff of Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Association hospital, were discharged today.

The condition of James Bence, a member of the crew of the Thames Towboat company's barge Pequot, who sustained a fractured skull, fractured arm and third degree burns by falling into the boiler room of the barge in the sound yesterday morning, remains critical today at Lawrence hospital, although it was stated at the institution that there was a very slight improvement noted.

The city's steam roller in operation on Truman street, near Shaw street, this morning backed against an automobile, owned by John Julawski, of Fitchville. The automobile was somewhat damaged.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today canceled the operator's license of Samuel Williams of Main street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Gunner Harry Brunn, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Camden, at anchor in the harbor, died yesterday aboard the ship. This afternoon he was accorded a military funeral at No. 15 Masonic street the services attended by officers and members of the ship's crew. The service was conducted by Chaplain Stone of the submarine base. An escort composed of officers and members of the crew of the Camden, headed by the ship's band accompanied the body to the union station, where a volley was fired by a firing squad and taps sounded, before the casket was placed aboard the train. Gunner Brunn's former home was in Brooklyn, N. Y., and burial will be in that city.

At a meeting of Rev. George Deshon Assembly, Knights of Columbus, held last evening in the home on Huntington street, delegates were elected to the annual state meeting of navigators and delegates at the Knights of Columbus club, New Haven, Sunday next. The delegates from New London will be John Glynn, head of the local assembly, Peter J. Moriarty, David A. Connors, James F. Donnelly and T. S. Sullivan.

William Prescott, Jr., residing on East Minor lane, Waterford, has brought suit for divorce from his wife, Florence Prescott, on the grounds of desertion. Besides seeking the decree, Prescott petitions for the custody of their four children. Mrs. Prescott recently sued her husband for non-support of the children and the case against the husband is pending, for Prescott has agreed to pay a stipulated sum of money to his wife every week. Mrs. Prescott has openly declared that she will not continue to reside with her husband, but that she will use every effort to compel him to support their children.

Eugene Arcand, a radio operator on the U. S. S. 3, stationed a submarine base, was arrested on this morning, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. When given a hearing before Judge Victor Prince in the police court Arcand pleaded guilty and was fined $100. He paid. Arcand when arrested last night admitted having been drinking and stated that he obtained his supply of strong drink, which was alcohol, at the submarine base.

Arcand was driving a machine about the city throughout the night. About 12.30 o'clock when crossing State street, near the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument Arcand was reckless in the manner in which he handled the machine. Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Howard Sloan were standing in front of the Salvation Army lodging house and observed the zig-zag manner in which the car was operated. At the same time Patrolman John Sullivan was crossing the street and did not observe the approaching car. Just as the automobile was about to pass Sullivan it was guided towards the officer and but for Sloan seizing Sullivan the latter officer would have been struck. Sloan grabbed his associate officer by the coat and yanked him out of harm's way. Arcand was held up and it was quickly noted that he had been drinking and he was taken into custody. As Arcand alighted from the machine he failed to apply the brake. As a result of this thoughtlessness the car descended the grade and only came to a stop when it reached the union station.

Charles Joseph Adams, 23, of 81 Monroe street, New Haven, was in the police court this morning, charged with felonous assault with intent to rob, pleaded guilty and was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. Judge Prince ordered Adams to provide a surety on a bond of $5,000, but he was unable to do so and was taken to jail to await trial.

Adams attacked Earl S. Burns, a radio man, stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy late last night, when Burns was passing over the Shaw's Cove railroad bridge. Burns was beat into submission by blows upon the head with an iron pipe and narrowly escaped sustaining concussion of the brain. He was in court this morning and his head and face showed plainly the murderous attack that was made upon him. Adams stated that he could not account for his cowardly act, being unable to assign a reason for his desire to rob the sailor. Adams also declared that his parents and several sisters reside at the New Haven address and his general appearance indicated that he had been well supplied with funds in the past.

It is claimed, that the situation as to congested streets which prevails in New London is the same in all the cities of the state. New London is likely to make Bank street a one-way highway to get relief from its congested condition.

The robbery of one Burns from the Coast Guard academy has aroused business men to be more cautious how they go about at night with large sums of money in their pockets, for some of them are said to be well supplied with funds when they go to their homes at night. The robbery of a well known citizen who left a street car at Linden street a few months ago is recalled and the ease with which he was robbed is commented upon now.

Abraham Bronstein, whose property on Pearl street was condemned by the fire warden and the inspector of buildings, is in town from New York and says he is to put the property in good repair. He intends he says to spend his summer here and oversee the work in which he will find as much pleasure as he anticipated by going back into the country.

It is represented that the Woolworth company, when they tear down the Garfield building to make way for a new structure, will erect a building of only two stories in height, but which will carry a foundation that will permit the placing of several more stories upon it, if business warrants. The claim is made by experienced real estate owners that there is no demand for offices in the upper stories of buildings now and that several properties on the principal streets are unrented above the second stories.

The Memorial day procession in New London this year will be more pretentious than in recent years. Men from the submarine base and from the ships in the harbor will be in the procession and a band from one of the ships will provide music.

William F. McGuire, a representative of the United States shipping board and with headquarters at Groton, was notified today to cause his automobile to be removed from Green street on which thoroughfare it has been parked two or three days, at a point where traffic is frequently congested.

The republican town committee held a meeting last night in the office of Daniel M. Cronin and re-elected Theodore Bodenwein chairman for another term.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. Huber have vacated their apartment at the Hotel Mohican and will occupy a cottage at Groton Long Point until fall.

Samuel A. Goldsmith, president of the S. A. Goldsmith company, who underwent an operation at a New York hospital several weeks ago, is recuperating at Lakeville, N. J.

Attorney and Mrs. John C. Geary, who have resided at the Hotel Mohican since last fall, have gone to their summer home in Waterford.

Lieut. Clarence E. Fogg, of the U. S. S. Camden, complained to the police this afternoon that while passing through Williams street, between Granite and Amity streets, he was bitten by a dog owned by Dr. Joseph M. Garey. The matter was referred to Dog Warden Sweezy.

SEMINOLE CAPTURES SLOOP—BRINGS IN MORE WHISKEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 22.—Revenue cutter Seminole, which has been scouring the coast in the vicinity of "Rum Row" for several months for rum-running craft, made another seizure this morning, when the cutter captured the auxiliary sloop La Felice, laden with 180 cases of Scotch whiskey of the Royal Dimple brand. The sloop was manned by the crew of the cutter and was headed for this port, the Seminole and La Felice reaching the harbor shortly after 5 o'clock. The La Felice was in command of Captain Roderick McNeil of Gloucester, Mass., and carried a crew of two men. They will be given a hearing at the customs house tomorrow morning before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson. La Felice hails from Gloucester and is of the type of craft. She was sighted about 10 o'clock this morning about 15 miles south, southeast of Montauk Point and after having moved from the vicinity of the several rum-laden craft that are supplying other boats with liquor. After a chase of several miles the La Felice was overtaken and seized with her cargo, valued at about $7,500.

WATERFORD WIFE-BEATER GETS FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 22.—W. J. Whiting, a well known and prosperous farmer, residing in the Lakes Pond section of Waterford, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court this morning, charged with beating his wife. He pleaded guilty and a fine of $7 and costs was imposed as was a sentence of 30 days in jail. The jail sentence was suspended until August 2nd, however, and in making the suspension Justice Morton informed Whiting that if the accused appeared before him again on a similar charge, the sentence, if not a more severe one, would be put into operation, as the court would not countenance such abuse as it was satisfied Mrs. Whiting had been subjected to for a long time. Whiting is 62 and his wife is six months his junior. Whiting was taken into custody last night by Sergt. Clifford Gorgas of the state police at Groton, after Mrs. Whiting had lodged complaint with the authorities. He was held in bonds of $250 for trial this morning.

Mrs. Whiting declared that she had been subject to many beatings at the hands of her husband, but the one she received Tuesday was more than she intended to put up with any longer. She declared that her husband had made a practice of being in the company of a woman residing at Flat Rock and that the woman in question had also accepted sums of money from Whiting, a fact, she declared, could be proved by her. Mrs. Whiting declared that her husband had indulged lately in drinking hooch at parties in the country and that the indulgence of the drink caused him to frequently become ugly and it was while in these moods that he inflicted the brutal punishment.

NORWICH TOWN MEN HEAR MASON'S HISTORY

The closing meeting for this season of the Norwich Town Men's League, was held Tuesday evening, in the Norwich Town chapel, with a good attendance which included both men and women friends of the league. The president, Henry T. Frazier presided, and introduced the speaker of the evening, B. P. Bishop, of Norwich, who gave a very entertaining address on Captain John Mason, one of the founders of Norwich. In part Mr. Bishop said:

There are three outstanding events in John Mason's life, which ought to be remembered. He helped found the colonies at Windsor, Saybrok and Norwich the latter in 1659 Captain Mason was a true pioneer spirit, he was military leader for Connecticut, like Miles Standish was for Massachusetts. There were three tribes of Indians, the Mohegans between the Connecticut river and the Thames river, with Uncis at their head; these were friendly to the white man. The Pequot tribe from the Thames river to the Paycatuck river, with Sassacus their leader; this tribe were very hostile to the whites. The third tribe was the Narragansetts, who were fairly friendly; their chief-tain being Miantonomoh. Captain Mason had the co-operation of these and his tribe in the conflict with the Pequots. After many aggravations on the part of the Pequots in burning property and killing the whites, the legislature at Hartford commissioned Captain Mason to raise an army to exterminate the Pequots. The Pequots had their main fortifications at New London, Groton and Mystic About 1637, Captain Mason with 90 white men and 70 Mohegans went down the Connecticut river to the Saybrook fort, where he exchanged 20 of his men, for 20 at the fort. With this company he proceeded through the sound to Point Judith where he landed and then took the overland way with his men to attack the fort at Mystic. On this journey 200 of the Narrgansetts were persuaded to join his enterprise. On nearing the fort at Mystic, he left all of the Indians as a guard near the cornfields, etc., and with his 90 white men alone he entered by two openings into the Indian stockades, early in the morning and completely routed the old camp. From that point Captain Mason took his warriors that he left outside and proceeded to Groton and New London, where he won similar victories, winning a complete victory over the Pequot tribe in a period of three weeks. When he gave his report at Hartford to the legislature that body voted Captain Muson and his men pay for four weeks, although only three weeks from the time he started from Hartford, until his return. Captain Mason held several public offices, being at one time deputy governor of the state, substituting for the governor several months, while the latter was absent in England. Captain Mason's home ground was the site where now stands the Town Street school. The oldest cemetery in this section is generally believed to be located on Lee avenue, Norwich Town, where Captain Mason and 38 of his men are buried and a monument placed there in their memory. At Mystic near the site of the Indian blockade, there is a statue of Captain Mason. In the course of his intensely interesting address, Mr. Bishop mentioned that he was a descendant of Captain Mason also a descendent of 13 founders of Norwich, according to statistics.

This also was the annual business meeting of the league, which followed the address. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, as was also the Boy Scout report. The league closes its year with a good balance in the treasury. By motion it was agreed to hold only four meetings the coming year, or every other month from the opening meeting in October, until May, 1925.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Clyde M. Beebe; vice president, Dwight L. Underwood; secretary and treasurer, Robert Avery; executive committee, Harold D. Larrabee, Chas. P. Learned, Frank E. Sterry; boy scout committee, Clyde H. Beebe, Henry T. Frazier and Philip B. Whaley.

At the close of the business a social time was held when the league served oranges, bananas and apples.

FORESTRY MEETING AT DEVIL'S HOP YARD

The spring field meeting of the Connecticut Forestry association, which is to be held Saturday, at the Devil's Hop Yard state park, will have its programme on eastern standard time, according to the following notice that has been sent out:

11 a. m., tour of the park, personally conducted tour. See the Devil's soup caldron and his bake oven, also some fine timber land; and find out what the state is doing to provide playgrounds, and game refuges, and what it is doing for a future timber supply.

12 m., lunch. Bring your own; cook it over a camp fire if you wish, state park commission sets up the drinks, hot coffee or cold spring water as you prefer. Soda for sale.

1 p. m., improvement thinning demonstration. See the best method of improving your wood lot. State Forester Hawes and County Agent Fay will show you the trick of picking the bad trees and leaving the good ones.

1.30 p. m., wood chopping contest for title "Master Wood Chopper of Connecticut." Each contestant will be required to fell a tree with an axe on a stake set up by the judges. Scores will be kept as follows: One point for speed, one for condition of stump, and one for nearness to stake. Send in your entry early. Bring a sharp axe or borrow a dull one when you get there.

2 p. m., real stump speeches on forestry. (State forestry commission to supply the stump). What Forestry Means to Connecticut, Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham. Forestry and the Farmer, John H. Fay, county agent, Middlesex county. How Our State Parks and Forests Serve the Public, Lucius F. Robinson, chairman State Park Forest Commission. Forestry and the City Man, by a typical one.

3.30 p. m., forest fire fighting demonstration. Come and see how the state wardens prevent little fires making big ones—when the state can afford to buy the apparatus.

The Hop Yard where the meeting is to be held is well known to residents of the eastern part of the state. It has been used by them as a picnic ground for generations. It is situated on the banks of Eight Mile river, surrounding a waterfall known as Chapman's Falls. The surrounding woods are composed of fine old stand of hemlock. A few years ago a lumberman acquired the tract and started in to cut the timber. Fortunately the State Park Forest Commission was able to step in and purchase the land ahead of him, thus stopping the destruction. The state now owns about 900 acres in this section. It is a typical forest region and it is only under state management that the land on the abandoned farms in the region can be made profitable by growing timber upon it.

The Devil's Hop Yard is situated on Eight Mile river in the town of East Haddam, three miles from the village of Millington. Cars from New Haven, turn off the Boston Post road at Lyme—just across the Connecticut river; take the state route to Hamburg Cove (Route 150) and continue north along local road which parallels Eight Mile river to park; allow 40 minutes from Saybrook bridge to the park.

Cars from Hartford and Middletown take Hartford-Saybrook road (Route 10), cross Connecticut river at East Haddam bridge and take road due west to Millington; allow 40 minutes from bridge to park.

Cars from Norwich and New London go to Salem and take marked roads leading east to park; allow 30 minutes from Salem.

Roads leading to park from Lyme, East Haddam and Salem will be posted—just follow the arrows.

Bus service will probably be run from Middletown, Saybrook and Norwich.

The New London county and Middlesex Farm Bureaus are co-operating in the arrangements for the meeting.

"For myself," said Captain Koenig, "I have left the sea. That is, I no longer command ships. I am the marine superintendent for the North German Lloyd Steamship Co. My company now permits me to take a holiday in America!

"Ah, I remember Baltimore well. I have not been to America since the second voyage we made in the Deutschland from New London. The reports which were in circulation to the effect that the Deutschland was captured were not true. We were all ready at Bremerhaven to come back to America again after our one voyage to Baltimore and the one to New London. We even had our mail aboard the Deutschland when word came that [illegible]

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STEADY.

New York, May 22.—Stock prices displayed moderate strength in today's market in further reflection of favorable developments on pending tax legislation. A wave of selling took place around mid-day on reports that Secretary Mellon was opposed to the tax bill, as agreed upon by house and senate conferees, but this was overcome and closing prices showed net gains ranging from small fractions to two points.

Unofficial assurance that congress will adjourn on June 7 also was regarded as a bull factor on the theory that it would remove much of the uncertainty that has heretofore hinged around the plans of congress. Trade news, as a rule, was unfavorable, the principal feature being a report that steel production was declined [illegible] per cent of capacity [illegible] Bethlehem Steel [illegible] week.

Railroad shares continued to improve [illegible] at high car loads [illegible] maintained. "Nickel Plate" [illegible] Atchison duplicated [illegible] gain of 103 1-2, [illegible] 3 points to 112 [illegible] trading moved up, [illegible] is recorded the [illegible] Rubber common [illegible]

FINES AND JAIL SENTENCES ON DOUBLE COUNTS IN LIQUOR CASE

Mike Maurisky, a Montville grocery store proprietor, was found guilty by a jury in the superior court at New London Thursday afternoon of violation of the liquor law on two counts, illegal possession and reputation for selling. He was sentenced by Judge Frederick M. Peasley to three months in jail and to pay a fine of $250 on each count.

Maurisky was arrested by state and county officers when they raided his store on Oct. 5, finding a bottle containing about a pint of what was alleged to be liquor. This was an exhibit in court when the case was tried Thursday. The heavy penalties that came to Maurisky were because this was a second offense in liquor law violation.

Witnesses examined included Justice of the Peace William D. Smiddy of Montville, Thomas D. Doyle, Mike Luwitz and wife, Mary Luwitz; County Detective William Lewis and State Policeman John G. Gutman for the state and Joseph Zukof and the defendant.

The case was prosecuted by Attorneys Thomas E. Troland and Russell H. Corcoran, Attorneys Morris B. Lubchansky of New London and John H. Barnes of this city appeared for the defendant.

Six Months Jail Sentence

Joseph Selonski, 36, of Jewett City, who shot his wife in the hand on the night of March 15, in this city, and was accused of assault with intent to murder, pleaded guilty and was given a sentence of six months in jail, after Attorney Thomas M. Shields had addressed the court on behalf of the man.

Selonski came to this city on the night in question looking for his wife, who it was reported, had left him a few days before. He found her living at the Falls, and shot her there, escaping before the police could be called, but he was arrested shortly afterwards that night in Union square by Officers Pounch, Gwazdowski and P. Murphy, after a jitney driver by the name of Tetreault had given the police the tip that a man had come to the jitney stand in Union square inquiring for a car that would take him to Jewett City.

COOPERATING TO COMBAT STOLEN CAR TRAFFIC

Further combatting the traffic in stolen automobiles, the state motor vehicles department is perfecting a system by which close co-operation in the effort to detect such thefts will be established with twelve other states, the District of Columbia and two Canadian provinces.

Within a short time, the licensing bureaus of these places may include one or more experts in charge of a comprehensive file of stolen cars which will be used in connection with the checking of registrations, if the Connecticut department's plan is accepted. Special forms have been prepared upon which essential information about stolen cars will be forwarded by the department in this state to the other 48 bureaus included in the proposed combination.

The development of the plan follows a conference at which Commissioner Stoeckel of the Connecticut department has had with H. Andre Begin, comptroller of the provincial revenue, Province of Quebec, who informed him that hundreds of cars stolen in Connecticut and nearby states have been found in the bootleggers' trade originating in Quebec. The Canadian authorities have volunteered their wholehearted co-operation in the movement to run down automobile thieves.

"We have destroyed the market for stolen cars in the state through the dealers by putting all dealers under bond," Commissioner Stoeckel has informed Alderman George U. Harvey of the Fifty-eighth district, New York, in response to a letter inquiring what steps have been taken to give Connecticut the reputation of having established "a great curb against the practice of stealing cars." The commissioner pointed out that "wherever a dealer is concerned in marketing stolen cars and we have evidence of it, we put him out of business as a dealer and call his bond, and the punishment is so drastic that it has practically become impossible for a thief to get a car marketed through a dealer."

TROOP 12, BOY SCOUTS, WINS FERGUSON CUP

Announcement was made Thursday that Troop No. 12, Boy Scouts, won the Ferguson challenge cup with Troop No. 1 in second place, at the annual boy scout inspection Wednesday evening at the armory. Troops 12 and 1 had 100 per cent. attendance at the inspection. The standing of the troops:

Troop 12—99.62 per cent.; Troop 1, 99.14 per cent.; Troop 20, 96.03 per cent.; Troop 3, 93.69 per cent.; Troop 9, 91.92 per cent.; Troop 3, 91.5 per cent.

BAPTISTS IN STATE HAVE GIVEN $1,105,162.77

Rev. Horace B. Sloat, director of promotion of the Connecticut Baptist convention, has compiled figures showing the total gifts to missions and benevolences in the five-year programme of North Baptist, which was brought to a close the early part of this month, which indicate that the 20,000 resident members of the 152 Baptist churches of this state contributed a total of $1,105,162.77 in the past five years to the purposes indicated above. This exceeds by more than $100,000 the amount which the Baptists of the state have pledged for these purposes in the memorable New World Movement of the Northern Baptists, which was put on in this state about five years ago. The denomination in this state has been aided in making the splendid showing it has by the Woman's Continuation Campaign, which has been directed by Mrs. J. D. Rouch of Norwich and Mrs. J. H. Morehead of Waterbury.

The figures shown above indicate that the per capita giving of Connecticut Baptists to missions and benevolences the past five years has equalled $11 a year, which is far in excess of the figures attained by any other of the large denominations for any similar purposes. What makes the showing more remarkable is the fact that at the opening of the campaign only 92 of the 152 churches in the state accepted the new standard of giving urged by the state and national officers. It is a matter of record, however, that the churches which did so have been greatly blessed, spiritually and financially. Nearly all of the churches which did not accept the new standard, and definitely put themselves on record as backing the campaign, have contributed to the work and some have given generously. Throughout the Northern Baptist convention the record established by Connecticut Baptists is recognized as an enviable one.

The annual convention of the Northern Baptist convention is to be held this year in Milwaukee from May 28 to June 3. A good sized delegation will go from this state. Among the ministers will be the Reverends A. B. Coats, J. N. Lackey, F. B. Haggard, E. E. Gates, H. B. Sloat of Hartford; James McGee of New Haven; C. A. Decker of Bridgeport; Chester H. Howe of New London; D. A. Pitt of Norwich; Ellis Gilbert of Danbury; D. P. Gaines of Waterbury, and others.

POPPY SALE TO BEGIN BY LEGION AUXILIARY

Beginning Saturday, May 24, members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, will offer to the public of Norwich a number of poppies, and the annual sale will continue through to Memorial day.

All poppies sold by the auxiliary members have been made in this city from materials being donated for that purpose and all moneys derived from the sale will be used in the work of the auxiliary among the disabled and incapacitated veterans who are now in hospitals in this city. This work requires a considerable outlay of money each year and the auxiliary uses the money taken in by the sale of poppies for this work.

Members of the auxiliary will be at the several local theatres, in the lobbies of hotels, and banking institutions, in stores of the city and about the streets and plans are to have each member wear an arm badge of the American Legion during the several days of the sale.

Last year nearly 2,000 poppies were sold during the weeks before Memorial day and it is expected that the response will be even greater this year.

The auxiliary in its sale has the consent and best wishes of Mayor Milo R. Waters and the sale which is nation-wide at this time of the year is endorsed by President Coolidge and in Connecticut by Governor Templeton.

R. C. PLAUT GLAD HE IS COMING HOME

Writing to Norwich friends as he is leaving Singapore on the way to Java, Rutherford C. Plaut of this city speaks of his delight to feel that he is actually again headed towards home in his voyage around the world. Singapore is one of the prettiest cities he has seen. His letter follows:

Leaving Singapore bound for Java April 2, 1924.

Well, now I can say we are on our way home. Although our ship has had its bow heading east ever since we started, I could not conscientiously say we were headed for home until now. Gee, but I am glad, and if you ever saw a more lonesome or more homesick guy than myself, you would have to go some, but that was all before we reached Singapore. We have had some real rain, the first that we have seen or felt since the eventful day of February 10th, when we were in that storm at Gibraltar. I was not the only one that had the gloomy feeling. It was really prevalent aboard the ship, but today it is different. Singapore is remarkable. For one thing, one realizes when he has reached it that he has come to a dividing line of the earth. He is turning his back upon what is known simply as the East and has arrived at the front door, so to speak, of the Great Far East, wherein the Chinese, the Malaysians and the Japanese swarm in uncounted millions. The first thing I noticed was a sampan (river rowboat) They looked as if it would be rather risky to venture in one, but I am told however, that here they are absolutely safe. In Rangoon, we knew that no white people ever used them. There they were death traps, due to the swift and cross currents of the brimaddy River. Here in the Straits Settlements, despite the frailness of the craft, there are few accidents, because the waters are more calm.

When we reached Singapore, we were caught in a perfect downpour of rain, and this was the first time my raincoat had seen the fresh air. Singapore is also an island and is one of the prettiest cities that we have seen. It guards the south entrance to the China Sea and is naturally one of the great turnstiles of commerce. Singapore is a free port. They pay no duty on anything but spirits and petroleum. I could hardly believe that there were so many ships afloat as I saw in the harbor of Singapore. I had always known, of course, that this was the greatest shipping port in the world, but the statement had not meant much to me until I saw it with my own eyes. Likewise it is the dumping ground for all ships. The immensity of the shipping industry is something which one must see with their own eyes in order to comprehend it. Singapore is but seventy miles from the equator, and like all tropical countries, the moment the sun goes down the darkness descends. It is either day or night—never twilight. But the dawn strange to say, is much longer coming. One may rise at daylight, but he will have to wait a half hour for the sun to rise. The mornings are very beautiful. The first morning we spent in visiting the bazaars and shopping. Here one buys Malacca canes, and there are hawkers all around you, with canes, jewels, shells, corals, embroideries, etc. Of course, the most notable sight is the countless number of jinrickshaws, and everyone rides. No one walks. There are also numbers of quaint carts, drawn by humpbacked oxen. Singapore, with its wealthy citizens, its apparent cleanliness, its beautiful drives and botanical gardens, and other spots of loveliness, is one of the most unhealthy places on the face of the earth. I have been told that it has the highest death rate of any city in the world. We saw several Chinese funerals. Sixteen men were carrying the body and a band of music was behind the cortege. We also saw a Chinese wedding procession with its great pomp and splendor. The funeral could be called gorgeous and the richer the family the more gorgeous the funeral. Even the poor will spend their life's savings to bury their dead with a grand funeral. To one unused to the sight, there is always the question of whether it is a funeral or a wedding. Much the same ceremony attends each. All one can do is stick around until either the bride or the corpse comes into view, if he wishes to satisfy his curiosity. I said one was a funeral and Minnye said it was a wedding. She was right, because on one of the chariots they had a scene made of sugar and our guide said that it was a wedding.

The Raffles Hotel, where we stopped, while in Singapore, was a credit to the city and our meals were superior to any that we had had so far in the Far East. The drives took us through jungles and rubber tree plantations. We stopped at the rubber factories and saw how rubber is made from the time it runs from the tree until it is shipped on to Ohio to be made into tires, etc.

The Europeans, as well as the natives, have wonderful homes and grounds. The English Tommies are in evidence at all times. They have all styles of automobiles, from a Ford to a Rolls-Royce. Large department stores, controlled by English merchants, are to be seen on every hand. One thing that impressed me was the way they fill the bunkers with coal for the coal-burning steamers. It is all human power and they carry the coal, the bunkering operations of the coal carrying coolies of Singapore can load a vessel with coal quicker than modern machinery can in New York.

In Singapore, we saw none of the deadening effect of caste and seclusion that was so prominent in India, which we had left. Singapore made a lasting, good impression upon me and were it not so far away, I would say that some day I might return to it.

In the animal line, besides those I have already mentioned, we find the monkey, elephant and crocodiles. We passed a traveling English circus, which seemed to be doing its share of business. They have a "Luna Park" that is a credit to the town and the moving picture industry thrives here. They adore William S. Hart and Norma Talmadge, and Tom Mix. We had a gala night featuring the Equator Day events. Everyone at the dining table was arrayed to represent some sort of sea salt and it was very interesting, but was not to be compared with the extensive and entertaining programme that we had on board the Steamer "Western World" when we crossed the equator on our way to Rio de Janeiro last year.

Regards to all,

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Several bands and a drum and bugle corps will be included in the big parade that the American Legion will have here Saturday evening of next week when a "veiture" will be instituted in Danielson, as the result of Leo L. L'Homme post's recent intensive and very successful drive for new members.

Indications now are that the parade will be a big feature of the program the Legion members are working out. The [illegible] of Stafford Springs will come here with the Legion band and bugle corps of Oscar [illegible] of North Grosvenordale, will be in line. St. James' band of Danielson, the Wauregan band and bugle corps will be in the parade, as stated Friday.

For Memorial day Danielson will be [illegible] flags and bunting. Firms [illegible] will be here the early part of the coming week to put up decorations throughout the business section and in residential streets, as [illegible]

An added feature of interest for the [illegible] is announced [illegible] Barber, of the Casino A. Jimmy Wilde, of Taunton, and Kid Boston, of Fall River, star featherweights who have met three times in the Boston arena and who always stage a great show, are scheduled to appear in the star bout of [illegible] rounds. Mr. Barber will announce the remainder of the card early next week.

Committees of the Legion are engaged in working out details for the biggest event it has arranged for Danielson, and in which everyone appears to hold a lively interest.

Mrs. Virginia Laflamme, 38, mother of eleven children, including twin girls born Friday morning, died Saturday afternoon at Attawaugan, in a home into which the family moved Thursday. Mrs. Laflamme, born in Ashburnham, Mass., was the wife of Frank Laflamme.

Vernon Stiles Robbins, 88, died Fri- day [illegible] of the town of Brooklyn. Mr. Robbins was born in Thompson, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Robbins. He had been blind for years. He is survived by his wife.

That the heroic service they rendered the nation more than half a century since is still fresh in the memory of the country will again be demonstrated Sunday, when honors will be paid to those who saw service in the Civil war and now sleep in their last resting place. Special veneration, it also may be pointed out, will be paid to those veterans of the great conflict who remain alive and who in a number of instances will be able once again to join in the Memorial Sunday exercises.

Members of McGregor Post, G. A. R., of McGregor Woman's Relief Corps and Colonel Edward Anderson Camp, Sons of Veterans, will attend the Sunday afternoon services at the Congregational church in South Killingly and participate in the exercises and procession incident to the decoration of the graves of the nation's dead sleeping in the cemeteries there. The address at South Killingly will be delivered by Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church, and there will be a special program of music.

Sunday evening members of patriotic societies will attend a special memorial service at St. Alban's church, the sermon to be delivered by the rector, Rev. Leonard Richards.

Dayville, too, will hold its annual Memorial services for the soldier and sailor dead Sunday afternoon, and the program arranged for that place will be similar to arrangements for other Memorial Sunday observances in recent years.

Danielson and East Killingly will hold their services and processions on Memorial day—at East Killingly in the morning and at Danielson in the afternoon.

Arthur Rianville, an overseas veteran of the World war, will be marshal of the Memorial day procession in Danielson.

Members of the Social club attend- ed a banquet at the Attawaugan hotel Thursday evening and later, with 50 other couples as guests, enjoyed a whist party and dance in St. John's hall which was attractively arranged for the event.

The banquet menu consisted of roast chicken with dressing, lettuce with Russian dressing, mashed potatoes, boiled onions, assorted cake, ice cream and coffee.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Amede Bernier, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Boulaine, Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pechie, Mr. and Mrs. Martin T. Burns, Miss Cora Lariviere, Dona Beaudoin, Miss Mary Jane Dubois, Miss Mignon Morin, Thomas Gallichant, Mrs. Justine Bernier, Mrs. August Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bousquet, Jr., Mrs. Francis Gagnon, Miss Eleanor Gagnon, Mrs. Samuel Boyd, Miss Alice Lemaitin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lague, Mr. and Mrs. Cleophas Beauvais, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lariviere, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Champagne, Mr. and Mrs. Zenaphi Gendron, Mrs. L. The winners at whist were Mrs. Pierre Boulaine, first; Miss Lena Gendron, second; Mrs. Martin Burns, third. Honors for the gentlemen went to Philip Phaneuf, first; Thomas Gallichant, second; Henry Lague, third.

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy funeral services for Mrs. Elvira Wade, who died at Dayville, were conducted by Rev. Mr. Conklin, of the Methodist church. Burial was at Dayville. Friends acted as bearers.

Today (Saturday) will be Poppy day in Danielson. Arrangements have been made by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion here to distribute poppies during the day in accordance with a practice very general throughout the country and in memory of those who gave up their lives in the World war. The distribution of the poppies will be on a basis to net a small sum from each one receiving a poppy, in the interest of the Legion workers here.

The Windham County Farmers' association has launched a membership drive that is to continue through the next few weeks and that is expected to increase the roll of the organization from 200 to at least 400 members. One of the reasons for seeking the increase in membership is to enable the organization to increase the scope and effectiveness of its work, which has been of such a successful nature in the past as to practically guarantee even more beneficial results with a larger force of members and greater amount of funds. The committee engaged in organizing the drive is made up of Alexander Maitland, of Thompson, Whitman Danielson, of Putnam, Peter Chabot, of Plainfield, and Charles F. Breen, of Scotland.

About 40 prisoners are held at the county jail in Brooklyn at the present, an evidence that there is little chance of the jail being abandoned, as was predicted would be the case when prohibition first became effective. As in the old wet days, liquor figures more largely than any other single cause, directly and indirectly, in furnishing inmates fo rthe jail. Killingly, as one of the larger towns of Windham county, furnishes comparatively few of the prisoners as compared with the other large centers of population in the county.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, has sent out notice for a meeting of the organization to be held with Quinebaug grange at Chandler's hall in Thompson Saturday evening, May 31. A supper is to precede the meeting which will open in the fifth degree for the business session. The program is to be open to fourth degree patrons. Massachusetts State Lecturer Berton T. Mowry will give the address. The Little Theater players under the direction of Prof. Seckerson will give two short plays. There is to be an informal talk by Mrs. J. A. Wheeler and vocal solos will be given by Mrs. Henry Dorsey.

A string of motor vehicles, bear- ing the New England States Staff band of the Salvation Army, which is touring New England, the motoring party including Commander Evangeline Booth, passed through Danielson Friday morning en route for Putnam. No stop was made here excepting by one of the cars near the end of the line, this machine coming within an ace of being in collision with a horse-drawn vehicle driven by A. N. Smith, who was cutting across Main street, near the railroad crossing, and heading into Furnace street. State Officer Edward Stephens, as a motorcycle officer, escorted the party over the route to Putnam.

Following Friday evening's meeting of the Danielson, Dayville and Goodyear men who are heading the Y. M. C. A. local organization in the county-wide drive for a fund of $7,350, all is in readiness for the soliciting on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The Killingly quota is $1,500. C. H. Starkweather is the local chairman.

Friday afternoon, St. James' school baseball team defeated the Dayville grammar school team on St. James' field here, 17 to 3, in a 5-inning game. A return game will be played at Dayville next Tuesday, after school. Memorial day St. James will play All Hallows' school at Moosup in the morning and here in the afternoon. The St. James' team is uniformed this season, the suits being the gift of Rose of Lima Council, K. of C.

PUTNAM

At Putnam high school, Friday afternoon, the annual contests of children of schools in this corner of the county were held. The winners are eligible to enter the state championship contests to be held in Hartford. District Supervisor McAllister was in charge of the contests in which boys and girls representing the towns of Putnam, Thompson, Woodstock, Pomfret, Eastford, Ashford, Canterbury, Sterling, Hampton and Union took part. They were made eligible to participate in the contest in Putnam having qualified by winning in like competitions in their own towns.

The program included a speaking and spelling contest in the high school auditorium followed by athletic events for both boys and girls on the athletic field adjoining the school.

The winners of the speaking and spelling contest are eligible to take part in the contests at Hartford and winners of the athletic events will go to Hartford to participate in the state elementary athletic meet to be held in conjunction with the speaking and spelling contest. The winners of the contests will probably be announced today (Saturday).

Hundreds of people, completely fil- ling Union Square, greeted with enthusiasm Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army on her appearance in this city, Friday morning. Miss Booth was accompanied by the New England Staff Band of Boston. The party arrived in Putnam on schedule at 11 a. m. but it was 11.30 before the exercises began as an opportunity was taken for luncheon.

Carpenters had since early morning erected a platform about 30 feet square and it was draped with the national colors interspersed with the flag of the army. A feature of the exercises in this city was the raising of the American and Salvation Army flags over the new Salvation Army home, on Union street, now nearing completion.

The first announcement made from the platform was that the band would be present in five minutes. Other announcements made were complimentary to the large reception accorded the party, the courtesy of the State nam and the courtesy of the Putnam Police in piloting the ten automobiles of the party from Danieson to Putpolice.

At 11.30 the program opened with a baritone solo. This was followed by a number by the band and followed by a song by the band. Following in turn there was a saxophone quartette, one of the bandsmen sang and at the same time manipulated a cornet with trombone duet and a special wherein one hand and a trombone with the other, two other bandsmen blowing the instruments. A drum solo followed this number and a song was sung while the first collection, of which there were two, was taken

Commander Booth was then introduced. The commander appeared in a black straw sailor hat with a bright red band bearing the insignia of the army, wore a grey coat with cape and carried a large bouquet of pink roses When she rose to speak the audience received her with applause.

Miss Booth had hardly started to speak when a freight train on the New London division came puffing into the station drowning the speaker's voice so that a halt was made and the band played until the noise of the train ended.

Commander Booth spoke about five minutes. She lauded the audience and told those about the platform never to lose sight of their blessings. She then narrated the story of her childhood and ended by saying that she hoped to come to Putnam again. It was noticed that whenever this little city was alluded to it was invariably called "Putnam", evidencing that the signification of the name of this city as in memory of the illustrious General Putnam was lost upon the visitors.

Following the benediction the band marched to Union street. Most of the large gathering followed. As the band played the National anthem Commander Booth pulled the rope which carried the American flag to the top of the new flag pole on the new Putnam Salvation Army home and followed this flag with the flag of the Salvation Army with its blue background border of red and center gold star. The touring party then left Putnam for Willimantic, both the visitors and those who received them being well pleased with the visit.

Word was received in Putnam, Fri- day, of the death of Franklin, Mass., of Carl Bowen Johnson, 64, of the Franklin Sentinel, who was born in Putnam and began his life-long career as a newspaper man in this city.

Mr. Johnson has been in poor health for some time and his death was therefore not a surprise to Putnam friends. Some years ago Mr. Johnson's health became impaired and hardening of the arteries developed.

Mr. Johnson was an unusually active man. He was the personification of energy and was always aggressively alike in both business and social pursuits. He was optimistic, a good talker, a pleasant man to meet, businesswise or socially, and took his full from life. With his work on his newspaper he interspersed appearance on the public lecture platform and his services were increasingly in demand, at the time failing health overcame him.

Mr. Johnson was born in Putnam, September 14th, 1859, younger son of Harrison and Annette Bowen Johnson. He obtained his education in the public schools and the Putnam high school Even during his schol days he was gathering items of news for the local papers and, with the exception of a short time during which he taught schol, he has always been engaged in newspaper work.

He was for some years on the old Sunbeam, now the Windham County Observer, and later he was encaged by the late Editor A. W. Macdonald of the Patriot.

In the latter part of 1892 Mr. Johnson received an offer from the late Henry C. Bowen of the New York Independent to go to the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago to cover for the Independent the great World's Fair, writing special stories. Mr. Johnson accepted the offer and went to Chicago.

Soon after he returned to Putnam Mr. Johnson bought the Franklin Sentinel. This he soon converted into a semi-weekly. For thirty years he has continued as owner and editor of the sheet, having a job printing shop in connection with the paper.

In November, 1896, Mr. Johnson was united in marriage with Miss Mary Fisher, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Oscar Fisher, of Woodstock, a sister of Mrs. George W. Perry of this city. Two sons were born to them, Kenneth B. Johnson, with a New York publishing house, and Malcolm F. Johnson, with a New York advertising agency. Both sons are graduates of Dartmouth.

Besides his wife and sons, Mr. Johnson leaves a brother Attorney Eric H. Johnson and a sister, Miss Alice Johnson, both of Putnam.

Mr. Johnson was a republican in politics. He was active in the affairs of his adopted city and one of the leaders of its business and social life. He liked out-of-doors and was an enthusiastic golfer. He also took an active interest in church affairs and was at one time superintendent of the Sunday school of the Putnam Congregational church.

In a presentation that evidenced painstaking effort and hard work in preparation and rehearsal the pupils of Israel Putnam school put across the operetta, "On a May Day Morning Early" in fine style in the school hall Friday evening, under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' association. The audience that filled the hall was generous in its applause and showed emphatic signs of appreciation of the efforts of the amateurs. Those taking part were:

Several members of Oliver Woodhouse lodge 51, K. of P., went to Salem Friday evening to visit Woodbridge lodge No. 80, at which meeting Past Grand Chancellor Emanuel Carr, of Bridgeport, gave a very interesting talk on the order.

MOOSUP

Following his death at a Norwich hospital last Friday the funeral of Frank Larose was held from All Hallows' church in Moosup Monday, burial being in St. James' cemetery at Danielson, in the family lot.

Mr. Larose was born in Danielson, May 28, 1875, son of Peter and Suphine Larose. His early life was spent in Danielson where he attended the public schools. Seventeen years ago the 26th of next June he married Elmina Goodreau of Danielson. Mr. Larose is survived by his parents who live in Moosup, a brother, Wilfred, a druggist, in Moosup and by his wife who has been a patient sufferer from rheumatism which has kept her off her feet for about nine years.

Mr. Larose had been in business for about twenty-six years and in 1902 built the Larose drug store which he operated until his health failed a few years ago. Sixteen years ago he built the Jow theatre in Moosup which he operated for a year, the management later being partly that of Reeves and Wilcox; this building is now occupied by a store and laundry. Mr Larose was a popular member of the Elks, the Union St. John Baptist and the Canadian-Americans society.

TAX REDUCTION.

Particular interest is manifested at this time in the character of the tax reduction bill which is to be passed by congress. Both houses have jugged that matter for a long time. They have played politics with it, subjected it to delay and made it dependent upon such unwarranted outside issues as it has insisted upon making before giving its serious attention to [illegible] terms.

The aim has been to wheedle the country into believing that it is going to get all it is entitled to, that the rich of the politicians is going to be more favorable in the long run than it would be if it was based upon a scientific plan of tax reduction. There was thrown into it various features which were known to be objectionable, and which on all probability, it was recognized would be greatly modified or thrown out. They were provisions which were frequently incorporated in such measures for political purposes and apparently [illegible] succeeded in accomplishing [illegible]

[illegible] the recognized fact that [illegible] is tied up in non taxable [illegible] there has been a dogged [illegible] out and not only [illegible] under taxation but to give [illegible] the benefit of it. There has been a determination to throttle in[illegible] the application of a new [illegible] tax on undistributed [illegible] upon the [illegible] all income tax re[illegible]

Small modification has been obtained by those who have been dealing with this bill in conference. The conference report, declared "the best that can be obtained," is still tinged with the political sop. The tax measure is far, far away from the Mellon plan to which such widespread support has been given in all states of the country. What modifications have been secured in conference there is no certainty that the "radicrats" will agree and there is no reason to feel but what the insistence of the radicals and democrats would get enough support from the regular republicans to force the administration and push through a so-called tax reduction measure by piling up a whopping de[illegible]

FIRE LOSSES.

[illegible] this particular section nature with its watering can has been doing effective work in keeping down the number of woodland fires, but there have been those places where hundreds of acres have been burned over and heavy losses sustained because of the fires which should not have been started. The needless fires, either due to the careless individual who go through the fields and the woods, the starters of fires which they cannot control, the railroads or the automobilist who tosses firebrands out of his car, are too numerous.

We are told that fire wastes have more than doubled in the past ten years, that the fire losses amount to more than a half billion dollars yearly, or more than $964 a minute, and that in addition to this there is a serious loss of life and much unemployment involved, all of which makes evident that those efforts which can be made to prevent the increase in the nation's annual ash heap are greatly needed.

Perhaps in a country which is steadily developing it might be expected that the fire loss would increase from year to year, but with the efforts that are being made to prevent fires, the knowledge that is available as to the heavy annual losses in life and property through carelessness and the deplorable contrast which we make in comparison with other countries this tendency should be offset. Instead of an increase from year to year there should be a decrease, and until that decrease is tangible and becomes a fixture there is the greatest need for increased efforts.

This applies to fires of all kinds. The destruction of dwellings, industries, business houses or woodland [illegible] is to someone and the sad part of it all is that a large percentage of it could have been easily prevented. In this respect we set a bad example. Continental Europe holds the person liable for the damage done by the fire he causes. We may be forced to adopt the European plan if better control over carelessness is not shown.

OUR FOREIGN SERVICE.

It has been recognized for a long time that our diplomatic and consular service has been on a basis that did not encourage and secure the best results. The need of reorganization has been no secret. It has been pointed out and urged repeatedly, but action has not been forthcoming. It was as difficult to get congressional attention for it as for some other needed legislation.

Keeping persistently at it seems to have obtained results, however, if we are to judge by the approval of the Rogers bill which has been given by congress. This is a measure which is expected to bring about the needed betterment in our foreign service. In connection with the consular offices more attention has been given to the training of young men for the work and promoting those who merit it, than the case with the diplomatic service. There the emolument is such that it does not attract and those selected for the most part are those whose personal wealth is such as to make them independent of whatever salary may be received. This may not always limit the efficiency of the men but it does limit the number that can be drawn from.

Through such a reorganization and consolidation of the respective departments, it bids fair to be possible to eliminate some of the bad features in the foreign service. It at least provides the opportunity for making the attempt. Having the authority is one thing and applying it properly is another. Much will depend of course upon the manner and the sincerity displayed in carrying out the provisions of the bill. It is important that our foreign service should be upon a firm, effective and stable basis. It is work to which it should be possible to attract those who are capable and deserving, and by the legislation just enacted a move has been made that should aid materially in bringing about the desired and long awaited result.

REBUKING THE SENATORS.

At the meeting of the state chamber of commerce there was manifested a desire to censure the Connecticut senators who had so clearly misrepresented this state in regard to the bonus legislation. That feeling was expressive of the sentiment of Connecticut without a doubt, even though the proposed resolution was not voted. It was not so much that they had voted in opposition to the desires of the state chamber of commerce as it was that they had so disregarded the wishes of the people they represent, or are supposed to represent.

Perhaps it is sufficient that the state organization has endorsed the view of President Coolidge. That indirectly carries its rebuke for the senators and its commendation for the action of the four Connecticut representatives who backed up the president. It was urged that the state chamber of commerce is not a political organization and that it is not involved in politics, but it doesn't appear that it was any the less misrepresented by those senators than it would have been had it been political and standing with the rest of the state back of the president and national welfare.

The fact that the state organization did not take such action as was proposed should not be interpreted as meaning that the people of Connecticut are inclined to accept the view of the junior senator that it was necessary for the senators to play politics in order to get the proper support for the president in the coming election.

Even though the state chamber of commerce didn't consider itself duty bound to administer the rebuke, there is no question but what the senators have been receiving it in other ways or that they have been hearing and will continue to hear from home.

BAD DRIVING.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel directs attention to some important points concerning the driving of automobiles and the dangers of the highway in the latest bulletin from that department.

After directing attention to the fact that the nearly 5,000 accidents reported this year thus far is twice as many as during the same period last year, he attributed the faults, as a result of the study of the reports, to inattention on the part of the driver of the car, failure to give the right of way and skidding.

These are conditions which every driver of an automobile will appreciate as figuring in numerous accidents, and in not a few of the serious ones. When there is a failure to assume the responsibility connected with the driving of a car, the protection of those therein and others that may be on the highway there is bound to be trouble. When there is an insistence upon going ahead of the other fellow at intersections, regardless as to which car has the right of way, trouble is being invited. When there has been an encouragement of conditions, which result in skidding from attempting to stop too suddenly, bad accidents are frequent.

It is not surprising that the commissioner holds many of the accidents as entirely avoidable and that he takes the view that if speeding was stopped the accidents would decrease. He believes that both in cities and on the state highways greater restrictions should be enforced and when he proposes greater discipline by his department he intends to place a needed check upon bad and reckless driving.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

If the word was not so long, awkward, and was understood by more than 10 per cent of the "great and glorious American people," the word "lackadaisical" would come into more common use in describing the conditions of those who need a pulmometer to let people know that they are alive. One of the most tearful sights in all the world is a person going through daily motions who hasn't yet discovered that he is dead. It isn't flattering to anybody to be compelled to look at something stationary to see if he moves at all. No one occupation has cornered all of these dead still exercises. You will find it all the way from clergymen up to coal heavers. Even a galvanized corpse will do some twitching. This is not written in an exultant spirit, for there is a tone of sadness in my type-writer as the thought is expressed. It simply expresses a fact of very common observation.

In continuation of the above the following quotation from the writings of Dr. J. G. Holland is quite in evidence: "God gives every bird its food, but does not throw it into the nest." If we exist at all in this world we've got to plug and plug hard. Even if one cuts out all the luxuries, he can live only by dint of hard exertion. This, of course, does not apply to the dwellers of the tropics where the vegetable world produces in profusion all that is absolutely required for mere animal existence. But what sort of men do the tropics produce? Mention one name born between Cancer and Capricorn that ever attained to immortality along any avenue of human endeavor! The fact that we must put forth endeavor to live is the only pathway to our salvation. The harder we work, within the realm of law, the more glorious will our salvation be.

According to the newspapers, President Coolidge went to the circus. (What a wonderful item to relate!) It is said that he very much liked the circus, and we like him all the more because he did. The papers also told us when he grinned and when he scowled, and it is quite probable that he did both at the right time. We were also very much pleased when several of his predecessors played golf. Our presidents are under a severe mental strain—a far greater strain than the people have any right to impose upon them. When, therefore, they play golf or go to circuses or find any other form of recreation it serves as a safety valve to relieve the pressure without which serious consequences might ensue. Why it is that men will work at high tension until something snaps and then it is too late for real benefit from recreation. The snapping process precludes permanent relief. Men would not in such frightful numbers spend their last days as cripples if, in middle life, they would pay more attention to golf, circuses, tennis and long walks, where fret, worry and grind cannot enter.

Isn't it putting it over a man rather hard to compel him to run a lawn mower before his conscience will let the steam heater go out? There may be heat enough generated by his indignation to keep himself warm, but it is quite another proposition with his young and helpless wife, to say nothing of his eight or ten little ones blue and pinched with the cold. It is perfectly natural that indignation should arise in his manly breast, but he ought not to wreak his feelings against the steam heater, nor even against the lawn mower, for that, too, is an inanimate object. But there is some legitimate reason for pouring forth the vials of his wrath against the pesky grass that has no valid reason for growing before ulsters, fur coats and ear tippets are packed away in cedar chests. Lugging up ashes and running a lawn mower the same day brings on lumbago, and liniment costs a great deal more than it did before the war.

There seems to be some indications that congress is settling down to its legitimate business. And that raises the question if there are no more probers to be probed and no more "investigators to be investigated?" Can it be that they have got all the oil poured out of that old Teapot Dome? Can it be that they have thoroughly sifted to its original sources all the street gossip that abounds in Washington and New York? If they have gotten all their fences mended and all the necessary wires laid for their re-election, possibly they can now pay some attention to such minor things as national legislation after a five months' vacation. One can easily understand why President Coolidge has repeatedly urged congress to speed up. After these long, and dreary months of creating political capital to be used in electioneering between May and November, perhaps such an unimportant matter as tax reduction may be hurried through both houses.

One great duty in life is to learn to control our impulses—not to crush them but to train them. Children, especially boys, are born with the fighting spirit, now. Are they to give free rein to that pugnacious instinct and clench their fists at everything that meets their disapproval? Are they to storm and rage at whatever displeases them, and work themselves up to a passion when they can't have their own way? Is it not one of the primary duties of education to teach them that they must hold themselves in check, that they must not strike others when they are offended except in self defence? They simply hold themselves in check. So must those who have impulses to lie, steal, cheat, burn and murder. Society would collapse were it not for self control. Does not all this apply to all those who have an impulsive trend toward war? Cannot nations hold themselves in check as well as individuals? The individual must, why not the nation?

There is one question before the people of this country that needs probing, and that is the real economic condition of Germany. If congress could let up a bit on oil and the prospects of the re-election of its present constituents, and find out authoritively just what Germany needs, this country would be very grateful. The most contradictory stories are going the rounds as to Germany's condition. Is she in dire distress or has she plenty? According to some reports she is rolling in luxury and all her people old and young alike have a very well-fed appearance. According to others she is in places on the verge of starvation. Suh a commission as this would serve a double purpose; it would keep a lot of impossible men from seeking the presidential nomination, and give us first hand knowledge of the country's real state.

"We have a religion which was given to our forefathers, and has been handed down to us by their children. It teaches us to be thankful, to be united, and to love one another. We never quarrel about religion." Thus spoke the great Seneca warrior, Red Jacket, in his superb reply to Missionary Cram more than a century ago. One can readily see that the real essentials of true religion were there. The red men were taught by their religion "to be thankful." Does not the Christian religion teach the same thing? "To be united" is another item that no civilized race can afford to ignore. And "to love one another" is the very essence of the Christian faith. If to Red Jacket's faith might be added "love to God" there would be no need of sending missionaries to the Indians, as far as teaching them the meaning of, religion.

SUNDAY SUBJECTS

THE LONGING SOUL.

For He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness. Psalm 107:9.

If all our surroundings were bright; if we had all we desired; if life were a ceaseless round of pleasure; what then? Life would soon become tame and uninteresting. It is a part of his inmost nature to always be trying to rise above some adverse circumstances, to surpass his former achievements, and to feel himself a conquorer. And the saddest, most wearied man of all is the one who has no trouble, and nothing to tire him but the lack of hard work.

The dark days are a very necessary part of life. We really need the days when the labor we have to perform seems greater than our strength. We need the days, when poverty seems to shut us up in such narrow bounds that life within those bounds seems hardly worth the living. We even need the days or years of sickness that weaken us in body and the days when we have to walk through the valley of affliction.

Sorrow, pain, strife, and death, and all that goes to make up the dark days is, and always has been a necessary part, of man's very life.

We may not be able to imagine what man might have become without the troubles he has had to endure and the hindrances and limitations with which he has had to contend, but we can see that those troubles and his continual conflict with difficulties have been the making of him as he is. They have developed him wonderfully. They have increased his power. They have made him painstaking, patient, hopeful, thoughtful, and above all gives faith and trust in God. In a word, as the saying is, "they have made a man of him." They have done this by giving him opportunities to be strong, by compelling him to struggle and to battle with circumstances. Unless times of trouble come, where is the chance to endure? Unless times of darkness and long waiting come, where is the chance to be patient or hopeful? How can we learn to trust? Unless times of temptation to doubt come, where is the chance to become strong in faith? Unless at times God seems to man to have deserted him, where is the opportunity for trusting God in the dark, and thus entering into closer fellowship with Him?

For whatever reasons, it is plain beyond doubt that God has chosen to develop man by means of the dark days. An acknowledgment of this purpose of God's is the first thing necessary toward getting the good of the training through which God puts us. We must bear in mind that "whom the Lord loveth He chasenth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth," also, that though "no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous; nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them that are exercised thereby.

Christ overcame the darkest things of the world, temptation and death. He overcame them for us; but we are called to overcome them by His help. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His throne."

GOOD AND BAD POINTS IN REVENUE BILL

Eliot Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the treasury, spoke before the National Association of Manufacturers at New York this week directing his attention chiefly to taxation. He said the proposal that information contained in taxation returns be made public, as proposed, would give great advantage to the large corporation as compared with the small business concern competing.

He said the federal government has shown a surplus of $300,000,000 a year for the last two years and it is clearly time to reduce taxes, and added that the Mellon plan was in the making several months with that end in view. He told of measures taken to carry the debt incurred because of the war of the Revolution and that caused by the Civil war, which latter was practically eliminated by 1893. Then he took up the situation brought about by the World war, with a debt of $26,000,000,000, it is estimated that the federal government has collected since 1917 more than $26,000,000,000 in taxes with only a small part of the debt paid. There are, he said, 2,700,000 public servants in the country and it is estimated that 12 per cent of the whole annual income in the United States goes for taxes.

As to publicity of income tax returns, he said, "general public knowledge of the affairs of every business, large or small, can do no good and might do great harm. As an example, it would give enormous advantage to a great corporation desiring information as to the business and financial position of its small competitors.

On Theory of Cheating

"The only reasonable ground upon which such publicity could be demanded is that taxpayers are cheating the government on a large scale. If they are, it is better administration that is needed to stop such cheating. Further restrictive laws will make taxes and the tax collector only more uppopular and common game for the skilful evader.

"This law imposes a graduated inheritance tax which takes as much as 54 per cent levy out of large estates. Such a provision is not necessary to provide the government with adequate revenue but is practically a seizure in the endeavor to redistribute wealth. The tax is harmful and fundamentally wrong in taking the saved capital of citizens and treating such capital as incor e in the hands of the government. Almost every state in the union has an estate or inheritance tax and to add a heavy federal inheritance tax makes a burden which is practically confiscation.

"If it is good for the country that the people should save money and invest their savings in homes, securities or life insurance, then it is not good to pass legislation to discourage saving. Why should a man save to build a home, if, when he dies, it must be forced on the market in order that his wife and children may have money enough to pay inheritance taxes and be left with only a small part of the life savings which this home represents?

"Such a tax is based on the theory that success in the making of money is a crime and that at his death a man's family and children should be punished and not allowed to receive the fruit of his success.

Tax on Corporations

"One other clause in this law which imposes a progressive tax upon the undistributed earnings of corporations is also not justified by the needs of the government for income. In this provision we find again the effort to get at some mysterious and unknown wickedness carried out by the hateful corporation. As a practical matter, such a provision is an unwarranted interference with the rights of the owners and tends to discourage the first principle of any business which is that all earnings should not be paid out but part of them retained in the business to solidify and upbuild it.

"Such a tax would make impossible the development of great organizations from small beginnings. It would tend to protect from competition the great corporations with their mass production already developed out of surplus earnings."

Henry R. Landis, assistant commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, said the immigrants coming to the United States do not comprise the most desirable kinds. He cited figures the year beginning July 1, 1923, saying that the bulk of immigration permitted had arrived by March 1, 1924, at which time 599,227 had come and of those, 277,150 or 38 per cent were in the professional class and 134,054 or 22.3 per cent were skilled workers, including 21,404 clerks or accountants. There were 41,834 classified as farmers or farm laborers and 9,766 merchants, 89,548 laborers and 47,316 servants. Many of the laborers, said Mr. Landis, became peddlers or a small scale in the United States. "About the only class of American citizens who do not need protection from the competition of these immigrants," said he, "are the manufacturers."

Selection at the Source

He thought it would be well to select the proper kind of persons abroad for admittance to the United States, but that would require great extension of the immigration service. It would be desirable also to register and keep track of the individual immigrants after they are admitted.

James A. Emery, counsel of the association, attacked Uncle Sam's open-handedness in dealing with an army of employees unnessarily large. He directed attention to the fact that there were three commissions, twenty years ago, costing $820,000 annually, against thirty-three now, costing $650,000,000. On the government payroll, he said, are three times as many persons as were employed in the whole American mining industry or more than were required to operate all the street and steam railways in the country, while they drew from the government treasury enough money to cover all the payrolls in the automobile industry for ten years.

As a remedy for the conditions of which he complained, Mr. Emery urged that every citizen be persuaded to do his duty at elections. "The picture of violated political duty presented by recent elections," he said, "is appalling."

May Change to Deficit

"In a session of Congress primarily dedicated to tax reduction, proposals involving the expenditure of more than $3,300,000,000 of public money have been introduced. The surplus assured by the utmost determination of budgetary administration is not only threatened with dispersion, but may be transferred into a deficit of $300,000,000 by the authorization of expenditures for which there is no provision for raising revenue, while a bonus has been voted in a form which presents a discrepancy in estimated cost of more than $1,000,000,000 of the legislation and the government actuaries.

"Whatever views men may hold as to the extent to which government may enter the field of regulation or economic equalization, they must agree that there is a limit beyond which we must choose between the programme of reform and the maintenance of our economic machine. The citizen who is indifferent to his political obligation is the unconscious ally of every treasury raider. His neglect accomplishes results no less dangerous than the affirmative capacity of the racial. Less than half the American electorate participated in the last presidential election. In ten states, less than one-fourth of the electors cast their ballots for representatives. Of the membership of the senate elected in 1922, one-fourth received the vote of less than one-fifth of the elecorate and two-thirds were voted into office by less than one-third of the possessors of the franchise."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Orientalism and its Friends.

Mr. Editor: As the letter column has been silent for some time it may not be a bad idea to stir up the pool again. There seems, to some, a strange fascination for exalting the philosophies and poetry of oriental sages, and to make out something important as coming from that source.

A recent quotation from one Rabindranath Tagore, a Hindu poet of repute in the estimate of his people, seems to have given utterance to a sentiment that runs "At every step we have to take into account others than ourselves. For only in death are we alone."

It seems to this writer that any one who crosses the street at the Shannon corner or Franklin square, has had that thought forced on his attention by the string of automobiles through which he ventures his life. Possibly, Mr. Tagore never saw an automobile and, therefore, may be entitled to be called the originator of the sentiment.

This writer, more than thirty years ago, listened to a Methodist sermon in which the preacher referred to the fact that the Siamese twins, born together, and attached by a fleshly ligament that scientists were of the opinion had vital connection with both, died apart as to time—so that each one had to go naked and alone, as to soul, into the Divine Presence. It may be that of all the audience who heard that sermon, this is the only man who remembers it. At least he is the only one to put it up against the quotation from the orientalist.

And we think it was more to the point, and more illustrative about wise sayings. There may be more occurring in our daily experience than ever came from Hindustan, if we were only observing enough to catch them.

As to poetry, let us not forget that the best poetry has been written, either old or new, and written in English, too. In fact, the themes are exhausted and for that reason what is called new poetry is poshy and the writers have to fall back on ridiculous verse forms. There being jazz music, it naturally follows that we must have jazz poetry. But, as we have said, the best poetry has been written—the best music has been written—the best sculpture has been executed—and the best architecture has been built. Let us not forget that in the arts we are only poor imitators.

Only the field of mechanics and perhaps, science, is open to us and we are developing some progress in these realms that are left to us. Any one who has had to select a hymn to agree with a given discourse will find that when he has struck one best in accord and will look at the date of its authorship he will find it probably a hundred or years in the past. Notwithstanding, there are some good modern hymns—but they are few.

We could make this letter tiresome by adding examples, but we refrain. The arts have a limit and it is to our credit as a race that that limit has been reached. We are not pessimistic in giving acknowledgment to what is true. We have asked some critics what Longfellow really meant in his line: "Art is long and time is fleeting," but never got an answer. The antithesis between "time" and "art" has always eluded us as a fit comparison, but we guess many read the line without questioning. Much reading of today is done in that way, even of the Good Book.

Respectfully,
JOHN TROLAND.

Don't Spray While Fruit Trees Are in Bloom.

Mr. Editor: There is need again of sounding a warning against the spraying of fruit trees while in bloom. It is a commendable ambition to produce good fruit, and in this generation it is impossible to do so without spraying the trees; but when that spraying is done out of season the owner of the trees ceases to deserve any commendation.

I have already heard of one such person. You approach him to remonstrate and you will probably get this answer: "What in —— do I care about your bees?"

No, he does not care anything about my bees nor about any other person's bees. Also in his ignorance he does not care for his own lost labor, for all the best authorities state that such spraying does practically no good. Nor does he care for the fact that the bees are as important for his good fruit as is proper spraying.

Let it be clearly known that had the weather which prevailed during the middle of the present week continued a few days longer there would have been no apple crop worthy of mention in spite of the fact that the bloom is unusually heavy. Unless apple blossoms are visited by insects there can be no setting of fruit. The honey bee is the most useful of all insects for this purpose.

Allow me, Mr. Editor, to picture to the readers of The Bulletin what happens when honey bees visit trees sprayed while in bloom. The bees gather not only honey but bountiful supplies of pollen from apple blossoms. The poison falls into the open flowers and lodges on the stamens. The bee visits the blossom while the bursting stamens are yielding their pollen. Pollen and arsenate of lead are gathered together. She rushes home with her two loaves of bread and eager mouths take up this poison for there are several thousand [illegible] bees in her hive all hungry as [illegible] Hundreds of her sisters also come in with these poisoned loaves of bee-bread.

The city of Norwich has some 25,000 people within its borders. Just imagine that in today's issue all the bakers agreed to dose up every loaf of bread they make with arsenic. Sunday morning the small attendance at church could not on this occasion be attributed to golf, the Sunday papers, and the automobile. Only a very few of the automobiles would be out, not even those of the doctors, for many of the doctors would lie dead or dying.

Today a colony of honey-bees is teeming with 50,000 busy inmates with several thousand growing young. Forty-eight hours later the fifty thousand cannot be found for every bee has died and bees usually leave the hive to die. The young are not perishing from hunger for they are dead. The only living insects in the hive are those more mature young which owe their survival to the fact that they were sealed away in cells fasting while the terrible disaster fell. A few of them emerge from their protecting cells only to perish shortly after, for they are too helpless to carry on the activities of the colony.

The picture I have drawn is not exaggerated one iota. I have seen it happen several times and I pray that I may be saved from such a sight this present season. Most people are reasonably and there are very few who will not listen to reason. Please, all, help to prevent this needless slaughter of the most useful and interesting insect that God has made.

After the petals have fallen or even while an occasional belated blossom is on the tree, spraying will do little or no harm. The bees have stopped getting their bread rations from the apple-blossoms and are therefore safe. Let every tree owner hold himself in patience until that period of the bloom has arrived.

Yours respectfully,
ALLEN LATHAM.
Norwich Town, May 23, 1924.

Stories That Recall Others

Much to Learn.

Jeanna, age three, was eating her breakfast, a newspaper serving as a table covering. She saw the picture of a prize fighter in his fighting clothes.

She studied the picture for a few minutes and then said: "Mamma, here's a man what was born without any shirt on."

Troubles of Motorists.

Two motorists, both owners of light cars, met rather unexpectedly at a corner. So unlooked for was the meeting that the cars acquired neat dents.

"Say, don't you know how to stop that thing?" was the inquiry of one motorist.

"What's that to you?" was the retort.

After a long survey of his new enemy, the first one said: "Listen here, if you know how to get started you'd better get started before I get started after you 'cause if you don't get started you'll soon wish you had got started."

About that time a policeman happened along and put an end to the "starting," and hastened the turning over of the self-starters.

HOW THIS WOMAN GOT STRENGTH

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Ia.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNERMARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

MAYOR CALLS UPON CITIZENS TO MAKE CLEAN-UP WEEK IN NORWICH

Next week has been designated as clean-up week in Norwich and Mayor Milo R. Waters has issued the accompanying proclamation calling on the the citizens to unite and make it an effective week in the line of clean-up activities.

PROCLAMATION.

Next week is Clean-up Week in the cities throughout the entire country, and I appeal to the citizens of Norwich to do all they can to clean up their yards and around their homes. The street department will put on additional teams to carry away the additional rubbish that is put out for their collection.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

The mayor's proclamation should be given every consideration and full cooperation by the citizens of this community. The city department will have extra teams to carry away the rubbish during the week. Clean-up week has become a national institution and people everywhere are recognizing the value and the better sanitation achieved through the clean-up of their premises.

The mayor has the fullest cooperation in his efforts to make Norwich clean and sanitary through the enthusiasm of the Daughters of the American Revolution, American Legion, Boy Scouts, the Rotary and Lions clubs and the chamber of commerce. Reports of places that have not been cleaned during next week will be made by representatives of the various organizations who in turn will hand them over to the proper authorities to enforce the health laws of this community. It should be the desire of the people of Norwich not only to clean up for one week but to maintain this cleanliness for the entire year. Persons interested in making Norwich a cleanly city can become active by reporting any unsanitary and unclean premises existing anywhere in the city of Norwich to the city officials or to the members of any of the organizations interested in creating a greater civic pride in our city. Carelessness has much to do with the unclean and untidy conditions existing and some pressure brought to bear on those who are careless in keeping their premises clean will be beneficial to the entire community. In accordance with the universal custom throughout the country the mayor's proclamation deserves the serious consideration and the fullest cooperation of every citizen in order that the best possible results can be achieved.
